3,000 May Be Dead; 100,000
Are Homeless

TOKYO, Japan, July 27 (UP)—Emergency relief agencies rushed rescue teams, medical supplies, food and drinking water to Japan's southern island of Kyushu today to relieve devastation wrought by two days of floods and landslides.

Japanese police officially listed 478 persons dead, 293 missing and 3,646 injured as of midnight tonight (6 a.m. CST). They said more than 100,000 others were homeless or otherwise in distress.

31 Inches Of Rain

Sudden torrential rains dumped 31 inches of water in 24 hours on the Nagasaki area of western Kyushu Thursday. Resulting floods submerged most of the cities of Isahaya and Omura, each with a population of about 60,000 and isolated Shimbara, population 46,000, on the shore of the Ariake Sea.

At least four landslides in Kumamoto prefecture were reported to have buried some 90 victims.

U.S. Air Force planes which bucked heavy winds and thunderstorms to fly reconnaissance missions reported unofficially that some 4,000 homes were destroyed in Omura, some 600 of them completely swept into the sea.

The U.S. Navy and Air Force cooperated with the Japanese Red Cross, defense forces and civil agencies in getting aid to the flooded areas.

Report 10,000
Hungarians In Custody Of Reds

BUDAPEST, July 27 (AP)—Unusually well-informed sources here estimated today that thousands of Hungarians—perhaps as many as 10,000—have been arrested in the last few nationwide roundup by Communist police.

The purpose of the new arrest wave was to crush suspected underground preparations for a new anti-Communist revolution like that of last October, according to a statement made Thursday by Minister of State Gyorgy Marosian.

Informal sources said those seized are men and women of all ages, ranging as high as 80 years. Most of them have been sent directly to concentration camps. The roundup, which lasted at least a week, is the largest since the Russian army crushed the revolution last November.

Started July 17

The best information available here is that the arrests started Wednesday, July 17, and ended Thursday, July 23, although it still may be continuing in the provinces. The most conservative estimates are that 1,500 to 2,000 persons have been seized.

Among those arrested are people believed to have been active in, or to have had some connection with, last October's uprising. Others are people believed to have had some standing in previous governments.

Some in Budapest believe this new police activity may be a prelude to a series of public trials to be staged in September for the purpose of showing that there was "imperialist inspiration and intervention" last fall.

Another aim is believed to be to crush any hope among the Hungarian people that the recent purge in Moscow might lead to a more lenient policy by the Russian-installed regime here.

Marosian declared in his Thursday speech to Budapest factory workers that this police roundup was designed to crush elements "who planned to start a new revolt next October."

He added, defiantly: "Western newspapers report that we have arrested several hundred people. Yes, that is right. . . . Our regime is thus showing that it does not permit itself to be trifled with. Some people were taking the recent action of the Soviet Communist Party expulsion of Y. M. Molotov, Georgi Malenkov, and Lazar Kaganovich as an occasion to go around saying in October we start again."

Teenagers Freed
In Durbin Killing
At Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE, July 27 (AP)—A 12-man jury today acquitted teenagers William S. Rowan and Herbert Ray Mears of the robbery slaying of Marion O. Durbin, ending one of the most sensational trials in Baton Rouge history.

The courtroom was quiet after the verdict was read, almost 10 hours after the case went to the jury.

An overflow crowd last night remained past midnight awaiting the climax of the six-day trial that rocked Baton Rouge with testimony of a teenage sport of hunting homosexuals for the purpose of extorting money.

Hundreds of teenagers attended the trial and at times had to be called to order by the judge as their laughter and shouts interrupted the trial.

Charged Jury

Dist. Judge G. Caldwell Herget completed his charge to the jury at 1:06 a.m. At 2:25 a.m., Herget sent the jury to bed for the night. Spectators overflowed the courtroom again at 9:20 a.m. when the jury resumed deliberation and remained quiet until the verdict was read an hour and a half later.

For a moment no one moved after the court reporter read, "not guilty."

Then the 17-year-old Rowan put his head down on the table before him and wept.

Both Rowan and the 16-year-old Mears seemed stunned. So did their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Rowan and Mr. and Mrs. H.G. Mears. The two couples moved quickly forward to be with their sons.

Widow Sobs

Outside in the hall, Durbin's attractive widow sobbed. "I can't believe it. I just don't understand. God give me the grace to forgive them."

The body of the 30-year-old sewing center manager was found last Dec. 22, robbed and beaten, in his locked car on a dead-end subdivision street.

A coroner's jury ruled death came from strangulation due to "asphyxiated vomitus."

Rowan and Mears were charged with murder under a provision of state law that says it is murder when death comes as a result of the act of either armed robbery or simple robbery.

In his closing statement, Dist. Atty. J. St. Clair Favrot, commented, "Were I a juror, and knowing what I do about this case, and considering the age of the defendants, I could not bring a verdict of guilty."

Charred Bodies
Of Youths Found

BROCKTON, Mass., July 27 (UP)—The charred, mutilated and bound bodies of two young brothers were found in a public park under a pile of burning branches today, the victims of a sadistic killer.

The youngsters, John Logan, 12, and his brother, Paul, 10, who had been missing since Friday when they went for a swim, were found face down about a yard apart close by a large pond. The bathing suits had been stripped from their bodies, their wrists had been bound with clothesline rope and one of them had been hacked with a knife.

Car keys on a ring were beneath one boy's body.

The youngsters, of Stoughton, Mass., had been missing after their father took them to the D.W. Field park, which is guarded by eight lifeguards and park police.

Ordered Pool Drained

Late Friday their clothes and half eaten lunches were found beside the Ellis Brett pool in the park by the father when they failed to come home. Police, believing the boys had drowned, ordered the pool drained.

A search of the park was ordered after the pool was found empty. Volunteers, including police and firemen fanned out over a dense wooded area.

Volunteer fireman Robert J. Gould nearly stumbled over the bodies when he went to investigate some smoldering brush. The youngsters' naked bodies, partly covered by 18-foot-long logs, were found nearby.

"WE DON'T WANT THEIR HATE"

Lake Charles Labor Chief
Blasts Critics Of Gravel

LAKE CHARLES, La., July 27 (AP)—A Lake Charles labor leader today slashed back at segregation leaders seeking to remove Democratic national committeeman Camille Gravel, commenting, "we don't want their hate."

E. Hennigan, Democratic State Central Committee member from Calcasieu Parish, centered his fire on Sen. W. B. Rainach, Rep. John S. Garrett and Dist. Atty. Leander Perez of Plaquemines and St. Bernard Parishes.

Hennigan is Lake Charles district vice president for the Louisiana State Labor Council, AFL-CIO.

Rainach, chairman of the Legislative Segregation Committee and Garrett, vice chairman of the segregation committee, have led the drive to oust Gravel because of his support of civil rights legislation.

Perez Joins Demands
Perez, Plaquemines Parish political boss and staunch segregationist, joined in yesterday with a demand that Gravel resign immediately. Perez is Plaquemines central committee member.

Hennigan said, "when you team up a combination of Perez with Rainach and Garrett you have the best trio of hate sellers this side of the Iron Curtain. . . . They are always against anything."

They are specialists in denying people the right to vote," he continued, "just as they deny any-

Agree On Close Vote

He told reporters he was ready to vote on the issue next Tuesday but that there "apparently was some cooling off" on the part of senators backing the jury trial amendments. This largely Democratic bloc, heretofore confident of winning, had previously shown a willingness to vote early next week.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), leader of the southern bloc fighting the bill, told reporters he could not say that he would be ready to vote Tuesday. He said further discussion of the timing would be necessary.

Russell agreed with Knowland that "a very close vote" can be expected.

Amendment Vote Next

The Senate starts its fourth week of debate on the bill Monday.

The bill now provides for a commission to investigate violations of civil rights, a new assistant attorney general to handle civil rights cases, and use of injunctions against conspiracies to deprive persons of the right to vote.

The next major vote will come on an amendment sponsored by Sens. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.), Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) and Frank Church (D-Idaho).

It would require jury trials for persons charged with criminal contempt of court, subject to punishment for willful defiance of a right-to-vote injunction. It would not apply to civil contempt cases in which persons jailed for disobeying court orders could gain freedom by complying.

South Pole Souvenir Received

A trim looking, rather heavy package was delivered by a special delivery man from the post office the other day. We had just been reading of bomb explosions and we were a bit suspicious. This package came from Norfolk, Va. Casually we opened the package and discovered that it contains some tiny rocks and some earth that came, believe it or not, from the South Pole.

A label affixed to the glass container stated that the contents of the jar were comprised of little stones and specks of dirt that came from the hut occupied by Robert Falcon Scott, English explorer, who actually reached the South Pole with a group of men. This was in 1912, and on the return trip, all in the party of five men perished from cold and hunger.

The little stones in a glass jar are not anything with a brilliant look and probably they are worthless.

Collision Fatal
To 2; 3 Injured
Near Winnfield

WINNFIELD (Special)—State Police yesterday were investigating details of a two-car collision 16 miles west of here on Highway 84 Friday night in which two persons were killed and three others injured.

The dead were identified as Henry M. Huggen, 40, Natchitoches, La., and his wife, Mrs. Ollie G. Huggen, 38.

Injured were their daughter, Nelda, 13, who suffered a broken right arm and lacerations of the body, and Charlene Godwin, 14, of Houston, Texas, a niece of the Huggens who suffered four fractures of the jaw and other head injuries. Last night attendants at Winnfield General Hospital said she was still unconscious.

Also injured was Raymond Whitehead, 32, Dry Prong, La., driver of the other car. He had deep lacerations of the body and legs and internal injuries. All of the injured were hospitalized here.

The Whitehead car was traveling east and the Huggen car was traveling west when they met head-on on the crest of a small hill, police said. At the place where the accident happened the road was under construction in the process of widening the paving. There was a sharp drop off on the shoulder of the road.

There were no witnesses to the accident, according to state police who investigated. They were assisted in the investigation by the Winn Parish sheriff's department and Winnfield city police.

The road was blocked off from traffic for about an hour and a half following the crash.

Mrs. Huggen was killed instantly in the collision, and death was attributed to head injuries. Mr. Huggen died an hour after the accident in Winnfield hospital. He had both lungs punctured, head injured.

ONE KILLED, TWO HURT

WACO, July 27 (UP)—Robert H. Thomas, 46, was killed and Mrs. Thomson, 21, and Odell McCauley, 43, were injured early today in a two-car collision on U.S. Highway 31 near here. All were from Waco.

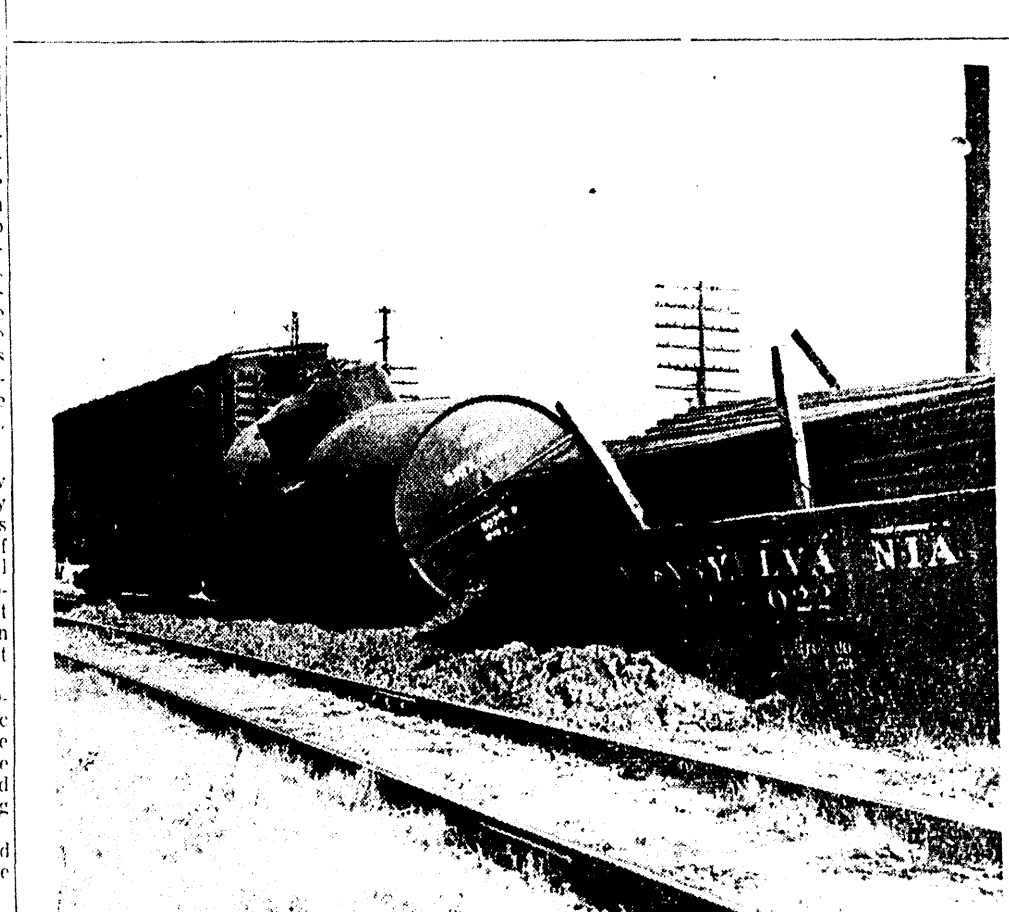

Police said the discovery of Revels' car was "a one in a million sort of accident."

Revels was the object of a statewide search and rewards had been posted for information leading to his whereabouts. He was last heard from the afternoon of May when he telephoned his wife he would be home in 15 minutes.

Salute By Guard Ends
With Death

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala, July 27 (UP)—A palace guard identified as a Communist saluted President Carlos Castillo Armas with his rifle last night and then shot the president dead with two bullets fired point blank in a darkened palace hallway.

The guard fled toward a stairs and then committed suicide with his last bullet.

The 65-year-old president, who rescued Guatemala from Red rule in 1954 and gave the country its first really democratic regime, fell dead at the side of his attractive wife shortly after a 23rd birthday. One bullet pierced his heart, the other also lodged in his chest.

Confirmed New President
At daybreak, the standing committee of Congress confirmed last night President Luis Arturo Guzman Lauder, 54, as provisional president. A 54-year-old attorney known for his anti-Communist views, he appealed for order and indicated others had been involved in the slaying of the president.

A state of siege (modified martial law) was declared but the country was orderly.

Castillo and his wife had just left his private apartments in one wing of the palace shortly after the reception, at about 8:55 p.m. (7:55 p.m. CST). They were walking towards the dining room on one of the rare occasions when they were to dine alone.

Snapped To Attention
As they walked down a 50-yard hallway, Pvt. Romeo Vasquez Sanchez, 20, snapped to attention.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27 (AP)—A 74-year-old woman, who lay paralyzed in an empty bathtub for a week, said she felt "a little stronger today."

The doctor treating Mrs. Betty Schardt said he was encouraged that she had gained some strength. He had added that her condition "is not too good."

"She doesn't want to talk about her ordeal," the doctor told a newspaperman.

But police patrolman Kenneth Murphy, who rescued Mrs. Schardt from her home Thursday night, related this sequence of events:

Mrs. Schardt, a widow, lives alone in a one-story frame house in San Francisco's Mission district, but has a man tenant in a basement apartment.

About noon on July 18 Mrs. Schardt turned on her television set and started to change her clothes.

Driver's Death
Leads To Body
Of Missing Man

MIAMI, July 27 (UP)—A speeding car plunged into a canal here early today, carrying its driver to his death and landing "piggyback" on top of another car containing the body of a man missing for the past two months.

Divers removed the body of Sterling Lester Davis, a 33-year-old airline mechanic, a few minutes after his car shot off the road, rolled 125 feet across a field and settled in the canal.

Divers, curious about wreckage they sighted below Davis' car, went in the 20-foot water a second time. They found the rusting remains of another vehicle. Lined on the front seat was the decomposed body of a man.

Police traced the license plate and found it belong to Donald Revels, 31-year-old barber who disappeared May 25 on his way home from work. Officers theorized Revels' car plunged into the canal as he sped down the same road.

Revels was the object of a statewide search and rewards had been posted for information leading to his whereabouts. He was last heard from the afternoon of May when he telephoned his wife he would be home in 15 minutes.

Police said the discovery of Revels' car was "a one in a million sort of accident."

Federal School
Assist Opposed

The Louisiana Department of the American Legion has gone on record as opposing federal aid to schools despite a recommendation by its resolutions committee.

The committee bowed to opposition from the floor at yesterday morning's business session of the Legion's 39th annual convention held in the auditorium of Our Lady Parish High School. The session also was marked by a spirited controversy involving payment to chiropractors for treatment of veterans.

In making the report of the resolutions committee, chairman Calisto Salomon of Lafayette recorded that the committee had rejected the proposal of the Department of the American Legion committee that the Legionnaires go on record as opposing federal aid to schools.

Richard C. Cadwallader, chairman of the resolutions committee of Nicholson Post 38, Baton Rouge, protested the Departmental resolutions committee action, and Salomon immediately withdrew the committee's objection. The delegates then voted unanimously to accept the Americanism committee's recommendation opposing federal aid to schools because of the potential threats to home rule.

Asks Reason
Cadwallader asked Salomon the reason for the committee's rejection of the resolution. Salomon said he "didn't know." Cadwallader said that an almost identical resolution as that proposed by the Americanism committee had been approved at three previous state Legion conventions, and at five previous national conventions.

In the other contested action, the resolutions committee had favored a resolution which would put the Louisiana Department of the American Legion on record as favoring payment by the Veterans Administration of fees to chiropractors for treatment of veterans. It was brought out during the 45-minute argument on this matter that the treatment must be at the voluntary request of the veteran.

Because of the lack of a quorum, the session on resolutions was recessed until tomorrow morning's meeting. Among the matters expected to be brought up are integration in Veterans Administration Hospitals, and a 25-cent increase in Legion dues.

The delegates approved the resolutions committee's recommendation that a proposal to require all Legion officials to sign loyalty pledges be rejected. The committee said that such was unnecessary in view of the fact that all Legionnaires are sworn to uphold the Constitution.

SIX INTERCEPTORS READY
First 'Supersonic' Race
For Bendix Trophy Looms

CHICAGO, July 27 (UP)—Six sleek, supersonic jet interceptors will streak tomorrow from Chicago to Washington, D.C., in the Bendix Trophy Race, hopeful of flying the first supersonic race ever held in the United States.

Within an hour after leaving the Air Force base at O'Hare International Airport outside Chicago, the fan-winged jets will scream by pylons at Andrews Air Force Base at Washington, D.C. The P-102 Delta Dagger interceptors will take off from O'Hare at five-minute intervals, beginning at 11 a.m. (CST), and zoom to the nation's capital in about 50 minutes.

No one is predicting speeds of the planes, which will fly at altitudes of 35,000 to 40,000 feet at the control of pilots from the Air Force Continental Defense Command.

Experts, however, figure the existing Bendix record of 666 miles per hour will be toppled. Capt. Manuel J. (Pete) Fernandez set that mark last year in a 100-minute flight from George Air Force Base in California to Oklahoma City.

Supersonic speed at sea level is 760 miles per hour.

The Bendix Aviation Corp. originated the race in 1931 when the nation's air power was at a low ebb to spur experimental developments by plane designers and to improve the skill of pilots on cross-country flights.

First winner of the speed dash was James H. Doolittle now a retired Air Force General, who flew from Los Angeles to Cleveland in nine hours and 10 minutes at an average speed of 223 miles per hour.

Girl Stowaway
Sails On Ship
With Male Crew

NEW ORLEANS, July 27 (AP)—Devotah Pasternak is a determined young miss. And not even the prospect of stowing away on a freighter with an all-male crew stopped her when she decided to leave Havana, Cuba, for Tel Aviv, Israel.

The senior Border Patrol inspector here, Patrick E. Duvall, gave this account today of the 17-year-old Devotah's adventure.

Devotah quarreled last Thursday with her father, who moved to Cuba from Tel Aviv about five months ago. So the girl decided to return to her mother in Tel Aviv.

She went to the docks, sneaked aboard an Israeli freighter, the S. S. Shamron, and hid in a lifeboat. But she wasn't able to stay in hiding long. About six hours after the vessel left port, a crew member spotted Devotah as she was climbing out of the lifeboat.

When the vessel reached New Orleans today after a two-day voyage, the ship's officers reported she was locked in a cabin. The officers refused to allow reporters to talk to her or photograph her.

Duvall said the girl probably will be returned to her father in Havana. The father operates a drygoods store there.

Decision Near On Bond Issue

Monroe property owners will catch up with its past growth Tuesday on proposed improvements and extensions to the city waterworks and electric power plants and systems, costing four and one-half million dollars.

The general bond election called by the Monroe City Council, asks for the issuance of self-liquidating revenue bonds.

It was pointed out that there would be no increase in taxes, but the bonds, which interest will be paid by funds derived from electric and water revenue.

Thomas Oliver, who is secretary of the city utilities commission, has called the improvements "the barest minimum that the city needs."

Engineer J. C. Peterson said that city funds a state of emergency as far as electrical needs for the summer of 1958 are concerned, and that the bond issue needs to be approved by Monroe.

Light Vote Seen

A light vote is expected, according to the Louisiana Parish Registrar, Mrs. Max Luck.

Meanwhile, a group of leading citizens of Monroe paid tribute to the Utilities Commission and also endorsed the proposed bond issue.

The group said in a full-page ad that "we fellow citizens appreciate the splendid work" commission members are doing in the administration of our light and water systems.

We think the public-spirited volunteer service which you provide is a commendable one."

Recognize Need

The bond issue, the group said, "we recognize the need for improvements and extensions in our light and water systems in order to bring them up to Monroe's past growth. We agree that the best way to finance these improvements and extensions is through a revenue bond issue."

We believe that the bond issue is a necessary and wise step, and we urge you to call for its approval at once.

We heartily endorse the bond issue and urge our fellow citizens in Monroe to go to the polls Tuesday and vote "yes" in its favor.

Teenagers Get Permission To Fire Rocket

ALAMOGORDO, N.M., July 27 (UP)—Two Tulsa, Okla., teenagers apparently have broken through Army red tape and will get to see their home-made rocket fired at the White Sands proving grounds missile center near here.

The boys, Clifford Ramsey and Bartley Glover, both 17, ironed out details in a meeting with officials at Holloman Air Development Center. They were told the actual firing probably will be handled by Air Force personnel.

The aluminum rocket is the result of more than three years' work by the boys at their home in Broken Arrow, east of Tulsa. It is designed to climb two and a half miles and is 12 feet long.

Glover said the rocket was expected to arrive here by truck this weekend at the home of an aunt where the boys are visiting.

Col. J. W. McCurdy, public information officer at the base, said the rocket would be launched late next week.

The boys attended the American Rocket Society meeting here and talked with Heinrich Weigand, a former German scientist renowned for his development of the World War II V-1 and V-2 Nazi rockets. Weigand now is an employee at the missile testing center here.

Last week, doubt was expressed whether Army regulations would permit private firings on the government range.

Mississippi's
Oil Activity In

JACKSON, Miss., July 27 (UP)—Only routine activity was reported in Mississippi's oil and gas fields during the week, with one operator beginning a series of tests on an oil field.

Hawkins and Bateman began testing the Wallace No. 1 well in Sweetwater field. Initial tests indicated a flow of 62 barrels of oil daily from perforations at 10,700-91 feet. Another sweetwater well, Shell Oil Co.'s Hodges No. 4-A, was being tested from perforations at 10,700-91 feet. No gauge was reported.

Negro Housing Group Formed

SHREVEPORT, La., July 27 (UP)—A 23-man Citizens Committee to back the proposed public housing project was formed here Friday night to promote the 250-unit low-rent project for Negroes in a slum clearance move.

The project cost has been estimated at $3,767,665.

A committee statement said the project would not cost the city government, nor increase taxes since the Housing authority of Shreveport would issue bonds to pay the costs. The bonds would be retired from rentals and possibility with the help of the federal government, the statement added.

Plans To Quit Himself

Solon Says 'Filter Tips'
Waste Of Smoker's Money

WASHINGTON, July 27 (UP)—Rep. John A. Blatnik (D-Minn.) said today smokers worried about lung cancer are "wasting their money" buying filter-tip cigarettes.

He said a congressional inquiry has "exposed filter cigarettes as being completely phony." He urged the cigarette industry to go to work to produce a "reasonable safe cigarette" by combining a proper blend of tobacco with really effective filter.

Blatnik is chairman of a House Government Operations subcommittee which Friday completed a two-week public hearing into advertising claims made for filter cigarettes.

The subcommittee will inquire next into false and misleading advertising of "reducing pills." It will resume hearings in about 10 days.

Blatnik said the cigarette industry showed smokers are getting "as much or more tar and nicotine" from the filter-tipped cigarettes now on the market as from the regular-size, plain-tipped variety. But he said smokers are paying close to 200 million dollars a year extra for filter-tips.

The subcommittee heard conflicting testimony on whether cigarette tar contributes to lung cancer and nicotine to heart disease. Blatnik, who began the hearings as a chain-smoker of regular size, plain cigarettes, said he was so impressed by testimony linking cigarette smoking to lung cancer that he is going to try to quit smoking altogether.

"I have cut my smoking from two packs a day to one, and I hope to be able to quit entirely," he said in a press statement.

USSR Willing To Discuss Exchange Of Broadcasts

WASHINGTON, July 27 (UP)—make the new appeal for an Russia indicated today it is willing to discuss a U.S. proposal to exchange uncensored radio and television broadcasts.

The Russian stand was taken in a note delivered to the American press to enter the United States ambassador in Moscow yesterday was a "major obstacle" to the development of cultural relations.

It was a reply to a U.S. note and contacts between the two nations of June 24 proposing a "regular" exchange of uncensored radio and television broadcasts.

The idea was for the two nations to exchange film and voice national norms. It added that recordings of talks by leaders in government and private life, in cultural, scientific and other fields.

The U.S. put forward its proposal soon after Soviet Communist leader Nikita S. Khrushchev appeared on U.S. television during a Columbia Broadcasting System interview.

The administration seized on the development to pressure the Soviet Union into agreeing to a similar acknowledgment that "the detente-TV exchange which Western powers had first proposed in 1955, facts between the peoples" of the Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson had strongly facilitated an improvement of Soviet-American relations.

Foreigners Get Moscow Greeting

MOSCOW, July 27 (UP)—Push-road station for the opening of the Moscow Youth Festival. The U.S. group formed the largest single contingent of the delegates—50 of them American—arriving at Moscow rail-200 Americans scheduled to attend the two-week festival which are expected for the athletic, literary and political festival, for which Muscovites have been preparing for months.

No Demand

Oil Production Faces New Cuts

HOUSTON, July 27 (UP)—New cut-backs in oil production become effective next week with no indication they will match a tumbling market demand.

A fifth consecutive monthly cut-back has been ordered in Louisiana amid prospects some purchasers may refuse to take full allowances.

Texas will continue in August its 13-day July order, the smallest allowable in the history of the state.

An all-time low of 37 barrels a day has been recommended as the basic unit production allowable will gain strength in August.

John Hussey, Louisiana conservation commissioner, said some purchasers may institute pipeline prororation. He said this "may bring some rather trying times in conservation" but pledged continued effort to give his state its share of market demand.

Lowest Since 1955

After dropping two weeks ago to 6,882,050 barrels a day, the lowest average since 1955, domestic output last week climbed back to 6,947,100, primarily on 47,000-barrel increases in Kansas and Oklahoma.

The daily average last week was 34,000 barrels below the average for the week ending Nov. 2, the week the closing of the Suez Canal disrupted the flow of oil from the Middle East. Since the Suez crisis ended domestic production has been slashed by 875,000 barrels a day.

Texas Drops Output

Production in Texas last week averaged 2,791,000 barrels a day compared to 2,949,600 in early November. New Production will bring only a small increase next month. The August allowable was set at 3,067,883 barrels a day but actual output normally runs about 12 per cent below the authorized level.

Louisiana has set an August allowable of 769,030 barrels a day, 45,266 below July and 221,000 below the record level set in March. Louisiana began November with a daily average of 793,750.

The recommended 37-barrel unit 238,350.

tend the two-week festival which are expected for the athletic, literary and political festival, for which Muscovites have been preparing for months.

Most of the Americans were students but the group included one Russian expert making the trip for study purposes and one insurance salesman.

Along for Ride

Many apparently were "along for the ride." Only about one-third were here as serious delegates. At previous festivals Americans have attended only as observers.

The Moscow youth choir welcomed the noon train carrying American, English, Irish, Czech, Hungarian and French youths.

More than one thousand Russian youngsters stood on the platform with flowers or outstretched autograph books.

Outside the station Russian police in a friendly mood had trouble keeping a path for the lookers.

American Arnold Spindler of Los Angeles bearded and carrying a guitar, was a particular subject for Soviet autograph hunters and amateur photographers.

Sign Autographs

While he signed autographs, a young Russian grabbed his guitar, with a small American flag waving at one end of it, and strummed a few chords.

Baptist-Backed Summer Camp At Ki-Ro-Li Ends

More than 225 boys and girls are back home today after spending last week in a summer youth camp at Camp Ki-Ro-Li sponsored by the 23 churches of the Trenton Baptist Association.

The camp director was Rev. John Smith, pastor of Peniel Baptist Church, and Rev. O. P. Vaz, pastor of Edgewood Baptist Church, was registrar.

A program of spiritual instruction, combined with recreation with emphasis on swimming, was carried out during the five-day camp. Camp pastor, Rev. Lum Ellis of Baton Rouge, spoke twice daily, and Rev. Cleve Smith of New Iberia, missionary speaker, appeared once each day.

Rev. W. B. Rogers, of Bastrop, brought the "gospel in magic" each day, and on one occasion the speaker was Chief Begay, a Navajo Indian from Arizona.

States' Righters Win

Another measure seeking Washington control of state affairs went down to defeat Thursday when the national house of representatives killed the federal school aid bill.

Death of the measure was assured when an amendment proposing to withhold aid from non-integrated schools was offered.

This provision would have meant that the south received little, if any, of the federal school aid money and that, at the same time, it would have been forced to contribute to the schools in the north in which Negroes and whites were mixed.

The action, which came on a narrow 208 to 203 roll call, almost exactly paralleled last year's vote when the house killed another school construction bill under similar circumstances.

As proposed, the bill was a punishment measure for the south. Its chief intent and purpose was to put economic pressure on the south to force integration of the schools. It was a measure designed to put a stranglehold on states' rights and to turn the administration of the schools over to the federal authorities. It was another move toward centralization of government and toward socialism or totalitarianism.

In the last week, the south's fight for states' rights and individual rights and against centralized government has been successful time after time in votes taken in congress. So-called "liberal" northern representatives and senators have made assault after assault upon the fundamental principles embodied in the United States constitution, but they have been defeated at every turn. Vote-hungry sponsors of Negro-favoritism legislation have driven hard but have fallen short of success in their schemes.

The south has carried the burden of this fight but its success leads to this encouraging thought: There are still many in the north who do not want to sacrifice the principles on which this country was founded and when it comes to a showdown enough of them vote with the south to save the situation. Let us hope this will continue at least through the present session of congress.

In the final analysis, any school aid bill in which the federal government proposes to supply funds for the operation of state schools means that the government wants control of the schools.

This was proved Thursday in the vote which killed the school aid bill. An amendment had sought to guarantee that there would be no federal interference in the operation of the schools. Proponents of the bill preferred to have it killed, rather than enacted with a no-interference provision. For this reason, they approved the amendment to withhold aid to the schools in the south unless they were integrated.

Happily, this brought the best result—death of the whole bill.

Meter Refund Proposed

It was bound to come sooner or later. American ingenuity being what it is, but it didn't have to come so soon. A mad inventor has devised a photo-electric gadget which will automatically send parking meter time pointers back to zero when an auto leaves before its paid-up time has elapsed.

Every freedom loving American should take up arms in opposition to this device. It poses a serious threat to the social contract between the individual and the state. Let's not, in the excitement of the times, overlook the civil rights of an oppressed majority group, motorists.

When a driver deposits his five cents in a meter, that parking place, in a sense, becomes his property for an hour. The driver has rented the space, cash in advance. If it later develops that the full hour is not needed and the parking place is vacated this departure should not break the rental agreement between the motorist and the municipality.

Certainly the installation of these gadgets violates at least one provision of the Constitution. Which one, however, we aren't quite sure. If, despite these arguments, cities resort to electronic embezzlement, motorists should counterattack with a demand for parking meter refunds.

The driver who overstays his brief lease ends up with an overtime parking ticket. Conversely, it does not seem unreasonable that motorists who buy more time than they need should be entitled to a refund of the overpayment. Demands for refunds would be so great additional space and personnel would be required, making the continued operation of the two-timing meters a net loss.

Electrons make lousy landlords. — Montgomery Advertiser.

Vaccine Shortage

A current shortage of polio vaccine seems to spread all over the country. Thus the nation is faced with more boom and bust on this vital material.

Ever since the announcement of the discovery of the vaccine more than two years ago, the drug industry has either found itself with too much on its hands or not enough.

Last winter, when citizens were being urged to obtain the vaccinations before the onset of the polio season, the vaccine was literally "a drug on the market." But with the traditional summer polio season arriving, and with everybody from President Eisenhower on down urging inoculations, the supply has vanished.

One doesn't know whether to blame citizens for not being vaccinated earlier or to place the problem at the doorstep of the drug industry.

Two years ago the industry had trouble getting in gear and the picture compared unfavorably with government production in Canada. Later supply caught up with demand and the problem was supposed to have been solved for all time.

Now once more there are shortages, and many an exasperated citizen cannot help but wonder why.

Historical Novelist

The eulogist who said of Kenneth Roberts, historical novelist who died in Maine at the age of 80, that he would "certainly have left his mark on whatever profession he pursued," did not engage in flowery tribute. Roberts wrote a half-dozen outstanding historical novels that could only have been produced by an energetic man with a passion for detail.

Roberts was never reticent in discussing the years spent in painstaking research, three years having been devoted to this chore before "Northwest Passage" was produced. But, in addition to being a stickler for detail, he looked into pages of history that were frequently ignored by popular historians.

The entertaining works of Roberts enabled thousands to see the past as something real and alive. He chose a literary form that is perhaps as difficult as any to master, and in which more slovenly work is done than in any other.

Public Defender Debate

For a number of years many persons in the legal profession have been plugging for the public defender system. Full time public officials would act as defense attorneys for persons charged with crimes who could not afford to hire lawyers.

Federal Judge Edward J. Dimock of New York jumps on that proposal with vigor.

"Defense of those charged with crime is the last field we should permit the state to enter," says the judge. "Once the state had acquired power over the defense of those whom it accused, the power of the state would be absolute indeed."

The judge's position is understandable. Theoretically at least, the accusing government could prosecute strongly and defend weakly and so get a certain conviction.

Judge Dimock's view was challenged with the claim that the public defender basis would provide thousands of jobs. Whether it would promote justice is still under discussion.

There are approximately 3,000 counties in the United States, and the public defender system applied on a nationwide system is operating successfully in 10 states, none of which had become "police states."

The Trust That Under Writes Our Liberty

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAYS

Bill Of Rights Adopted By States And Not Through Act Of Congress

I saw a headline in a newspaper which read, "Why Do Americans Fear Rights First Congress Nailed Down?" This did not appear in the Daily Worker but in a very conservative publication. So I sought to discover what the First Congress "nailed down"—apparently an enormous feat in carpentry.

What is undoubtedly referred to in this article are the first ten amendments to the Constitution, which is a collection of the rights of the individual that government may not impair, most of them emanating from English common law and the traditions of the colonies during the nearly 170 years of existence prior to the Revolution. These first ten amendments were not "nailed down" by the First Congress or any other Congress engaged in such vulgarity, but were passed by the states as the Constitution provides.

What the writer of the headline in historic error refers to is the "Resolution of the First Congress Submitting Twelve Amendments to the Constitution," which was duly submitted to the states because several of them refused to adopt the Constitution otherwise. The preamble of this resolution makes it all clear:

"The Conventions of a number of the States, having at the time of their adopting the Constitution, expressed a desire, in order to prevent misconstruction or abuse of its powers, that further declaratory and restrictive clauses should be added; and as extending the ground of public confidence in the Government, will best ensure the beneficent ends of its institution: . . ."

The matter was then referred to the states. The first two of these twelve amendments dealt with a clarification of the first Article of the Constitution dealing with (1) how to elect a member of the House of Representatives; and (2) preventing senators and representatives from raising their own salaries without an election for representatives intervening—a very good measure.

What we generally refer to as the First Amendment was actually the Third and the famous Fifth was the Seventh in the resolution. New York agreed to all but the Second Amendment but Virginia agreed to the entire twelve.

What is significant in this is that it is the states and not Congress which amends the Constitution because sovereignty in this country is vested in each state and not in the federal government. The writer of this article asks:

"Are we, the proud and the strong, so terrified of internal subversion on the part of a legal if many political party, whose numbers probably do not exceed 50,000 persons, that we are willing to let civil liberties guaranteed to us by the Constitution go by default?"

The answer is, of course, very simple if one applies logic to public questions. Whose rights? For instance in the Jencks case, the Supreme Court tried to solve this problem as it related to FBI files which contain accumulations of material confidentially given by public-spirited citizens who have assisted the law-enforcement agencies. While it is true that some of this information refers to communists and other subversive cases, there is also considerable material relating to other crimes such as kidnapping, automobile thefts, attempts to rob the government, etc.

Is it the right of a citizen who is charged with a crime to see the whole of the government's case against him in a criminal case? This is what lawyers call "liberal disclosure," but the question arises how liberal the disclosure has to be and whether ultimately the raw files of the FBI will have to be submitted to courts, many judges not knowing the difference between a raw file, which contains every scrap of rumor, gossip and fact that comes in, including un-evaluated material, and a prepared brief which provides only carefully evaluated and processed matter. A judge recently fined an FBI agent $1,000 for not giving the defendant a file in a criminal case which had nothing to do with communism or subversion.

Unfortunately, the ten amendments to which we usually refer as the Bill of Rights do not apply only to those who belong to splinter political parties. They apply to all persons who live in this country except such as enjoy extraterritoriality. The assumption is false that our rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness are divisible in the sense that we can pick and choose which ones we prefer and for whom. Thus far Communists and subversives have been favored.

PAUL HARVEY

Gotham Goliath Brought To Knees By Billy Graham

Old Homer McKee, the Hoosier philosopher, used to say, "The best thing about New York City is the first train home."

New York is too big, too impersonal, too much of everything for us farm boys to swallow. When Billy Graham was first invited to conduct an evangelistic crusade on this crowded island, there were many reasons why it could not succeed.

Yet, it is axiomatic in the sales profession: If you sell New York, you're sold all over. That made it a challenge.

Nowhere on earth are there more potential "customers" per acre. A glance at the amusement pages of any Manhattan newspaper shows that no place could there be a greater need for somebody to throw open the windows and let in some light.

So he went. The word evangelist comes from a Greek word meaning "a bringer of good tidings."

The young man from Montreal, N. C. brought "good news," nothing else. And it was not "new" news.

Yet Madison Square Garden was at once filled, then overflowing. And night after night three per cent of the total attendance elected to stand up and be counted for Christ, double the usual percentage in previous crusades.

Someone suggested a larger, climatic meeting in Yankee Stadium, the city's largest.

Broadway bookmakers bet even money he'd never fill those 67,000 seats.

You have to know New York fully to respect the magnitude of this conquest:

More than 100,000 came! New York is a sophisticated city—some say "cynical."

It wasn't easy.

The city was not taken by storm.

Ten weeks ago it was a gentle breeze—almost unnoticed at first—that moved out of the Blue Ridge Mountains of North Carolina and over the city.

But on July 20, weeks of prayer and patience later, the gospel of Jesus Christ which he preaches reached gale force.

I was in Yankee Stadium that memorable evening to share the historic event with millions of televisioners.

And that night's inspiring response crowned with victory a crusade that was at first frightening even to the crusader.

Until midnight afterward I was with Ruth and Billy Graham as we sought quietly to absorb the magnitude of this accomplishment.

Billy Graham's ministry came of age that night.

In a New York ball park the Lord had etched a new name alongside those of Moody—Chapman—and Billy Sunday.

The message was as simple as the Psalms of David. The response, incalculable.

Dr. Billy Graham would want the credit to go to God. So be it.

But the history of the world's great religious revivals demonstrates that some one man must deliver the pebbles of truth in a slingshot of prayer.

With no other weapons than these—and with the world watching—the young man, from North Carolina brought the Gotham Goliath to his knees.

CONGRESSIONAL QUARTERLY

Amount Owed By States Up Faster Than U. S. Debts

WASHINGTON, July 28 (CQ)—The total debt of the 48 states rose more than twice as fast, in percentage terms, as the much-discussed federal debt between fiscal 1953 and fiscal 1956.

The increase in state debt is a major factor underlying current talk about finding ways for the federal government to relinquish some taxes to the states.

Only last week (July 20) President Eisenhower named new Secretary of Treasury Robert B. Anderson to head a seven-member cabinet level group to meet with a group of governors to study ways of returning some federal functions and tax sources to the states.

Proposals also have been introduced in congress toward the same end.

Census bureau figures show the debt for all 48 states rose from $4,696,928,000 on June 30, 1953, to $4,911,145,000 on June 30, 1956, a rise of 4.6 per cent.

In the same period, the federal government's debt increased from $263,346,000,000 to $269,883,000,000, a rise of 2.2 per cent.

Louisiana's debt went from $192,042 in fiscal 1953 to $234,925 in fiscal 1956, an increase of $42,883, or 22 per cent.

Congressional Quarterly's analysis of the census bureau figures shows that 23 states increased their debt between fiscal 1953 and fiscal 1956. Twenty states decreased their debt during the same period. Of the 20, four—Kansas, South Dakota, Utah and Wyoming—managed to eliminate their indebtedness.

Another five states—Florida, Indiana, Kentucky, Nebraska and Wisconsin—were debt free in fiscal 1953 and remained that way three years later.

Only Idaho went from a debt-free status in fiscal 1953 to the red in fiscal 1956.

Idaho excepted, Nevada experienced the largest debt increase rate in the three-year period, a rise of 228 per cent. States following Nevada in percentage debt increase: Massachusetts, 91 per cent; Texas, 91 per cent; New Hampshire, 82 per cent; New Mexico, 71 per cent; South Carolina, 65 per cent; Delaware, 62 per cent; Ohio, 59 per cent; Maryland, 58 per cent; Vermont, 52 per cent.

In terms of dollar debt increase, Massachusetts was high. Its debt rose from $265 million to $545 million, an increase of $280 million. California and Ohio were next with debt increases of $126 million and $87 million respectively.

Dollar Decreases

States having the biggest dollar decreases in debt between fiscal 1953 and fiscal 1956 were Washington, down $158 million; New York, down $157 million; Illinois, $80 million; and Pennsylvania, $69 million.

Even the so-called debt-free states have some money tied up in such independent agencies as turnpike authorities. The census bureau does not count that money as part of a state's general obligation unless the state can be held legally responsible for its agencies' debts.

In debt-free Indiana, for example, $280 million was owed for road construction at the close of fiscal 1956. A total of $8.4 billion was owed by independent authorities in all states as of June 30, 1956.

Allen D. Marvel, chief of the census bureau's government division, says a state—like the father of a delinquent son—often feels morally obligated to make good on its independent agencies' debts even if the state is not legally bound to do so.

Blind Vendor Gets $19,000 In Auto Accident

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 27—P—A 54-year-old blind news-vendor, struck by a driverless car in downtown Kansas City, was awarded $19,000 damages in a Jackson county circuit court today.

The award went to Copal Moskowitz, blind since he was 14 and a familiar sight on a downtown street corner for many years.

Moskowitz suffered hip and leg injuries on June 24, 1956, when a car owned by Sylvan R. Lange, 4010 E. 12th St., rolled loose from the curb where it had been stopped by a parking garage attendant and struck him.

Under the settlement agreement to open court, the Phillips Hotel and the Ralph parking garage paid Moskowitz $15,250 and Lange, who was attending a junior chamber of commerce convention, paid $3,750.

His work here was interrupted by military service when he entered the U. S. Army in 1941.

During a tour of duty in Europe he served as director of the 14th Armored Division Band.

Returning in 1946 to Northeast, which was still a junior college, Lemert was made assistant professor of music, a position which he held until 1949 when he was appointed head of the Music Department.

When Northeast was expanded to a four-year status he was named head of the Fine Arts Department which was enlarged to include other fine arts in addition to music.

Dr. Lemert holds the bachelor of music degree from the American Conservatory of Music, the master of music from Vandercook College of Music, and the doctorate from the University of Texas. His graduate study also includes work done at George Peabody College, Barnard Art School, Germany, and the Army Music School, Ft. Myer, Va.

He is affiliated with Phi Delta Kappa, professional education music fraternity, Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, professional music fraternity, and Kappa Alpha, national social fraternity.

Lemert has served as director of the Twin Cities Symphony since its founding in 1952. He presently is an elder of the First Presbyterian Church, Monroe, and a member of the local Rotary Club.

Ike's Telegram Sends Sympathy For Victims

BATON ROUGE, July 27—President Eisenhower today sent a telegram to Gov. Earl Long, joining in the flag-lowering memorial to the dead of hurricane Audrey.

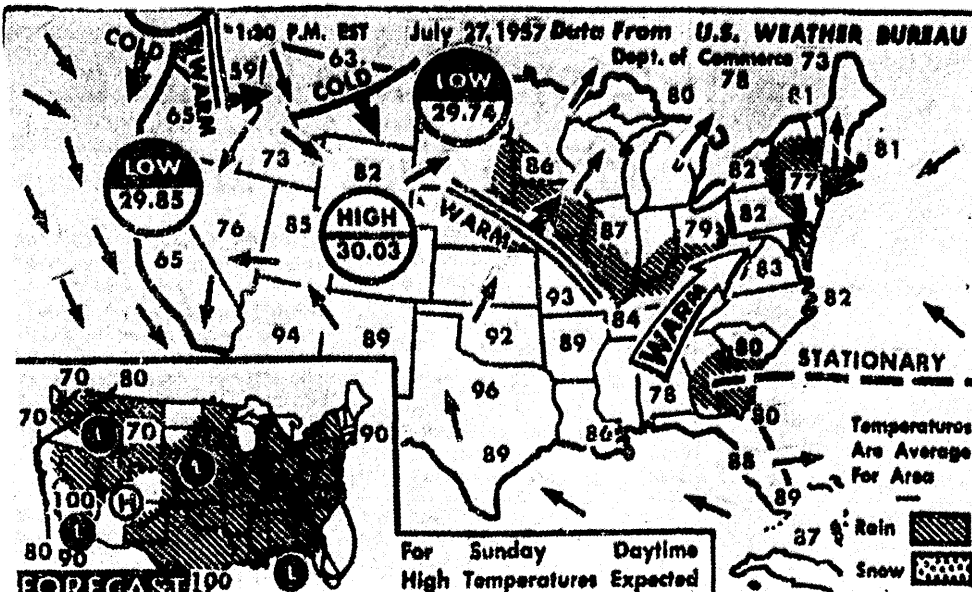

The telegram said: "As we join the people of Louisiana in remembrance of those who lost their lives in the recent hurricane, Mrs. Eisenhower and I extend deepest sympathy to the surviving members of their families."

"To our admiration for the courageous manner in which the Louisiana people met this terrible disaster, we add a fervent prayer that another such tragedy may never occur."

Gov. Long in replying to a charge from a Veterans of Foreign Wars member it would be improper to half-mast the U. S. flag, commented the telegram shows the president gave permission for the lowering.

SUCCEEDS HUMPHREY

Texan To Become Sec. Of Treasury

WASHINGTON, July 27 (UP)—Robert B. Anderson, 47-year-old Texas landlubber who steered the U. S. Navy into the atomic age, becomes Secretary of the Treasury Monday succeeding bruised but unbowed George M. Humphrey.

Humphrey, father of the Eisenhower "tight money" policy and called the most influential man in Washington after the President—resigned in May to return to his Ohio-Pennsylvania industrial empire.

Anderson, who has been working 10 hours a day in the treasury to learn his job, will take the oath in Eisenhower's office at 9 a.m. CST, in the presence of family, friends and officials.

Will Chart Own Course Responsibility for keeping the government's financial house in order will promptly shift to his shoulders.

At confirmation hearings before senators, the one-time Eisenhower Democrat, now a registered Republican, hinted he will chart his own course. He made clear he is not irrevocably tied to the tight money policy which caused Humphrey's major headaches. But he said that is in the wait-and-see future.

He did emphasize that his final accounting will be to the people. "I have made no commitments; I have been asked for none," he said. "and I would feel under no obligation to anyone, except to the people, in the discharge of my duties."

Brilliant Record

This was reminiscent of Anderson's attitude when he rose from Secretary of the Navy to Undersecretary of Defense after Eisenhower took office in 1953. He didn't know much about ships but he whipped the Navy brass into line when the President called for a "new look" in defense.

The idea was to streamline the war machine along atomic lines. This cut deeply into the Navy budget. But before Anderson was through the admirals were on his side. In the same breath, the Tex-

Liz Taylor Sobs In Pain At Hospital

NEW YORK, July 27 (UP)—Actress Elizabeth Taylor, sobbing with the pain of pregnancy complications today, raised her doctors' fears of a dangerously premature birth of her expected child.

Producer Mike Todd, the actress' third husband, said he was spending every moment at the bedside of his beautiful wife, who was rushed to a hospital Wednesday night with premature labor pains. The baby is due about Oct. 15, if the pregnancy runs its full course.

"She's in terrible pain," Todd said. "But unless it's a sheer outstanding emergency, they don't want to take the baby for two and a half weeks. It'll be several months and that could do it."

Todd said the doctors would confer on the crisis. If they decide Miss Taylor can bear up under the strain until about Aug. 15, they will take the child then by caesarean section, he said.

WAR FLAG

DELAWARE, Ohio (UP)—A giant flag that floated over the U. S. Navy cruiser Brooklyn during the Spanish-American War has been presented to the City of Delaware. The flag was donated by Walter S. Pollock, 92, who received it from his late brother, Capt. Edwin Taylor Pollock, a former officer on the ship.

FOR OVERTHROWING REDS

Castillo Armas Received Acclaim At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, July 27 (UP)—When Carlos Castillo Armas, slain Guatemalan president visited here in November, 1955, after a conference with President Eisenhower in Washington, he was given one of the most tumultuous celebrations in the history of the city.

Local, national and foreign clubs throughout the city gave Castillo Armas a hero's welcome and celebration during his two-day visit here. He had one of the largest personal followings in New Orleans of any Latin American head of state.

Castillo Armas, a slender, athletic-looking man, was an avid amateur boxer, and attended a Tulane football game while here. He toured the harbor and Audubon Park in addition to industrial plants.

Got City's Medals

During his visit, Castillo Armas was presented the city's medal for distinguished service, the International order of merit and a scroll making him an honorary citizen of New Orleans.

While in New Orleans, a Guatemalan newsman said of Castillo Armas, "This is the first time in the history of Guatemala a chief of state has left the country without an uprising of some serious trouble taking place at home."

Julio A. Merida, secretary of the Guatemalan consulate in New Orleans, said today that "democracy and justice" will continue in his country despite the assassination of the president.

Merida said, "The government founded by President Castillo Armas was so strong in truth and democratic principles that it will survive him, live on as a memorial to his vision."

"My country has lost, in this painful way, one of the greatest men in our history. President Castillo Armas was a man of fantastic integrity, a great leader. His loss is an enormous one."

The Guatemalan consul-general was on vacation from his post here when a guard shot down Castillo Armas in his Guatemala City presidential palace last night.

ECONOMISTS CONCERNED

Federal Cash Surplus Dips To Cause Inflation Scare

WASHINGTON, July 27 (UP)—The federal cash surplus is shrinking year-by-year, thereby reducing the governmental barrier against inflation.

The trend is visible in the "cash budget." This is not the regular budget sent to Congress each year by the President, but the tally sheet of all government payments and receipts.

One reason for the shrinkage is the Social Security System, the operations of which are not shown in the regular budget. After piling up surpluses every year since it began in 1937, Social Security will just about break even this year.

It will run a small deficit next year and a big deficit—perhaps 500 or 750 million dollars—in 1959.

Need Not Worry

This need not worry old-age pensioners. The system has a 23-billion-dollar accumulation of funds to ride on, and in 1960 a scheduled increase in Social Security taxes will more than restore the balance.

But the cash budget also reveals the disturbing fact that while Uncle Sam's total income has soared astonishingly, because of rapidly rising national income and profits, over-all federal spending has increased even more rapidly.

Cash receipts for fiscal 1958, the current government year which began July 1, are estimated as being nine billion dollars higher than in 1956. In the same two years cash spending will have climbed 11 billion dollars.

This will bring total cash outlays this year to about $83,600,000,000, while cash income may be around $76,100,000,000.

These figures, much larger than the conventional budget figures which prompted so much economy talk in Congress this summer, would leave a cash surplus of about 2½ billion dollars.

Billion Decline

This is one billion smaller than the estimated cash surplus for the year that ended June 30 and two billion dollars smaller than that for fiscal 1956.

Some economists have voiced concern over this downward trend, for a substantial cash surplus long has been considered to have an anti-inflationary effect.

It represents the actual amount by which the government's "take" from the public exceeds the amount it spends.

When the government is taking more from the taxpayers than it pays out—as it has been doing in recent years—it is cutting down the purchasing power of the public and, in theory at least, reducing the buying pressures which shove prices up.

Fear Voting Machinery To Be Impaired

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 27 (UP)—A group of state senators predicted today that voter registration machinery may break down in some Alabama counties if the civil rights bill pending in Congress becomes law.

The prospect of a federal court injunction to compel the county boards of registrars to add thousands of Negroes to the voting lists would make it difficult if not impossible to get board members to serve, the legislators agreed.

Consequently, they said, some counties, particularly the 13 where Negroes outnumber white residents, may be left without the machinery to register any new voters, white or Negro.

Are Appointed

Registrars are appointed by a board composed of the governor, state auditor and commissioner of agriculture. They serve four-year terms coinciding with the terms of those officials.

A member of the Madison County board, Mrs. Martha Witt Smith, said all three members of her board would "have to resign unless we get some protection."

Mrs. Smith, who is a reporter on the Huntsville Times and serves on the registration board as a part-time job, said the board there is concerned primarily over the threat of damage suits against the members.

"Nobody with an income or property or potential income or even a pension could afford to take the chance of losing everything he has," she explained.

"Unless we get some protection, no one could afford to serve on the board except paupers or those who are willing to register everyone who walks in regardless of qualifications."

Madison County, in north Alabama, doesn't have the heavy proportion of Negro population that confronts other counties in the southern part of the state.

Won't Drop All

Mrs. Smith said, "We have registered applicants for voting regardless of race. But we are not willing to abandon all qualifications for voting under the threat of a federal court injunction or lawsuit."

The Senate Judiciary Committee has approved a bill to authorize the state government to assume the financial liability in the event of civil rights damage suits. But some committee members have questioned its constitutionality.

The amendment which guides the registrars on qualifications says prospective voters must be of "good character" and must answer a written questionnaire to the satisfaction of the registration officials.

But even if the registrars are given immunity from damage suits, some legislators said they anticipate difficulty getting board members to serve.

Rebels Attack Filipinos On Patrol Friday

MANILA, July 27 (UP)—Communist Huk rebels attacked a government patrol Friday in the first armed clash since a 24,000-man government force set out to crush the insurgents, it was announced today.

Constabulary Chief Brig. Gen. Manuel F. Cabal, coordinator of the huge military operation in the mountains of northern Luzon, reported "several" Huk wounded. There was no mention of government losses.

Holed Up

The Huk attacked a detachment of the Filipino 2nd Battalion combat team at Atimonan, a town in Quezon province where the Huk leader, Dr. Jesus Lava, is believed to be holed up.

Cabal said field dispatches reported the Huk fled when the troops closed in. Weapons, ammunition and personal belongings were seized, he said.

The government was sweeping through the rugged terrain with 20 battalions of troops backed by Philippine Air Force planes and Naval patrol boats operating off the east coast to prevent the Huk from fleeing to nearby islands.

Began Week Ago

The government operation began one week ago at the expiration of a 30-day amnesty period during which an estimated 2,000 Huk and other dissidents surrendered.

Argentina Ends Heated Campaigning

BUENOS AIRES, July 27 (UP)—Argentina's heated campaign cooled off tonight—the eve of an election to choose a constituent assembly with the job of establishing a democratic government.

Peronists are urging followers of ousted dictator Juan D. Peron to cast blank ballots.

The only oratory left is to come tonight from Provisional President Pedro Aramburu who has ruled this rich nation since Peron was deposed in September 1955. Gen. Aramburu is neither a candidate nor connected with any political party. His aim in speaking at the last minute is to urge nine million voters to cast their ballots.

Would Cut Power

Aramburu called the election to establish a legislative body to rewrite the constitution of 1853, which replaced Peron's of 1949. Specifically, the rewriting would entail guarantees against dictatorships by limiting executive powers of the president.

This rewriting would start with the convening of the new 205-member assembly on Sept. 1. Aramburu has set February as the time for the presidential election. After that election, his government would step down.

But this election will do more than set up the assembly. It will show just how popular Aramburu's ideas are with the people.

It also will show how much support radical leader Arturo Frondizi has. He is the only announced candidate for president. He opposes Aramburu policies. Frondizi, contending the government is using this election as a means to advance its own "political and economic designs," has promised that if his delegates win control of the assembly they will dissolve it and call for an immediate presidential election.

POSSIBLE EPIDEMIC

Plans To Fight Against Oriental Flue Announced

CHICAGO, July 27 (UP)—A nation-wide preparedness program to combat a possible epidemic of Oriental flu in the United States was announced today by the American Medical Assn.

Working with the U.S. Public Health Service, the AMA launched a special project to alert the nation's physicians—and the public—to the dangers of any epidemic of the Asiatic influenza.

The AMA acted after outbreaks of the Oriental flu in several cities, but stressed that so far there is "no immediate cause for alarm."

The Oriental flu is reported to be caused by a new virus and has been relatively mild. It usually has been marked by a short period of fever, from three to four days, and sometimes by sore throat, aching, a dry cough and other symptoms of typical influenza.

No verified deaths from the disease have been reported in the United States, the AMA said. Several drug manufacturers are producing a vaccine to combat the strain of flu virus from the Far East.

Outbreaks of the Oriental flu have been reported at a Grinnell, Iowa, youth meeting early in July, at the campsite of the recent Boy Scout jamboree near Valley Forge, Pa., and among Navy and civilian personnel at San Diego, Calif. Some other cities have reported cases.

AT CAMERON

Crash Program, Donated Labor To Rebuild Homes

WASHINGTON, July 27 (UP)—A crash program to build new homes for families hardest hit by Hurricane Audrey in Cameron Parish, La., was announced today by the Red Cross and AFL-CIO Community Service Department.

Under the unprecedented plan as described by Robert C. Edson, Red Cross disaster services director, volunteer members of the AFL-CIO building trades from Louisiana and east Texas will work at the job in the storm-wrecked communities of Cameron, Creole and Grand Cheniere the next three or four weekends. Building materials for the project will be provided by the Red Cross.

From 150 to 250 skilled craftsmen will take part. Teams of about 35 will work on each new house. Each team is expected to build a completely new home in two days.

Trade union locals contributed money for transportation and maintenance of the crews. The men will be taken to the three towns in chartered buses and their food will be cooked and served by Red Cross canteen workers. They will be housed in tents near the construction sites by the Louisiana National Guard.

White School Plea Rejected in Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 27 (UP)—The Little Rock school board, which plans limited high school integration this fall, today rejected a segregationist plea for at least one all-white school.

At the same time the board said social functions which would involve race mixing will not be held.

The lengthy statements were the long-promised answers to questions by attorney Amis Guthridge and the Rev. Wesley Pruden, a Baptist minister.

Guthridge had proposed that the board rent a building for students desiring to attend integrated classes, leaving the city's three high schools either all-white or all-Negro.

The board replied that maintenance of a "segregated school" mainly violates the decree of the United States District Court.

Federal courts have upheld the school board's gradual integration plan and the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People has withdrawn its earlier legal demand for total and immediate integration.

Pruden's questions dealt with the social consequences of planned race mixing.

The Baptist pastor had asked seven questions, ranging from whether Negro boys would be permitted "to solicit white girls for dances" to whether "tender love scenes" in dramatic classes would be acted on a mixed racial basis.

The board said in reference to the dramatic classes that "the situation pictured in this question cannot arise. Teachers can and will avoid any such problem."

American Ship Delivers Wheat To Red Poland

GYDANIA, Poland, July 27 (UP)—An American liberty ship unloaded a cargo of wheat at this Baltic port, but chief dockside interest was in something else—American cigarettes.

The ship—the 9,000-ton Bucknell Victory—brought the wheat under the American-Polish credits agreement signed last month. Other U.S. ships are heading here with corn, cotton and other farm goods.

The vessel tied up here Tuesday after a 14-day crossing from Baton Rouge, La., and for all but one of its 43-man crew this was the first look at a Communist-controlled country. The only member who had been here before was the ship's cook. He came in 1954 with a load of Red Cross supplies.

When two of the seamen first stepped from the ship, they were stopped by a green-hatted dock guard.

"You taking any cigarettes ashore?" the guard asked. They said yes. "Fine," said the guard, "perhaps you can spare me a pack."

Find Prosperity

On shore the Bucknell Victory's seamen found Gdynia and its twin port of Gdansk (Danzig) active and seemingly prosperous. This stemmed from a massive rebuilding effort and from the irrepressible trader instinct of Polish seaport peoples.

The streets are full of American cars, purchased by Polish seamen in Belgium for a few hundred dollars, brought here as unofficial deck cargo and sold for four times the outlay—and sometimes even more—to taxi drivers and government officials.

All this came as somewhat of a surprise to the American sailors, but they found some things not so surprising.

"The mail delivery is lousy," said the ship's skipper, Capt. Thomas Mazzella of New Orleans. "and I tried a night in a local hotel and that was lousy too. But the people here are giving 100 per cent cooperation to get the ship turned around and I'm writing my company (Central Gulf Steamship Corp.) and telling them they can send more ships in without worrying."

Decomposed Body Of Man Discovered

A Bible was found near the body. The body was identified by the man's son, Nolan Christian, from rings and clothing.

Police said the cause of death was undetermined. The man had been missing since he wandered from a bus stop after attending church services in downtown Dallas June 23.

He had served on the bank's board of directors for several years preceding his election to the presidency and had also been cashier at the bank. Smith was a civic leader in Chatham and a former police juror from ward five. He was a member of the Pleasant Hill Baptist Church near Chatham.

He is survived by his widow Mrs. Bessie Smith, Chatham, and one brother Ode C. Smith of West Monroe.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Zoar Methodist Church with the Rev. Arns Smith, pastor of the Downsville Methodist Church, officiating. Interment will be in the Pleasant Hill Cemetery under the direction of Kilpatrick's Funeral Home of Ruston.

'Kisser' Suspect Held By Police At Passaic, N. J.

PASSAIC, N.J., July 27 (UP)—Police today questioned a "nervous" and unattractive 19-year-old youth about a series of kisses stolen from unsuspecting women and girls as they slept in their homes.

The youth, whom police think is the culprit who began bestowing unwanted kisses June 6, was arrested early today near the scene of the escapades.

Police refused to identify him because they said they did not want "to embarrass" the family in whose home he lives free of charge.

The latest victim of the kisser was 13-year-old Judith Bodo. Judith told police the man hastily retreated through an open window after she turned on the light.

Another victim was 35-year-old Mrs. Marie Kardasz, who told police she first thought her husband was bussing her before she moved her arm and felt a strange head.

The youth, described as an epileptic medically discharged after six months in the Army, denied that he was the kisser. He said he was taking a walk at the time of his arrest because his illness prevented him from sleeping well.

Two-Tractor Mishap Injures West Monroyan

A West Monroe man suffered a fractured leg yesterday afternoon, when a caterpillar tractor which he was pulling with another tractor went wild, climbed up onto the towing tractor, and injured him.

Brought to St. Francis hospital by Gay's ambulance service of Delhi was Paul Johnston of 2307 Swiss street, West Monroe. Johnston was working on road construction on Highway 80, just east of Delhi, when the mishap occurred.

He stated that he tried to jump from the tractor when he saw what was happening, but the "cat" pinned his leg down. He was rushed to the Delhi clinic, where he was given emergency treatment, then brought to Monroe.

House May Pass Bill To Prevent 2nd Girard Case

WASHINGTON, July 27 (UP)—The House appeared likely today to pass a heavily watered-down bill designed to prevent another "Girard case" in the foreign trial of American servicemen.

However, proposals for a major revision of the international status of forces agreement on trial and punishment of U. S. troops overseas were losing ground in the face of stiff administration opposition.

Log Jam

A compromise bill, if it clears the House, will still face in the Senate a log-jam of legislation caused by the lengthy civil rights debate. Its chances of Senate approval before adjournment remain slim.

Rep. Carl Vinson (D-Ga.), veteran chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said he favored a slight change in U. S. administrative procedures under the foreign trial arrangements. Unless some compromise bill is approved by the committee, he said, "we may be confronted on the floor with something that could cause a lot of friction with our allies."

He was referring to warnings by President Eisenhower and defense leaders that America's allies would not permit U. S. troops on their soil if this country tried to claim jurisdiction over every crime committed by its overseas forces.

Chairman L. H. Fountain (D-N. C.) of the House subcommittee on intergovernmental relations said the Washington sessions will lay the groundwork for further hearings to be held after Congress adjourns in various regions of the country.

Seek Views

In the regional hearings, the subcommittee will seek the views of individual governors, mayors, county officials and others. Witnesses at the Washington hearings will be federal officials and spokesmen for organized groups interested in federal-state relations.

The opening witness Monday will be Meyer Kestbaum, special assistant to the President who headed the commission on inter-governmental relations which already has made a study of the problem.

Named Committee

Eisenhower has since named a committee of federal officials, including three cabinet members, to work with a 10-man committee of state governors in drawing up a specific program for the return of some federal functions and revenue sources to the states. Spokesmen for the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, the AFL-CIO, farm groups, the council of State Governments, the U. S. Conference of Mayors, the International City Managers Association and others will testify at the Washington hearings.

The subcommittee did not announce specific dates or places for its regional hearings.

McCormack Urged To Fight Against Aid Reduction

WASHINGTON, July 27 (UP)—Democratic Leader John McCormack today urged President Eisenhower to serve notice will "fight" members of his party, if necessary, to prevent unsafe cuts in foreign aid.

McCormack asserted that "peak leadership" and the "shift" stands taken by Eisenhower the school bill and other re-issues have jeopardized congressional approval of a foreign program large enough to "effectively combat communism."

He urged the President to summon congressional leaders to the White House for a conference on foreign aid.

No One Knew

The veteran Massachusetts lawyer said in a prepared statement that the President has failed or refused on a number of occasions to come to grips with his own party. He said no one knew where Eisenhower stood on the school aid construction bill, which was defeated by public votes on the House floor.

The president cannot vacillate of take chances on this (foreign aid) bill," McCormack said. "If necessary, he should be willing to fight with members of his own party and cooperate more effectively with the leadership of the Democratic party."

McCormack spoke out in advance of a Senate-House negotiations to work out a compromise authorization bill setting a top limit on the funds Congress can appropriate for the foreign aid program for which the President requested $3,864,410,000.

Made Predictions

McCormack made two predictions:—That the compromise authorization bill will be "much nearer" the House bill, which cut the quest by $27,800,000, than to the Senate bill which cut it only $27,300,000.

That Congress, when it takes up a subsequent foreign aid appropriation bill, will make a "considerable" reduction, shably up in several hundred millions of dollars, below the amount finally agreed on in the authorization bill, unless the president takes a firm stand.

BLASTING CAP

Evidence Of Explosion In Air Tragedy Found

BARSTOW, Calif., July 27 (UP)—A blasting cap and evidence of a small explosion were found on an airliner from which a heavily insured passenger was presumed blown when a "mysterious blast" occurred in flight Thursday, the FBI said today.

The body of the passenger, jeweler Saul F. Binstock, 62, was found in a desolate desert area late Friday and was undergoing postmortem examination to determine the cause of death and whether any traces of explosive powder could be found on it.

The body was reported generally intact except for a mangled left hand with parts of it torn off.

A Jagged Hole

The twin engine Western Air Line Convair, with a jagged hole torn in its fuselage at the lavatory section where Binstock had been at the time, made a safe emergency landing with 12 other passengers.

John F. Malone, agent in charge of the Los Angeles FBI office, said an unexploded blasting cap was found in the lavatory, with what appeared to be burned toilet tissue and evidence indicating "the possibility of a small explosion."

He refused to speculate on the significance of the discoveries.

Binstock, of Canoga Park, Calif., had insured himself for $125,000 with two flight policies, one of them containing a suicide clause, before leaving Burbank, Calif., for an excursion flight to Las Vegas, Nev. He entered the lavatory soon after takeoff from Las Vegas on the return trip and the blast occurred 47 minutes following takeoff as the plane flew at 10,000 feet over the California desert.

An official of the insurance firm whose subsidiary wrote the policy which did not contain the suicide clause said any attempts to collect benefits would be resisted and the company was "prepared to defend any claim on air travel policies where suicide or an apparent suicide exists." Maxwell Klum, chairman of the board of Mercury International Co., said no claim had yet been filed on the policy issued by the subsidiary, the Security Life and Accident Co.

Binstock's body was undergoing examination by investigators, including the San Bernardino County sheriff's chief chemist, at a mortuary here in an attempt to determine the exact cause of death and circumstances surrounding the explosion which presumably blew him through the wall of the plane's lavatory.

A deputy coroner said the missing parts from Binstock's mangled left hand had been found but did not disclose how, and the investigators said they could not determine immediately the significance of the damaged left hand — whether the damage was suffered in a blast on the jagged metal of the hole torn in the plane's side or when the body struck the rocky desert ground. "Something" was reported on the left hand by a spokesman at the O'Donnell mortuary who said laboratory tests probably would have to be made to determine what it was.

Conference On Education Slated Here

Northeast State will sponsor a one-day conference on education of the mentally handicapped child, Saturday, announced Dean William M. Smith, dean of the college and head of teacher education.

The meeting, which will open at 10 a.m. on Monday, August 5, is open to parents, teachers, supervisors, and other school administrators who are interested in this particular phase of training. The afternoon session is scheduled at 2 p.m., and both meetings will be held in the faculty lounge of the Administration Building.

Dr. Herbert Goldsmith, of the University of Illinois, will be chief consultant at the conference. Dr. Goldsmith is affiliated with the Institute for Research on the Exceptional Child which is connected with the internationally known Kirk Clinic.

Emphasize Trends

During the morning session, Goldsmith will emphasize trends in education of the mentally handicapped. The afternoon conference will be devoted to a discussion of curricula and methods for special classes designed for these handicapped children.

The speaker's talks at both meetings will be followed by question and answer periods. These phases of the program are planned to offer additional practicality to the sessions, Dean Smith explained.

The conference is made possible by Northeast's participation in funds provided by Act 499 of the 1956 State Legislature which allocated money for state colleges to train teachers for special education.

Northeast State is assigned to the particular project of preparing teachers for children who are mentally handicapped, crippled, or who have serious health problems. Under the present program, teachers may certify at Northeast to accept position in this special field of education.

Senate Counsel Raps High Court For Activities

NEWARK, N. J., July 27 (UP)—The Senate internal security subcommittee's chief counsel charged the Supreme Court today with "aggressive activity" that threatens the internal security functions of Congress, the FBI and government agencies.

Robert Morris said the court's action in the case of labor leader John T. Watkins was an "unbridled effort by the judiciary to move into the Legislature's domain."

He referred to the court's reversal of the conviction of the midwest labor leader for contempt of Congress, Watkins had refused to tell the House un-American Activities Committee the names of persons he knew to be Communists. The court ruled that Watkins' privacy had been violated in a congressional effort at exposure for exposure's sake. Morris took issue with the court's ruling in a speech as a new anti-Communist television program called "Ten 1960s" ending long before he got into politics. Judd said the bill to let him wear a Greek medal was introduced without his knowledge and "if they want to stop following decorations it's all right with me."

IN HEARINGS

Committee To Ask If Hoffa Used Underworld

WASHINGTON, July 27 (UP)—The Senate Rackets Committee will ask in hearings starting Wednesday whether James R. Hoffa, crown prince of the Teamsters' Union, used the underworld muscle of John Dioguardi in a bid to control a lucrative segment of the trucking industry.

Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) announced this today. His statement left no doubt that Hoffa, acquitted on government charges that he tried to plant a spy on its staff, has become a major target for the rackets committee.

Interested. McClellan also disclosed that the committee is interested in the role played by a New York "narcotics racket figure" — Anthony "Tony Duck" Corallo — in what McClellan described as Hoffa's successful attempt to take over New York City's Joint Council of Teamsters.

Rooney Raps Allegations By Senator Morse

WASHINGTON, July 27 (UP)—Rep. Rooney (D-N.Y.) said today he doesn't need any "policing" by Sen. Morse (D-Ore) on whether to accept a foreign government decoration.

Rooney was joined by Reps. Passman (D-La.) and Judd (R-Minn.) in challenging Morse's statement that acceptance of a foreign medal tends to cast suspicion on a Congress member unless he abstains from legislation affecting the government involved.

Rooney is chairman of an appropriations subcommittee handling State Department funds. Passman heads an appropriations subcommittee about to write a foreign aid money bill. Judd is a senior House foreign affairs committee member.

All three are included in a series of recent bills authorizing Congress members to accept foreign decorations. House approval of the bills by the unusual procedure of bypassing all House committees has set off backstage rumblings on Capitol Hill.

Passman Comments

Morse brought the issue into the open after the Senate Foreign Relations Committee declined to act, pending further information from the State Department, on six new House-passed bills naming 11 House members.

Morse told the Senate July 18: "I think the policy is bad, and that it ought to be stopped" because it "violates the spirit and intent" of the constitution.

Passman said he didn't know why the Greeks should want to give him a medal, since he said he has fought to slash every foreign aid bill that came along. He light the reason may have been his speeches before Greek-American groups, which he said he was making long before he got into politics. Judd said the bill to let him wear a Greek medal was introduced without his knowledge and "if they want to stop following decorations it's all right with me."

KTBS Bought By McLendon

SHREVEPORT, La., July 27 (UP)—E. Newton Wray, president and general manager of KTBS, Inc., today announced the proposed sale of KTBS-AM-FM radio station to Gordon B. McLendon of Dallas, Tex., for $200,000.

Wray said Federal Communications Commission approval has been requested. He said the station was sold to enable his firm to "devote complete and undivided attention to the development" of KTBS-TV in Shreveport.

KTBS went on the air in 1922 with the call letters KDAN. It was acquired by Wray and others from the Shreveport Times in 1943.

McLendon was president of the Liberty Broadcasting System, which operated from 1947 to 1952. The McLendon Investments Corp., of which Gordon B. McLendon is president, owns radio stations KLF in Dallas, KLIT in Houston and KTSA in San Antonio.

Mrs. McLendon, Gay, is the daughter of former Louisiana Gov. James A. Noe of Monroe, who owns KNOE-TV and KNOE-AM-FM in Monroe and WNOE-AM-FM in New Orleans.

U. S. Expresses Official Shock At Armas' Death

WASHINGTON, July 27 (UP)—President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles led official Washington today in mourning the death of President Carlos Castillo Armas of Guatemala as a loss "to the entire free world."

Castillo Armas, staunch friend of the United States, succeeded three years ago in rescuing Guatemala from a pro-Communist regime.

Eisenhower, in a statement released by the White House, said "the tragic death of president Carlos Castillo Armas... is a great loss to his own nation and to the entire free world."

Dulles, in a message to Guatemala's foreign minister, Jorge Skinner Klee, expressed the same sentiment.

"The assassination of President Castillo Armas has profoundly shocked my country," the secretary said. "His death is a loss to the entire free world."

Both Eisenhower and Dulles praised the fight Castillo Armas waged against communism.

The President, noting that the Guatemalan chief executive was "a personal friend," said that under Castillo Armas "the threat of Communist domination of his country was repulsed and Guatemala became a valuable member of the organization of American states."

YANKEES END 3-GAME LOSING STREAK AT TIGERS' EXPENSE; BOLT REPULSES HAWKINS THREAT TO HOLD LEAD IN EASTERN

Coleman Socks Triple In 9th To Save Game

NEW YORK, July 27 (UP)—Jerry Coleman tripled with one out in the ninth inning and came home on Tony Kubek's squeeze bunt today to give the New York Yankees a 4-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers and snap the World Champions' three-game losing streak.

An old timers' day crowd of 44,184, which had watched former Yankee stars headed by Joe DiMaggio edge Tiger stars of yesterday, 1-0, in a two-inning preliminary, saw Kubek surprise the Detroit infield with the bunt that earned reliever Bob Grim his ninth victory of the season.

Tommy Enters Final 18 With 2-Stroke Edge

Bolt went into the final 18 holes tomorrow with 205 to 207 for Hawkins. Doug Ford of Mahopac, N. Y., dropped back from Bolt a stroke with a 70 and 208.

PILOT RELEASED WITH PHILS
CHICAGO, July 27 (UP)—Manager Mayo Smith said today his Philadelphia Phillies must provide more of "those pleasant surprises"—this time in increased batting power—if they're to remain in pennant contention. The soft-spoken pilot said he's generally satisfied with his club's progress at this stage of the National League scramble, considering his boy's selections.

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

If the current edition of American Legion Junior baseball in Monroe never wins another game, we can't see where anyone has any complaints.

Manager Ralph Sims' boys have reached beyond expectations of their most solid supporters. From a club that in May wasn't expected to repeat as champion in its own district, the McCain-Richards outfit here in July is posted for the state semifinal playoffs within the week.

Not since such one-time youngsters as Roland "Babe" Adcock, Billy Hardeste, Clifford Johnson, Glen Walker, Joe Williamson, W. C. Tucker, Roland Brown, Sidney Gill, Will D. King, Aldin "Butch" Martin, Bill Bickham, and Roy White, among a few others, played for Monroe's first American Legion Junior club around 30 years ago in the late 1920s has a Monroe combination proved so surprising. In the past we either knew we had a strong contender or a weak club and that was that. This club has been both.

Back in May, Manager Sims, the redheaded police juror with strong athletic inclinations, couldn't see his boys hardly in the first division. Not an infielder left from his fine '56 team. Not an outfielder, except a pitcher when not pitching. All he had to brag about was pitching—Freddie Southerland, Jim Altick, Louis Kincaid, and L. M. Welch—especially the veterans Southerland, Altick, and Kincaid. But Sims had reasons to fear weak batting and uncertain fielding.

It looked like the dope was going according to predictions when Monroe was tapped for losses in the first three games of the season, but somewhere along the route, the team began to rely on excellent pitching and await the breaks, pouncing on them at every opportunity to snatch games out of the fire. The McCain-Richards stayed in the race, gained ground in the latter stages, and finally, by one-run margins—actually 1 to 0—won the last two games of the regular schedule to tie Ruston for first in the district race. Next Sims' crew won two straight district semi-final games from Columbia and two of three finals from Ruston to again nail down the Fifth District title.

When the Monroe boys swept two games from Shreveport the past week to enter the state semifinals against Alexandria, they drew praise from all sources. Sims was as happy as a ten-year-old with a Shetland pony. And a lot of Monroe Legionnaires had reasons to appear a little proud before visiting delegates during the course of the state Legion convention here.

L. J. Fox, the Ruston Legionnaire and Louisiana Tech faculty member who has seen every Legion team ever produced in this section of the state, calls the Monroe pitching some of the finest he has ever seen. "They're major league prospects," he says. The pitching looks every bit as good as the hurling Art Swanson, Wayne Causey, Gene Barham et als used to give "Woody" Boyles, who had stronger hitting, for his state championship clubs here.

The club is without the services of Dan Keith, who missed the Shreveport series because of an operation last Monday that will make him miss the rest of the campaign, and Fred Peters injured his right wrist in the Shreveport final and may or may not be ready for his usual play when the Alexandria series opens.

Lads like Julius "Doolie" Haddad (his pop is a one-time Legion Junior and former Neville High star), Francis Genusa, Lanny Johnson, Tommy Crowe, Ronnie McNabb, Larry Tilley, Neil McDonald, and Bill Rambin round out the club behind Southerland, Altick, Kincaid, and Welch.

Without a .300 hitter in the crowd, Genusa leads the club batting with .295. Haddad is runner-up with .290, and catcher Crowe ranks third with .285. The latter is the brother of Dickie Crowe, who starred in Legion ball the last few years, and another of the same clan is on the way—Harry, who has just made the Babe Ruth All-Stars.

Monroe and Alexandria open their semi-final series this week. Lafayette is in the other half of the semis against the winner of the New Orleans-Baton Rouge series which was to have been decided in their third game last night.

PURKEY WINS 10TH

Pirates Snap Red Bird String, 4-2

ST. LOUIS, July 27 (UP)—Bob Purkey scattered eight hits and posted his 10th victory today as the Pittsburgh Pirates stopped a three-game St. Louis Cardinals winning streak, 4-2.

The Cards remained in second place in the hot National League race but dropped a game and a half behind Milwaukee.

Purkey, a 28-year-old right-hander having his best year since he was with New Orleans in 1953, showed a good fast ball and near-perfect control as he struck out three Redbirds and allowed no walks.

The Pirates banged out four hits for three runs in the second inning off 40-year-old Murry Dickson, who lost his third game against five victories.

Congress Digs For Louisville Disposal Dope

TAMPA, Fla., July 27 (UP)—The House anti-trust subcommittee is "carefully considering" evidence of conduct in restraint of free enterprise in the disposal of the Louisville baseball team's franchise last year, it was reported today.

Phil O'Hara, public relations counsel for the Louisville team's former owners, said he was notified this morning by Subcommittee Chairman Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.) that the congressional group is checking allegations made by the Cuban syndicate that formerly owned the team.

O'Hara said he expects his interests to be called to testify as soon as the subcommittee returns to looking into charges that baseball violates the anti-trust statutes.

O'Hara represents a Cuban group which lost its Louisville franchise allegedly because it did not pay its debts. The club was declared in receivership and the American Association gave the franchise to a group of Louisville citizens.

The Cubans, headed by President Victor G. Monreal, maintained they were "willing and able" to pay their debts. They charged that their assets in Louisville were seized illegally by directors of the American Association, which they charged are controlled by major league clubs.

O'Hara said the Cubans' suit in Kentucky State courts was withdrawn when it was decided to turn over the evidence to the subcommittee.

Ted Ford, supervisor of river and basin studies for the Louisiana Wildlife and Fisheries Commission, will be the principal speaker at the Ouachita Wildlife Unit's annual fish fry Tuesday night at 7 o'clock at the American Legion home here.

HODGINS SNAPS WRIST IN FALL
Jim Hodgins, former Tulane football end and in the Rose Bowl of 1932, and for ten years coach at Ouachita Parish High School before his retirement a little over a year ago, was nursing a fractured right wrist last night as the result of a fall at home.

Hodgins, member of the Ouachita faculty who has spent the summer working on his master's degree, was trimming hedges at his home yesterday while standing on a stepladder. One side of the ladder, it was reported, sunk in soft earth, suddenly pitching Hodgins off balance. His wrist was broken as he used his arm to check his fall.

He spent last night at Wright-Bendel Clinic but is due to be dismissed today.

ANN REGAN

PEGGY ALLEN VS. ANN REGAN

Lady Grapplers Highlight Tomorrow's Kallio Card

A lady wrestling match featuring gorgeous Peggy Allen highlights a three main event card at Kallio's Arena tomorrow night. Peggy meets California lass Ann Regan in a one hour limit, two falls to win match.

The two other bouts on the card, also one hour or less affairs with a pair of falls needed to win, are Frank Hurley vs. Earl Guess and George Curtis vs. Mr. X. Sailor Parker will referee all the matches.

Miss Allen, a flaming red head who gave up motion pictures for the wrestling game, has appeared in Monroe before as referee of the 5 girl wrestling royal here several weeks ago.

A native of Bluefield, W. Va., Peggy finished high school and attended college for a while before going to New York for a modeling career. A movie producer spotted her and offered her a screen contract but the buxom babe turned him down for the siren's call of wrestling and became a sensation the first time she climbed through the ropes.

Sometimes called the most beautiful girl in wrestling, Peggy spends most of her spare time at her one hobby, designing. She designs most of her wardrobe and also some of her jackets for the ring.

Miss Allen's opponent Ann Regan is also reputed to be quite a looker. From Los Angeles, she's perfectly capable of taking care of herself inside the ropes too.

Earl Guess, Jackson, Mississippi's favorite grappling son, makes another trip to Monroe for his match with the current Louisiana heavyweight champion, Frank Hurley. The tall wrestler took part in two consecutive grappling shows here a month or so ago, losing to Hurley on one occasion if our memory serves us correctly.

Hurley, the Sydney, Australia villain, is getting to be an old hand in the local arena. He's been wrestling here almost every Monday night for over three months, and he's won practically all of his matches. He's nobody's darling but he's still wearing the championship belt despite all the heroes who've tried to take it away.

Another guy they love to hate, Mr. X, meets a capable opponent in the popular George Curtis of the vicksburg clan. Fresh from a swift victory over Nelson Royal in last week's feature, the man from parts unknown rates a shower of jeers and paper cups every time he crawls through the ropes but he's had a good record here and is a tough cookie to beat.

Curtis, as he usually does, will give way several pounds to his fat opponent. He's used to that however, and puts up a good fight no matter what the odds.

The night's wrestlers will flip a coin to decide which match will go on first. Whichever one it is, it'll start at 8:15 with the doors opening at 7 o'clock.

WERTZ, WOODLING SLUG

Red Sox Fall To Cleveland, 7-2

BOSTON, July 27 (UP)—Gene Woodling and Vic Wertz came through with the big hits today to lead the Cleveland Indians to a 7-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox while once-beaten Ray Narleski hurled a seven-hitter for his seventh win.

Davis Leading Homer Hitter In Big 8 Loop

A Donagett lost ten points from his league-leading batting average of .347 but still tops the Big Eight League with a healthy .308. Jackie Davis continues to be the runner-up hitter with .290.

Davis, Minden Red Bird star, has taken over the home run crown from Bernice's Lamar Drummond. Davis clouted two against Bastrop Thursday night to lead Drummond and Homer's Donagett, 10 to 8.

In the pitching department, Monroe Mitchell of Bernice was able to protect his perfect 4-0 record from last week. Mitchell pitched a sensational ball as a reliever in the 2-1 win over Springfield Thursday night.

Jim Pickett, also of Bernice, is still the loop's top winner with a 7-2 record. Minden's ace, Don Pressley, is close behind with a 6-1 mark and Pat Centille of Springfield has 5 wins against a pair of losses. Homer's Charles Ruggs is 4-2 for the season. Bill Causser of Ruston and Minden's Milton Speake are undefeated with 2-0 records.

BRINGING A DAWN OF DEATH

Hurricane Audrey Swirled Out Of Gulf A Month Ago

(Editors note: One month ago hurricane Audrey roared into Louisiana from the Gulf of Mexico, smashing the coastlands of Southwest Louisiana with a staggering blow. Associated Press newsman James McLean, who covered the first awful week after the tragedy, returned to the scene to report on Cameron's struggle for survival.)

By JAMES MCLEAN

CAMERON, La., July 27 (AP)—A month ago today pitiless hurricane Audrey whirled out of the Gulf of Mexico, bringing a dawn of death along 70 miles of isolated coastline.

The dead and tears are gone; the heartache and wreckage of the vicious hurricane remain.

With the health problem cleared up, Sheriff O. B. Carter urged survivors living elsewhere to come back and help the quickening struggle toward a new life.

"It's a big, big job," he sighed.

Hurricane Audrey thundered inland over low marshlands, sweeping to death hundreds of men, women and children in a savage hell of tidal water and shrieking wind. The toll of dead and missing has climbed above 530.

The first trickle of tent shelters has appeared—the first promise of rebuilding.

Although civil defense crews are still reducing the rubble, trucks laden with timber, roofing and freshly crenelated power poles are replacing the earlier rush of medical supplies, food and blankets.

Families Return

Cars are bringing the first families back to Cameron. Some families are staying here, others are commuting daily between Cameron and Lake Charles, 30 miles inland, to man mops and scrubbing brushes.

Starting next week Sheriff Carter said, the wallboard-and-tent shelters provided by the Federal Housing Administration will grow at the rate of 20 or 30 a day. In less than a month, he expects 600 to 800 spread across lower Cameron Parish. The Red Cross is shipping in all furnishings.

"It's been a month since this tragedy hit us," Carter said. "Now it's up to the men to realize the emergency is over. We've got to do everything we can to assist ourselves if we expect more assistance from outside."

A coastal town of some 3,000 before Audrey, Cameron was the center of destruction. Some closely clustered homes, however, escaped major damage.

Few Skeleton Houses

From Cameron eastward 15 miles along the coastal road to Creole, and onward to Grand Cheniere, a few skeleton houses stand. Most houses have vanished, leaving only bare foundations to tell a silent story.

The white-haired sheriff, who directed the grim task of rescue in the first days of shock, glanced out his courthouse window and murmured, "They know it will take a long time to get back to normal. They may joke a little now, but not much. It will take a long time for them to recover emotionally."

"The health menace has been removed," Carter said. "Health authorities have opened the way for families to come down here and live temporarily in tent shelters."

"Every day a resident stays away now is a day lost in rebuilding. Some of the survivors are waiting time slip by. We must rebuild, we can't live in tents next winter. Everyone sleeping away from Cameron should start coming back and help Civil Defense workers clean up. Those who remain away are just living in the past."

The hurricane scene is open five days a week and sightseers are so frequent the crush forces roadblocks on weekends.

Dr. Cecil Clark, the doctor-hero who worked tirelessly despite the agony of losing three children, plans to reopen his little Cameron clinic the second week in August. It still faces grim ruin on the main street, but his floors have been scrubbed bright.

"The majority of people will be back," he said. "Most of them have had families here for generations. They have no thought of going elsewhere."

No Power Lines

While the 30 miles across the marshes to Lake Charles are empty of any power lines, with hundreds of poles flattened, an emergency power plant is generating a pulse of activity. New power poles have been tumbled along the highway, waiting to be placed in service.

Many of the family heads are patiently waiting for Red Cross funds to help rebuild. There are hundreds of applications. And insurance adjusters work ceaselessly.

Roland Primeaux, the busy deputy parish clerk, said many Cameron dwellers can't speak English and have been running into difficulty with their Red Cross forms. "We are helping them."

Three blocks away, the Salvation Army has a clothing shelter hastily built of salvaged lumber. Next to it the volunteers are constructing two new sheds, first new structures in town.

Women often entered the clothing shelter during the first weeks in tattered rags. M. Clark Harrison, the supervising officer, was puzzled because the first articles many picked up were hats.

"They simply said they had to have them to go to church," he said. Most older residents are French-speaking Roman Catholics.

Salvation Army clothing was neatly racked. "Your own wife wouldn't mind wearing them," Harrison said. "We select only the best garments to give away."

In a tiny rear compartment, women workers helped tape measure customers, gave them fresh underclothing, sheets, towels and pillowcases.

The Red Cross has two large tent kitchens at Cameron and Creole, feeding hundreds of workers and clean-up families in swiftly moving lines.

While Cameron comes to life, Carter's few deputies are everywhere, helping break the inevitable bottlenecks.

Deputy T. P. Vincent, first

Cameron officer to reach the outside world and tell what happened, lost his wife, mother and brother.

"Where else would I go now?" he asked. "My friends are here. I'll stay and die in Cameron."

Some Civil Defense workers came up to warn of pilfering in his dead brother's wrecked shoe store. Vincent ran to the scene, seized two white youths and a Negro boy and thrust them in jail.

He returned, arrested a Negro man with a cardboard box of shoes, made him carry the shoes to jail with him.

"It happens all the time," Vincent growled, shaking with rage. He wandered off, looking for new trouble.

The Rev. Taylor Wall, pastor of the Wakefield Memorial Methodist Church, paused at his task of stripping the ceiling of his battered wooden church.

Wiping the sweat from his face, he said a new church would be built on the spot, but with concrete blocks. "They seem to have held in the storm," he said. Thirty-five persons saved their lives in his wooden structure.

The minister said two concrete vaults in back of his church prevented the swaying structure from washing away.

He hopes to begin services in two to three months. Overall-clad workers from Lake Charles churches and other volunteers were here to help him tear down the building.

"The people will return," he predicted without hesitation. "It's too crowded for their liking in the cities."

Near Creole, cattleman James Meaux, 56, sat sipping from a water jug while his husky son, John, a 23-year-old Marine, ripped wooden shingles from their tangled roof. The son is on emergency leave from Camp Pendleton, Calif.

"I hope Uncle Sam will let me keep him a lot longer," Meaux commented. The farmer and his wife rode out the storm in their attic. His ancient house with old-fashioned heavy timbers held against the water. On each side, neighbors died.

Meaux is tearing down his damaged house in order to rebuild. "We'll stay around," he said, a smile cracking his leathery face. "We like the cool Gulf breeze. Those people up in Lake Charles waiting to come back—why they're smothering, they can't stand the city heat."

"If they went anywhere else, they'd find tornadoes or floods. My mother died in this house in 1935 when she was 87. She never told of a storm like this," he recalled. "If our new home stands as long as this one did—that's good enough."

Most Of Storm Insurance Claims To Be Closed Out

By JAMES MCLEAN

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Ninety percent of hurricane Audrey insurance claims will be closed out by Sept. 1, state Insurance Commissioner Rufus D. Hayes said today. By Aug. 15, he said, at least 75 percent of the task will be accomplished. A "close out" means settlement of the sum of money involved by insurance investigators.

It usually takes a week to 10 days after a "close out" for checks to be mailed to the insured. After the adjuster closes a case, the settlement is mailed to the insurance company to pay.

Hayes spent two days in New York City this week, attempting to expedite the handling of disaster insurance in Louisiana.

He said his trip helped break a bottleneck. While there are 356 adjusters working in the hurricane path that cut through Cameron and swung northeastward through Monroe, clerical help failed to match their efforts.

Hayes said. The overwhelmed clerks were unable to keep up with the close outs.

That problem has been solved and insurance executives of the General Adjustment Bureau, in New York and Dallas, have summoned more office help.

Starting next week, Hayes said, the General Adjustment Bureau clerks will keep within 48 hours of the adjusters in the field.

"I am very pleased with the way everything is going now," the commissioner said.

The General Adjustment Bureau represents capital stock companies. About 90 per cent of the Cameron hurricane area with insurance protection was represented by capital stock fire insurance firms, Hayes said.

Hayes went to New York City to point up the importance of fair and speedy insurance settlements in the disaster country.

2. To coordinate the overall effort and to prevail upon the General Adjustment Bureau to increase the clerical and adjusting staffs to the extent necessary in expediting the handling of storm claims.

At Lake Charles and Cameron, the commissioner said, adjusters were handicapped by lack of office space, and by the time consumed in making scores of 60-mile roundtrips to the isolated Cameron coastline, carrying their own food and water.

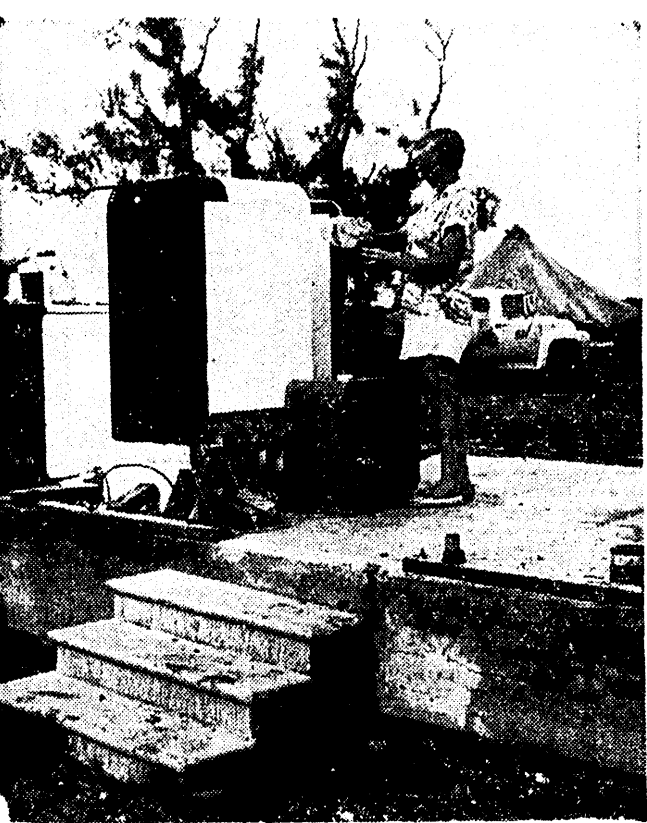

"Under these handicaps, the insurance companies have been doing a good job," Hayes said.

The 356 adjusters are working on the hurricane damage in 73 Louisiana communities covering an estimated 25,000 square miles.

In the 30 days since Audrey's blow, Hayes said, 49,342 claims have been filed and 24,158 have been closed out, requiring nearly seven million dollars.

DETERMINED HURRICANE VICTIM—Cattleman James Meaux, 56, sits on front steps of wrecked home near Creole recalling how he and wife rode out storm in attic of home now leaning in background where it was pushed by waves. He lost most of herd of 700 cattle. Atop house his son, John, 23-year-old Marine home on leave, tears shingles from house to be removed before new one is built. The elder Meaux said his mother who died in the house at age of 87 never told of a storm like this but added "if our new house stands as long as this one did—that's good enough." (AP Wirephoto)

Stove and refrigerator operate on gas providing outdoor cooking facility and family lives in tent in background. Well water is used for bathing but is not yet considered safe for drinking. Kiwanis Plan 12th Annual Championship Rodeo Here

The West Monroe arena will be the scene of the 12th annual Rodeo Cowboys Association rodeo, September 2-6, according to M.L. Owens, Jr., president of the West Monroe Kiwanis Club.

Owens and Dan McClure, this year's chairman of the Kiwanis rodeo committee, joined in declaring that elaborate plans are being formulated for the Labor Day opening which will feature an outstanding parade of North Louisiana's finest horses and riding club members. Invitations are being sent to riding clubs in all surrounding communities in Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi. Host club will be the West Monroe Riding Club.

Owens explained that Homer Todd, widely known rodeo producer from Fort Smith, Ark., will again provide the bucking stock and his 20 white horses to lead the parade and grand entry. Todd will be returning to West Monroe for his seventh rodeo.

Rodeo Cowboys Association events scheduled for the five-night performances include bareback bronc riding, calf roping, steer wrestling, saddle bronc riding, Brahma bull riding and a girl's barrel race.

Buck LeGrande, a feature attraction in Madison Square Garden this past year, will be returning by popular demand to clown the rodeo for a second time.

Another of rodeo's top bull fighters, Junior Meeks, will be making his first appearance at the

IN 12 TENSE MONTHS

Poles Have Won A Lot More Freedom And A Little More Food From Red Leaders

WARSAW, July 27 (AP)—In 12 tense months since the Poznan riots, 28 million Poles have won a lot more freedom and a little more food.

The local brand of communism has been purged of all the terror and some of the bureaucratic nonsense. But the great mass of the people, tired and embittered after 18 years of every imaginable misery and deprivation, remain suspicious of their rulers and above all of the Communist party's attempt to reassert itself as a political force.

Time and again people will tell you "Things are just the same." Every objective observer knows things are not the same. But until they get a better living and better homes the Poles will remain uneasy and skeptical of every promise of improvement.

The workers who streamed through the Poznan streets last June tore down a tyranny that already showed signs of crumbling. The list of changes since then would fill a column of this page.

Secret police atrocities, spy mania, radio jamming, brutal "work discipline" and forced participation in futile mass demonstrations have been swept away. Poles can say—though not write—what they think without fear of reprisal.

Parish Priest

The parish priest is back at the village school teaching scriptures. Poles have taken over top posts in the armed forces—posts formerly held by Russians. Thousands of political prisoners have been released and no political arrests have been reported.

Russian schoolbooks have been scrapped. Travel abroad is easier. More than 8,000 of the 10,000 collectivized have been returned to private ownership. Thousands of acres more are to be sliced off state farms and handed to individuals.

Last Chance

"This is our last chance to build a decent life," said a 40-year-old farmer wrestling a living from 22 sandy acres north of Warsaw. By 1958, the average Polish farmer is 12 acres—this farmer is 20 per cent, a man's pay still will feed a wife and two children.

People still queue for food when socialized retail trade has one of its periodic distribution snarls. Theft and corruption still combine in an "unofficial economy" that adds to the price of everything from passports to movie tickets. A bar of chocolate still costs more than half a pint of vodka. Scores of thousands are without work; fears of unemployment stalk thousands more.

Thus, for the average Pole, life may seem little changed and signs of hope few. But, government officials say—and there is no reason to doubt their figures—that a great people are eating more meat and more butter than a year ago. Periodic shortages still arise because production is behind demand and because of distribution difficulties in a country with only one motor vehicle for every 670 people.

They also say, apparently with truth, that basic food prices in state stores have not risen in the past eight months. But food prices have increased, who he says should be leading an economic offensive. In some plants the attempt to build a simple wage structure out of the old mass of bonuses and "norms" has led to discontent and repeated stoppages. With the exception of coal miners, workers generally have profited less than the peasants.

Wages

In Zeran, the Warsaw motor plant that builds the Russian Pobeda car under license, the average wage of manual workers now is 1,760 zloty monthly—roughly 20 per cent higher than a year ago.

In Poznan's Cegielski, average wages have risen 20 per cent to just over 1,600 zloty monthly—less than the price of three good pairs of shoes.

Both plants have been plagued by raw material shortages. Zeran, aiming to produce 14,000 autos this year against fewer than 7,000 last year, sometimes finds work delayed for lack of components produced by other factories.

Local food industries and some other industries feeding local markets have been put under control of local authorities. In some plants the Communist party organization itself has taken on the role of a trade union organization and asked for higher wages. Gomulka has warned the party that this sort of thing must stop. He says the nation cannot afford a further round of wage increases.

Nor is he happy about the results so far of the limited degree of private enterprise brought in last year. He sought small-scale producers. But most private enterprise has gone into buying and selling—which serves to increase prices rather than available goods.

Will the system produce good results? Two basic facts stick out from the fog of official figures: For the first time in years peasants are cultivating every available inch of land, and the coal miners, with a 40 per cent pay increase in their pockets, are beating the year's target of 80 million tons.

On the other hand, the housing situation this year will deteriorate. Two hundred thousand apartments are planned, admittedly insufficient to meet population increase and the loss of apartments through collapse.

Finally, the time is not far distant when the Poles must repay the credits that now are keeping their impoverished country above the subsistence line. Gomulka has called this year, hard though it is, a period of relaxation—"living a little better but from somebody else's pot."

Soon, he warns, industrial investment must speed up again to pay the bills and create work.

Oregon's Sen. Morse Holds One-Man Filibuster Record

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—At 11:40 a.m. on April 24, 1953, Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon rose in the Senate and obtained permission to speak. He had a few words to say in opposition to a bill giving submerged oil lands to the states.

Before Morse could shift into high gear, Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio broke in to ask: "May I ask how long altogether, the senator expects to speak this time?"

"I had a rather bad meal last night," Morse said, "which is going to handicap me somewhat." If it hadn't been for that bad meal, Morse might be talking yet. For he talked all that day, all that night and well into the next morning. He finally halted at 10:06 a.m., after speaking for 22 hours and 26 minutes.

This set the course record for the Senate, beating the mark set by Sen. Bob LaFollette Sr. of Wisconsin in a 1908 battle over a currency bill. LaFollette had held the floor for 18 hours and 13 minutes.

But Morse's record was far more remarkable since, in addition to that bad meal, he had another handicap. Due to a technicality, he could not be interrupted for a quorum call, a device whereby the speaker can rest while the roll is called.

LaFollette had 29 quorum calls and three roll calls on questions of order. Morse had none. Furthermore, unlike some celebrated filibusters of the past, Morse stuck fairly well to his subject.

Sen. Huey Long of Louisiana is considered the king of the filibusters, but, unlike Morse, he wandered all over the vocal lot.

In June of 1935 Long held the Senate floor for 15 hours and 20 minutes, and it was here, using a Senate wastebasket as a substitute cooking utensil, he gave his "discourse on pollock."

"First," Long said, "let me tell the senators what pollock is. Pollock is the residue that remains from the commingling, heating and evaporation—anyway, it's in the bottom of the pot."

For senators still puzzled about investment must speed up again to pay the bills and create work.

These filibusters, by individuals may or not be tied in with a well-organized effort in which senators work in relays to talk a bill to death. But it's the combined attempt—such as the filibusters by foes of civil rights legislation—that works.

Almost every legislative body has had filibusters, but it is in the Senate, where debate is unlimited, that they have been most effective. And here it has been refined to its purest form, with filibusters over proposals to take up a rule that would curb filibusters.

Curiously, though the world's record for filibustering isn't held by a senator or even an American. In the 1890's a Romanian named Horwicz rose to explain why he wanted a minister fired. He talked for 37 hours.

Hot Weather Affects Animals Same As Humans; So Help Them Keep Cool

WASHINGTON, July 27 (UP)—Hot weather affects animals much the same way it affects human beings. It gets them hot.

But animals need some help from man to keep cool when the temperature is high. So far, there is no economical method of air conditioning for the benefit of farm animals. Other, and cheaper, methods must be used.

The Agricultural Research Service (ARS) has worked out some hot weather tips for use on farm animals. The ARS scientists recommended their use as a means of comfort for the animals and often as a way of keeping them alive.

Most farm animals sweat little, if at all. Cattle sweat some, but not much, an "not enough to regulate body temperature to air temperature. Chickens sweat some, but very little. Hogs do not sweat at all.

Harry L. Garver, who is in charge of the project on animal environment and labor saving studies at the research center at Beltsville, Md. offers suggestions to aid animals during hot spells.

Cattle can get some relief, Garver said, if cool air is blown over them. A more practical method of cooling the beasts is to provide them cool drinking water—and plenty of it.

Cattle also need open shelters which provide adequate circulation. Green forage and green pasture near the corral also are helpful. Shade for the animals to stand under during the hottest part of the day is important.

Paint On Shade
Garver recommended a constructed shade be painted white on the area next to the sun and black on the underside. White reflects the short energy waves of the sun while black absorbs the longer waves of solar energy, Garver said.

Proper feeding will help an animal during hot weather, too, according to Garver. He suggested an increase in concentrates and not so much roughage. In that way, animals get food energy out of the concentrates without consuming so much heat producing roughage.

Garver recommended plenty of ventilation for chickens. If the weather gets extremely hot he said, a fine mist sprayed over them would help. The mist, however, must not be strong enough to wet the feathers or to dampen their litter. Chickens need plenty of shade and lots of litter for scratching purposes.

For the non-sweating hogs, Garver recommended cool water cool wallows, shade, good circulation, and a fine mist spray on a concrete slab. He said pigs should stay out of a mud wallow because of the danger of parasites. Garver also recognized the fact that hogs like to wallow in mud and don't often cooperate in keeping out of mud wallows. He said the spray on a concrete slab is the most healthful for the hog. And the hog will use it, he said, if the mud wallow isn't available.

The Agricultural Marketing Service recommends showers for hogs on their way to market. Besides being good for the hogs, they are good for the owner's bankroll.

Built-In Shower
Transportation specialists testing a new built-in shower for six died in the unsprinkled trucks. Under present conditions, hog money was spent outfitting those trailers-trucks found that hogs hauled in these trucks maintained their weight much better in hot weather. During the test, none in the sprinkled trucks died while 100 at U. S. markets every year under today's marketing conditions.

Other farm front developments: one touching them afterwards, vent further danger of poisoning, the name "English" is a misnomer. Poison Ivy—You don't have to wash these clothes should be washed thoroughly in hot soda solution men have revised standards for when the walnuts were brought Gardening clothes that come in and soapuds. Vertical Jet Makes Public Debut Today

By VERN HAUGLAND
AP Aviation Reporter

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—The Air Force announced today that it's X13, first jet plane to take off vertically, will make its public debut Sunday at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., near here. Next Tuesday, it will take off from and land on the grounds of the Pentagon.

The sensational craft on Tuesday will re-enact the flight of the first airplane purchased by the U.S. government—the craft which Orville Wright demonstrated to the Army in a flight from Ft. Myer, Va., to Alexandria, Va., and return. The two locations are a few miles on either side of the Pentagon.

An estimated 100,000 persons will witness the first public flight of the X13 Sunday as part of a show set up by the Air Force Assn. in observance of the 50th anniversary of the U.S. Air Force.

Other thousands will watch the de-lavwing plane, which takes off from and comes back to a sort of "clothes line" or cable, rise vertically from the river entrance to the Pentagon. It will lean over and fly conventionally to Ft. Myer and Alexandria, and then come back to the Pentagon and hang itself from the cable again.

The plane flies vertically at more than 350 miles an hour. Heavily shrouded, the X13 "Vertijet" was shipped from San Diego, Calif., home of its manufacturer, Ryan Aeronautical Co., in mid-June.

In a full-scale demonstration Thursday the X13, hanging by a hook on its nose from a stout cable stretched between two supports, disengaged itself with its jet engine roaring, rose straight up to a height of about 50 feet, and then leaned over into conventional flight.

THE WORLD OF BOOKS AND MUSIC

THE PLOT THICKENS—Writing in long hand in a notebook, mystery writer Margaret Millar confines her homicidal labors to the morning hours. Too scary at night time, she says.

SCARE THYSELF

Mystery Writer Gives Good Clue To Craft

By W. G. ROGERS

(ADVANCE) NEW YORK, June 23.—"I have to be scared first or I couldn't make a reader scared," said the author of books that have made her president of the Mystery Writers of America. "Ooooooh!" she cried. "By the time I was through writing 'Beast in View'—winner of the Mystery Writers' Edgar in 1956, it is a case of terror built up by a succession of telephone calls—'I'd jump 20 feet every time the poor razz'."

"I always take things seriously, terribly so," she went on. "I was Margaret Millar, pronounced Miller, wife of Ross Macdonald, pseudonym for another mystery writer who, like her, has a dozen or more books to his credit. "My husband said, 'I'm glad I married you, because of those two women who do all the frightening telephoning!'"

"To which I replied: 'But you did marry them! I am those women.' I have to throw myself into these things. I'm the actor in writing my own lines."

There is another sample of the way she scares herself and the shivery reader in her newest book, due from Random House in July: "An Air That Kills." It also has a lot of telephoning.

The title is borrowed from Housman. She finds the poets a great help: "Beast in View" is Dryden, "The Invisible Worm" is Blake, "Vanish in an Instant" is Yeats, and "Do Evil in Return" is Auden.

Her first mystery, published in 1940, was written in 15 days. Now she takes longer, writing long-hand in notebooks, of which about nine add up to a printed book. She spends four hours at it in the morning, it being too scary for night work. While her husband keeps somewhat irregular professional hours, she gives her afternoons to her garden at their home in Menlo Park, Calif.

She mistrusts New York City as a place to live; 10 days here recently wore her down, she complained. But she is tempted to try it for a few months. She was born in Kitchener, Ont., where she and her California-born husband met. On a visit there not long ago, she was presented, to her delight, with a copy of the high-school yearbook which contained the first short stories written by her and by him to find their way into print.

The Mystery Writers of America, founded 12 years ago by a group of eight men at a lunch

The Day They Killed The King; He Died Bravely

THE DAY THEY KILLED THE KING. By Hugh Ross Williamson Macmillan.

On Jan. 30, 1649, Charles I, King of England, was beheaded on a black-curtained scaffold at Whitehall. It was Cromwell's hour of triumph though the Puritan, on his way to becoming Lord Protector, did not witness the execution — he would visit the body and coldly finger the wound.

Whatever Charles was as king — a defender of the divine-right theory, a foe of freedom of worship — he met death bravely. Staunch friends stood by him, like Juxon whom he had named Bishop of London. There was sympathy for him in London and abroad in the land. But there were bitter and unforgiving enemies, enough so that Cromwell could get the death warrant signed and the executioners appointed.

Ross Williamson takes up, fearful step by step, those last hours: the farewells, prayers, bequests

Beggar In The Harem Highly Entertaining

THE BEGGAR IN THE HAREM. By Leonid Solovov. Harcourt, Brace.

Khoja Nasreddin enters this merry tale running away from a woman, leaves it running away with one and in between has a succession of picaresque adventures that will delight you.

A cogue and a wanderer, he has come back at last to his native Bukhara, where the people worship him as their benefactor, where the evil Emir rules, where the villain is Jafar the Usurer, and the heroine, lovely Guljan, the potter's daughter.

Jafar is so miserly that, though drowning, the cries of would-be rescuers to "give us your hand" are not heeded for he will give nothing, not even his hand. The Emir is so wicked that supplicants for justice must pay with their entire possessions, and the taxpayers are beaten and stripped till they settle their bills.

There is a price on Nasreddin's head, and every now and then he risks it to aid the poor or repair a Casarant wrong. The danger is greatest when, after snatching Guljan from Jafar's clutches, he must next save her from the Emir; perhaps the greatest hazard to this roisterer comes when, in disguise, he wins the friendship of the Emir and is offered the post of chief eunuch in his harem.

A story straight out of Soviet Russia, this is unexpectedly enthusiastic salute to the liberty denied the Russians. Nasreddin robs the rich to succor the poor. He belongs in the gallant and exhilarating company of such old World characters as Robin Hood, Til Eulenspiegel and Colas Breugnon.

BY A NON-ZIONIST

Bridgehead Is Excellent Drama Of Present Israel

BRIDGEHEAD: THE DRAMA OF ISRAEL. By Wlad Frank. George Braziller.

A non-Zionist has been to Zion, and he brings us this intimate personal report of what he saw and what he thought about it, and what various prospects and hazards face the people and their land.

He visited the young and old, the leaders and their followers, Jews with eastern and Jewish western backgrounds. He went into their cities, so old, so new, and out into the kibbutz, the community farmstead. He ate the food — for gourmands rather than gourmets, he decided. He viewed their paintings, attended their theater. He came within gunshot of enemy Arabs, and saw the impoverished Arabs who stuck it out in Palestine.

He found a certain preoccupation with getting along, with not being different, with being normal in a world that has accused them tragically of straying too far from normal. At the same time he presents a witness who believes it's easy to be normal, and act like a state, but that the hard thing, as well as the essential, concerns the spirit.

They are constantly confronted by the peril of annihilation, living surrounded by foes who own the oil coveted by the major powers. But the greater peril is "inward demoralization," Frank warns. He would have the Jews remember that before preparedness, efficiency and normalcy came brotherhood, and that it was religion that kept them alive while peoples around them perished, from the Romans of the Caesars to the Nazis in Hitler's Germany. It is not "dollars, diplomacy, arms" that have saved the Jews, but their humanity, and better than an earthly Zion would be "an ethical commonwealth of justice and love."

Strings Cool On These Hot Boston Nights

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UP)—The strings of the Boston Symphony sound cool and shimmering these hot summer nights. How they're being exercised isn't so important as those basic string sounds, but they're being exercised pleasantly with Tchaikovsky's Serenade for Strings, Samuel Barber's Adagio for Strings, and Elgar's Introduction and Allegro for Strings (RCA Victor-LM2105).

Leonard Bernstein, music's gift to TV, has exercised his New York Philharmonic—Symphony through Tchaikovsky's Romeo and Juliet Overture—Fantasy and Stravinsky's Firebird suite. It is a Bernsteinesque performance, coolly understood and so coolly brought about with patios and drama deliberately highlighted and underscored (Columbia-MI-5182).

At the rate Carl Orff's "Carmina Burana" is being recorded, it is likely to become popular if only from repetition and the pressure of availability. The newest recording sounded more attractive than its predecessors — perhaps because its predecessors prepared the way. It was made by German soloists, chorus, and orchestra conducted by Wolfgang Sawallisch under the personal supervision of the composer (Angel-3545).

The earnest if somewhat inhibited art music of our day has a hearing in a recording of the quartets of Jerome Rosen and the Janacek Quartet playing Dvorak's 7th quartet (Decca-9919).

BREAKS SILENCE

Held Tongue 30 Days, Little Girl Gets Pony

CONCORD, N. C., July 27 (UP)—Kitty Butler, the freckle-nosed 10-year-old who held her busy tongue 30 days, seemed almost surprised tonight when she blurted out her first words after the long silence.

Her family and newsmen gathered around her as the 10 p.m. deadline drew near and then passed. Still no word from Kitty.

For 15 minutes she resisted efforts to coax her to talk. Finally her father drew the first words from her when he promised to let her take her dog along on vacation if she would tell everyone where they were going.

Kitty Shouts

With that inducement, Kitty shouted: "Windy Hill." The family will spend next week vacationing at Windy Hill Beach, S.C. Then she ran to the telephone to call her best friend, Peggy Gardner. In a quiet whisper she asked, "Is Peggy there?"

"Peggy, Peggy! I can talk. I can talk," she said, bubbling with excitement, knowing that her silence had won for her a horse.

Dad Promised

Kitty's father, John Butler, rashly promised Kitty a horse 30 days ago if she wouldn't pester him about it anymore. Kitty clammed up and refused to utter a word after that — not even in her sleep.

Kitty has talked about getting a horse ever since she was old enough to badger her dad about it.

Now the horse is picked out and purchased. It's a handsome red and white Tennessee walking horse with a white blaze on its face. Right now, it's being "fettened up" by its present owner at Shelby, N. C., but it will be Kitty's next week end.

Butler said the family is going to take a vacation to the beach next week before he gives her the horse.

"I knew I'd never get her away for one if I gave it to her first," he said.

Butler said Kitty hasn't judged a bit on her bargain.

PAST AND PRESENT

Museum Pieces Preserve Present For The Future

By ABBIE LECKIE

The present is the past of tomorrow. Many of the objects of our citizens will forget so much that the generation of today will never know if those relics of the past are not brought out into the light of day and placed on display and their story and history preserved.

Should we attempt to write our memoirs, many wonderful moments of the past will hinge around some "item" that today would be classed as a museum piece.

The Ouachita Genealogical and Historical Society received such wonderful response it is convinced that this area is interested in and wants a real live and shall we say honest - to - goodness museum and not merely a group of cases filled with small relics.

That means a place large enough for all the many items that went into the way of life of our forefathers: the furniture, musical instruments and what memories come to mind. Then those items almost distinct of modes of travel — the old ox bow and ox yoke, the old crude farming implements; the model T; some items are still available but it would take room to display them.

The Ouachita Genealogical and Historical Society appreciates the wonderful opportunity to use the lovely room at the Northeast State College, but we need a home! A house and grounds where we can display all items or relics that make up a complete museum.

All the wonderful people that have called about having large relics, shouldn't become discouraged and destroy those things because we have seemingly neglected to get them. We sincerely want them, so please preserve them and let everyone be looking for and, yes, let us pray, that we can find and secure a home. Don't forget, if you have relics, call Fairfax 3-2481, Mrs. R. N. Milling or write P. O. Box 573.

If the items are large, let us know you have them and please hold them until we can secure a suitable place to display them...

AFTER YOU'RE GONE

To Be Remembered Best Pick Writer For Friend

CHARLIE. By Ben Hecht, Harper.

If you're a celebrity and want to be remembered after you're gone, the surest way is to pick an articulate writer as your best friend.

Charles MacArthur probably wouldn't give a hoot about being memorialized. But the fortunate circumstance of having made friends with Ben Hecht when both were reporters in the faded hey-day of Chicago newspapering ("We trotted, coach - dog fashion, at the heels of the human race, our tails a-wag") has provided MacArthur with a biographer who knew him intimately, writes with great feeling and extremely well.

It's unfortunate that Hecht felt the need on occasion to copy four-letter words off toilet walls, but even this doesn't detract more than briefly from a job of character painting in fascinating depth. Most of the time, he has the good sense to let the story tell itself.

Hecht had access to many of MacArthur's love letters to his wife, Helen Hayes. Theirs was a devoted romance from the day they met in 1924 until MacArthur died in 1956. There are scores of anecdotes from the 41 years that Hecht and MacArthur were friends. A parade of prominent fills the pages; intimate little stories of the famous and little things that helped MacArthur find so much — if sometimes raucous enjoyment in life.

Taking stock at one point in the book, Hecht says: "I've stopped pretending that I am writing a biography. What I am writing is obviously a letter about a friend who died. My communication may have in it chiefly the moonings of one left on empty battlements."

Mark Centennial For Dr. Sheldon

TOPEKA, Kan. (UP)—A centennial celebration of the birth of Dr. Charles M. Sheldon, author of "In His Steps" is being held this year in many churches around the world.

Dr. Sheldon wrote the celebrated international best-seller while minister of Central Congregational Church here in Topeka. More than 30 million copies have been sold.

A great humanitarian, Dr. Sheldon believed in sharing American surplus with the needy overseas. In 1900 he was instrumental in raising $100,000 dollars to relieve a famine in India.

BASKET PICNIC

Members and guests of Jr. Modern Woodmen Club 17167 were entertained at a basket picnic at Bernstein Park Thursday. In addition to food and refreshments numerous games added to the outing. Later the children were conducted on a tour of the zoo by Mrs. S. Frost, club director, and Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Dupong, club sponsors.

Right now we have a most interesting love seat and chairs; old half - tester bed with dresser and wash stand.

Can't you just see what could be done if they were in a suitable setting; the old pitcher and bowl; foot warmer; spread; patch quilt; manikin dressed in the clothing of say 1810; the baby doll dressed in the long dresses of even 1900 placed in a cradle with the old rockin' chair nearby.

That was life yesterday so please help us preserve those things so that our children and children's children can see first hand what went into living as they study it in the history books tomorrow.

We cannot do it alone, we need help — your help. The colonial dames are helping and we do sincerely thank them but it is a gigantic undertaking and it will take the combined resources of all in this district.

So many efforts in the past to establish a museum have failed, we must not. We shall not look back in our dreams and work but even thought it be a tiny step at a time, we shall go forward. Your donations of relics and money today means a real museum tomorrow.

IT NEVER FORGETS

The Longest Arm Of The Law Doesn't Own Handcuffs

By GODFREY ANDERSON

PARIS, July 27 (UP)—The longest arm of the law doesn't even own a pair of handcuffs. It has never arrested a man. But it has a stubborn memory and never forgets a crime—or a criminal.

The International Criminal Police Organization, known better by its cable address Interpol, is not a police force itself.

It is, instead, a nerve-quick brain, absorbing and cataloging hundreds of reports from the working police in its 47 member nations and then flashing them back by radio and wireless—putting its finger on crooks almost anywhere in the world.

A Lebanese banker was swindled of $5,000 by three men who gave him forged checks on the "Banque de Panama." He complained to the Paris headquarters of Interpol, where officers were receiving similar reports of checks drawn on the "Banque de Honduras," and the "Banque de Columbia."

Four quick arrests followed in Switzerland and Spain. The Lebanese banker confirmed the descriptions of the arrested men.

There are limits to Interpol's authority and scope. It never handles petty crime. It keeps hands off political, racial, religious and military cases.

By keeping its member police posted on the international movements of known criminals, it concentrates on gold and diamond traffickers, drug peddlers, smugglers, swindlers, white slavers and murderers.

In a discreet gray stone mansion in a fashionable quarter of western Paris, Interpol keeps tabs on crime in all the nations of Western Europe, the United States, several American and Asian countries.

The main chink in its coverage is Communist-controlled Eastern Europe. The Iron Curtain, which keeps the rest of the world out, ironically has become a haven for criminals sought by Interpol.

"If a man gets through the Iron Curtain, there is nothing we can do," a high Interpol official said. "We have no members over there."

Behind high gates and walls which shut the public out, Interpol keeps its files of some 250,000 names.

Top man of Interpol is its secretary general — stocky, graying Marcel Sirot, who is loaned from the French Surete Nationale.

Sirot is aided by 50 inspectors. All are French except for one Siamese whose salary is paid by the Thai government.

In The Hague, Sirot has a special six-man counterfeit bureau, staffed by Dutch experts and paid for by Holland.

Surveillance of criminals is perpetual. Once a name gets into Interpol's files, it stays there until he dies. When he goes to jail, a notation is made on his dossier. When he gets out, Interpol notes that too.

Interpol lists its criminals four ways — alphabetically by name, phonetically by name, by fingerprint records and by type of crime.

When a country puts out an arrest warrant on a man, his dossier is tagged with red, which means he may be seized on sight. A green tag means he is to be watched. A black tag means there's a body to be identified.

Because many crooks use aliases and change their identity repeatedly, probably no more than 90,000 criminals are represented by Interpol's quarter of a million files.

Some criminals go even further than changing their names. They try to confound Interpol by changing their appearance too.

In defense against this, Interpol classes its photographs by a numbering code on features and facial characteristics.

Interpol's private radio network covers all of Western Europe, and reaches to Turkey, Israel and North Africa.

Take the case of a rapid-moving Belgian swindler, sometimes known as Louis Smyth. Swiss police reported he was wanted for a $70,000 swindle in October 1950. Interpol checked up, found he was really Edward de K—, wanted in his native country for writing bad checks, falsification and jail breaking.

The red alert went out and he was arrested that same month at Aix-les-Bains. Extradited to Switzerland, he went to jail and was released in May 1953, a fact that Interpol duly noted.

Setting himself up in business in Paris, he said he was a manager for a large Johannesburg firm. Six months after he had been released from the Swiss jail, the Queen's prosecutor in Amsterdam called for his arrest on theft of $30,000 in diamonds he had undertaken to sell for an Amsterdam dealer. A Paris magistrate issued a warrant for breaking of foreign exchange regulations.

Interpol's system buzzed with the red alert for his arrest. In April 1954, 11 months after he had been released from jail, he was arrested at Pisa, Italy. By now, he has 11 convictions scattered through Belgium, England, Switzerland and Paris.

A NICE HOBBY

Eaton Is Man Who Makes Money Because He Has To

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Newfeatures

Cyrus Stephen Eaton is a man who makes money because he has to.

In a world where you have to eat three times a day," he says, "an application to material things is mankind's first job and destiny."

"What the world gave must all tend to be success. It may be success, a hard thing to say, but it's one of the cold facts of life."

Another cold fact is that Cyrus Eaton himself is a material success, shrewd commander-in-chief of a 10-million-dollar coal, steel, and utilities and transportation empire.

But he would rather be known as a philosopher — or, better, as a patron of philosophers.

Eaton is proud of his material success. When test drillings in 10 countries, including Red China, a hard thing to say, but it's one of the cold facts of life.

Eaton picked up all the bills. He was born 73 years ago in Piquette, where his father ran a small country store. He started out to be a Baptist preacher but, strangely, the trail to the mines led directly into high finance.

He was 17 when he visited the iron mines, West Kentucky Coal, and Portsmouth Steel Corp. He is a director of stockholder of several other large firms.

But, in keeping with his double life as a philosopher, he is also a member of the American Philosophical Assn., trustee of three colleges and a prolific writer on politics and economics. A naturalized American citizen, Eaton lives in Cleveland, raises purebred Scotch Shorthorn cattle on an 870-acre farm in Northfield, Ohio, and a 3,000-acre farm near Chester, N. S.

Rev. Charles A. Eaton, whose congregation included John D. Rockefeller Sr.

The financier fascinated young Eaton, Rockefeller, in turn, took a shine to the fledgling preacher. He gave him his first job, as a clerk, and started him on a business career.

Before he was 30, Eaton was a millionaire. Some 20 years later, during the depression, he was all but broke. Now he's a multi-millionaire.

He is chairman of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, Steep Rock Iron Mines, West Kentucky Coal, and Portsmouth Steel Corp. He is a director of stockholder of several other large firms.

But, in keeping with his double life as a philosopher, he is also a member of the American Philosophical Assn., trustee of three colleges and a prolific writer on politics and economics.

A naturalized American citizen, Eaton lives in Cleveland, raises purebred Scotch Shorthorn cattle on an 870-acre farm in Northfield, Ohio, and a 3,000-acre farm near Chester, N. S.

For recreation he reads, rides horseback, and skis, occasionally in company with some of his seven children and 13 grandchildren. His wife died two years ago.

Eaton is soft-spoken and courtly in manner. He looks and acts like a college dean — except when the financial chips are down in a big business deal. He has business enemies as well as friends. But that's part of tycoon-philosophy. Eaton's understanding of the financial world is one of the cold facts of life.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES D. GUIN

Baptist Sanctuary Ceremony Unites Miss Peggy Williams, James D. Guin

A marriage characterized by beauty and impressiveness was solemnized Saturday, July 13, at seven thirty in the evening in the sanctuary of the First Baptist Church, when Miss Peggy Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Williams of Bastrop, became the bride of James D. Guin, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Munro of Winnfield.

Reception

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Guin of King Street.

Throughout the house were beautiful arrangements of white flowers and fern placed at vantage points.

The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth over pink. At one end of the wedding table was the three tiered wedding cake, iced in white, embellished in pale green and topped with the traditional bride and groom. At the opposite end of the table was the punch bowl. The centerpiece featured silver white gladioli flanked by white tapers in silver holders.

The buffet decor was an arrangement of white flowers in a crystal container atop a reflector. Mrs. Robert Guin presided at the punch bowl, and Mrs. Hilton Bolton served the cakes. Guests were invited to register in the bride's book by Mrs. Newton Forrest. On the registry table stood the "memory candle," tied with satin holding a cluster of lilies of the valley, encircled with greenery and small flowers.

Wedding Trip

The couple left for a wedding trip to the West Coast and Canada. For traveling, the bride wore a summer print with white accessories, and the groom from her corsage. Upon their return, the young couple will make their home in Perry, Fla., where both are in business.

The matron of honor carried a bouquet of blue carnations and the bridesmaids all carried identical bouquets of rose carnations.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was lovely in a wedding gown of hand-clipped, imported Chantilly lace and tulle. Fashioned with a cummerbund of puffed silk taffeta, full bouffant skirt and fitted bodice. Her veil of illusion cascaded in triple tiers forming a train and fell from a pearl crown accented with rhinestones. She wore a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. She carried a white Bible topped with stephanotis around a purple throat orchid showered with satin streamers.

The bridegroom was attended by Nathan Morris and ushers were Glen Guin and Sonny Warner. The bride's mother chose a

UNGRAYING TEMPER

One of the principal causes of ungraying tempers in the home these days is caused by the family stampede to the single bathroom. By combining two powder rooms with a third entrance for the entrance the bathroom becomes a powder room and a powder room becomes a bathroom when used with the adjacent bathroom and shower. Where possible one of the powder rooms should serve the master bedroom, the second being entered from a common hallway to other bedrooms and living quarters.

Miss Fuller is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lane Fuller and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Henry Ball, all of Ruston.

Mr. Ball's maternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Vickers, and the paternal grandparents are Mr. W. A. Ball of Ruston and the late Mrs. Ball.

MRS. OLYN D. MALONE

The bride, given in marriage by her father, entered the church wearing a white lace and organza gown especially designed for her. The bodice of lace featured a round neckline and short sleeves. Seed pearls embroidered the front of the bodice repeated the pearl trim of the lace crown from which fell a fingertip veil of net illusion. The billowing lace overskirt was shirred in scallops and fell over a white organza flounce. Her slipper were white satin lace mules, elbow length, extended over the hands. The bride's bouquet was a creation of white vanda orchids tied with white satin ribbon.

The maid of honor, Miss Betty Jane Hodgkins, was attired in a white, length dress of blue lace and tulle. An organza cummerbund trimmed the bodice and formed a bow in the back with streamers extending to the hemline. Light blue lace shoes and headless completed the costume. Her bouquet was a colonial nosegay of yellow vanda orchids.

For this occasion the mother of the bride chose a beige lace model featuring a flared skirt and bolero trimmed in linen and rhinestones. Her shoes and hat were beige. The iridescent pink hat and elbow length party gloves were a perfect combination in color with the corsage of pink carnation and white vanda orchids.

Immediately following the exchange of vows the bride's parents were hosts at a reception in the home economics department. Mrs. J. P. Littlefield invited guests to register in the bride's book. The bride's table was covered in white tulle and not caught up at the corners with white satin ribbon and lily of the valley. The centerpiece was a low arrangement of pink gladioli. At one end of the table Mrs. Herman Littlefield served the wedding reception, a tiered cake in a cloverleaf arrangement topped with a wedding bell cluster. Mrs. W. C. Edwards presided over the punch bowl. Magnolia arrangements and wedding bells were placed throughout the reception parlor.

For the wedding trip the bride chose beige linen with white accessories and wore a corsage from her bride's bouquet.

Mrs. Malone is a graduate of Louisiana Polytechnic Institute and a member of the Kilbourne High School faculty. Mr. Malone attended Louisiana State University and is employed by a steamship company. The couple will make their home in Kilbourne.

Ugly Superfluous Hair Destroyed Forever...

by ANN CORNELISON
HAIR REMOVAL CONSULTANT

The beauty and glamour of a woman's hair is celebrated in many a song and story but you never hear the anguish and emotional upsets caused by hair that grows where it never should grow naturally.

Women have hopefully turned everywhere for help and advice on the problem of superfluous hair, but until recent years any aid at all was merely temporary and at the cost of such slavish repletion, such as... shaving, tweezing, waxing and such.

Then the THERMIQUETRON Method was invented, after years of scientific research. Permanent removal of "unwanted hair" can only be accomplished electronically and THERMIQUETRON is the most modern scientific method available.

Today the THERMIQUETRON Hair Removal Clinic at 2000 North Third Street has become a Monroe institution, where many women have found new personalities through the professional skill and care of Miss Ann Cornelison, trained technician. The Authorized THERMIQUETRON Method leaves no scars, no pits, just a new, satiny-smooth skin, free of hair.

Permanent aid of your problem is as near as your telephone. Just CALL FA 2-7471 for a FREE demonstration and consultation with Miss Ann Cornelison. Complete privacy... air-conditioned offices and evening appointments. (adv.)

WHY GROW OLD

Why Not Give Your Complexion A Lift Right In Your Own Home

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

The atmosphere of a modern beauty salon is so restful and glamorous that it is well worth the price if your pocketbook will stand the traffic. Somehow life seems lifted out of the ordinary everyday rut and miracles seem possible, and often are!

However, if you cannot afford such a luxury you CAN treat yourself to a similar routine each day at home. Try to find a time when you will not be interrupted so that you will enjoy and benefit most from your efforts. Otherwise, the groceries may arrive just after you have applied your lubricant cream or the children may be frightened by a mask.

Follow this plan for a normal or dry skin. Wrap a towel around your hair to protect it from cream. First cleanse your face thoroughly, using a cleansing cream. Massage it in gently. Remove the cream and dirt with tissues. A second cleansing is all to the good. Remove again with tissues.

At this point many women like to use a damp warm cloth to remove the last vestiges of cream and grime. This also makes the skin more receptive to the lubricating cream which follows. As to application, I believe that vigorous massage at home, for any place unless you are in the hands of a real expert, does more harm than good.

I suggest that you pat the oily cream into the skin. However, you can massage the cream in if you do it gently. Use two fingers with a rotary motion, moving up and out. Begin at the tip of the chin and move out and up toward the ears. Do this several times. Start now at the bottom of the nose and move toward the ears. Slap

NOVEL BOOK COVER

For a see-through protective book cover for your favorite volumes or for the children's books... place a length of clear household wrap over the cover... fold edges over and within a matter of minutes you will have a cover that protects and shows-off the original binding.

Many cooks like to frost the sides of a layer cake before spreading the icing over the top.

with the backs of your hands along the jawline and under the chin.

Forceful massage at some points can be most helpful. I am thinking of massage ALONG the horizontal lines on the forehead, or perpendicular lines between the brows or crows' feet at the corners of the eyes. In this type you also use a rotary motion but move ALONG the lines.

If you wish to massage the cream into your neck begin at the base of the neck and work upward. After this take a 10 or 15 minutes rest while the cream soaks in. Place wet cool eye pads over your eyes.

Next remove the cream and apply a skin freshener. This routine, when regularly indulged in, will add much to the charm of your complexion and will also delay signs of aging.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Reconditioning at Home," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 49 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Snowy Gladioli And Candle Light Are Background For Wedding Of Miss Betty Van And R. J. Wills, Jr.

Snowy gladioli lavishly used with lighted tapers made a lovely background in the Central Baptist Church for the wedding of Miss Betty Kay Van and Robert John Wills, Jr., at seven-thirty Friday evening.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd T. Van, Sr. and the groom is the son of Mrs. Robert J. Wills, Sr.

Miss Delores Gonzales gave the nuptial music and accompanied Miss Kathy Oldenburg who sang "Because," "I Love You Truly," and the "Lord's Prayer" at the benediction.

The groom stood with the Rev. Roger C. Johnson, and his brother, Don Wills, who served him as best man. The ushers were the Messrs Wayne Van, Joe Hartman and Roy Sanderson. The candles were lighted by Miss Linda Cruse and Miss Carolyn Wills. Their dresses were fuchsia net-over-tulle, full skirted and ballerina length.

The flower girl was little Gail Perkins, in a floor length costume of pink chiffon, worn with a small headpiece of feathered pink carnations and carried a basket filled with pink rose petals.

The maid of honor was Miss Elaine Williams who wore a butter yellow chiffon, ballerina length, a bandeau of golden glame-las, and carried a crescent of glame-las matching her bandeau. The bridesmaids were Miss Shirley Van, June Girod and Faith Johnson. They were frocked in dresses duplicating that of the honor maid, in colors of lavender, petal pink and cornflower blue. Their bandeaus and bouquets were of matching glame-las.

The bride entered on the arm of her brother, C. Bernard Van, who presented her to the groom.

She was gowned in chiffon tulle, fashioned with a fitted lace bodice, Sabrina neckline, and long tight sleeves. Added back interest was the overset panel extending into a chapel train.

She wore a small court crown of seed pearls, from which fell her misty veil of imported illusion. She carried a white Bible topped with a bouquet of stephanotis and feathered carnations centered with a white orchid, and tied with a shower of satin ribbons.

Reception A reception was held immediately following the ceremony, in the church annex, which was decorated with baskets of white gladioli, magnolia leaves and tall cathedral standards bearing lighted candles.

Receiving with the bride and groom were their mothers. Mrs. Van had chosen a smart navy

Wedding Gift Is Subject Of Puzzlement

What has three silver handles, a crooked iron leg and a little blue candle in the middle? Give up?

So did we when we got around to writing thank you notes for the wedding presents. The outsized box, emblazoned with the strange device, "Ye Odds Bodkins Hoppe," provided no clue save a little edged certificate which guaranteed lifetime service.

"Oooooohh, it's from Auntie Josephine," gushed my bride, turning first one way and then the other to determine if the handles might be legs or the leg might be a handle. "Now wasn't that sweet of her? Just what we always wanted, a . . . a . . . a . . ."

Her voice trailed off in a frenzied rustle of wrapping paper.

"A what, dear?" I asked. "You know perfectly well what it is. A chafing dish."

"With a hole in the middle? Won't the chafing drip into the same?"

"Well then it's one of those . . . those thing-a-ma-jigs," she improvised heatedly. "Why everybody has them nowadays. They have a thousand uses . . . like . . . like"

"Like drying wet shoes or burning tent caterpillars," suggested her 11-year-old brother, who was a second class Scout and trained in observation. The rest of her family circled cautiously to inspect this unidentified artifact.

"What's the candle for? Maybe it's an Arctic spittoon," said her father. I laughed the prudent little laugh that I always hold in reserve for jokes from her side of the family.

Grandfather offered himself as a contestant in this fascinating quiz game.

"It's a brooder furnace," he said authoritatively.

"A what?"

"Keeps baby chicks from freezing to death. We used to have one in the hen house when I was a young 'un."

"Oh, grandfather, how could you?" gasped the bride.

Her mother's protective instincts were aroused and she sprang to the defense. But it was too little and too late. "It's for making toast in the morning, of course," was the best she could do.

MISS JOYCE MORRISON, whose engagement is announced today by her mother, Mrs. N. C. Morrison, of Tuscaloosa, Alabama. She will marry Fred B. Frickie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Frickie of Monroe, a September wedding is planned, after which the couple will be in Tuscaloosa for a brief time.

Next For Our Sweet Tooth, Frozen Candy

By JEANNE LESEM

NEW YORK—Frozen candy will have an important place on grocery shopping lists within the next year or two, just as regular candy—in bars, boxes or bags—does now.

A spokesman for the candy industry, Don Gussow, said that experiments with fast freezing of candy are so encouraging that some frozen sweets may be available throughout the country in as little as a year. Test-marketing already has begun in some areas.

Gussow, editor and publisher of the Candy Industry and Confectioners' Journal, said that even the all-time favorite flavor—chocolate—can be sold in frozen form now that candy manufacturers have developed chocolate-flavored coatings using oils other than cocoa butter.

Not Much Change

This innovation isn't expected to make much of a change in the shopping picture. Since the decline of penny candy counters, which were patronized largely by children, mother has bought most of the candy for the family during her regular trips to the neighborhood supermarket.

The U. S. Commerce Department reports that today the candy shopping list at the market is longer than ever before—it accounts for 35 per cent of the candy sales, which last year provided 17.4 pounds of candy for every person in the United States.

North—South vulnerable. South deals.

South, 4 hearts; West, 4 spades; North, Pass; East, Pass.

South, 5 hearts; West, Pass; North, Pass; East, Pass.

Opening lead: King of diamonds.

An interesting example of "traffic control" is provided in today's deal, in which declarer manages to keep the danger hand out of the lead.

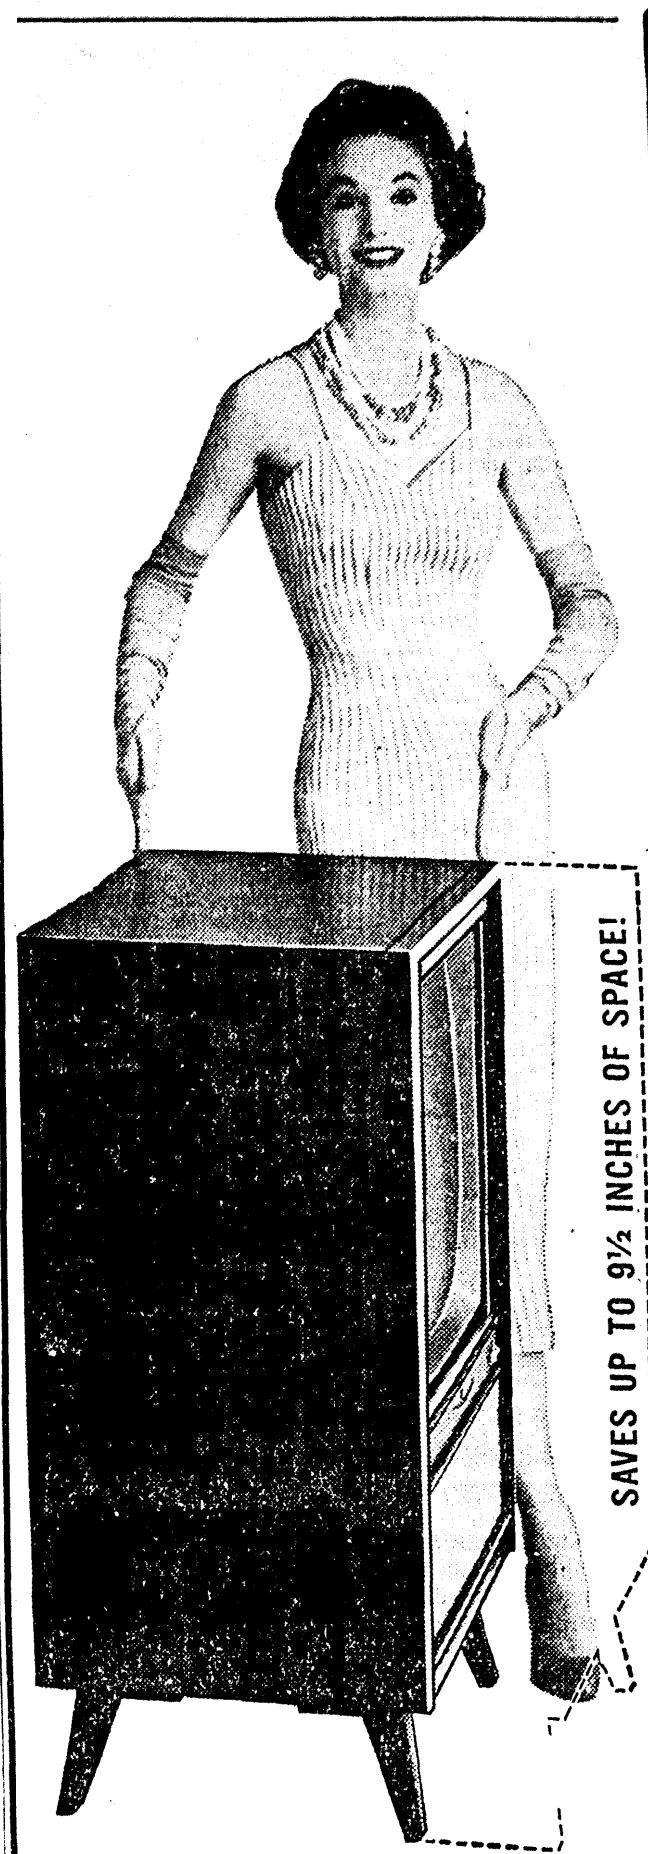

South opened with one heart and West overcalled with two diamonds. North had a choice of responses. He could have bid three clubs but chose, instead, to make a direct jump raise, forcing to game.

East, convinced that his vulnerable opponents were needed for the rubber, injected a three spade bid, hoping that he could find his partner with enough in that suit to render a sacrifice bid profitable. South went on to game, and West contested at four spades. North's choice of calls at this point is noteworthy. He was well within himself on the jump to three hearts and had reason to believe there was a good chance to make five hearts.

However, this did not induce him to make the commitment. His choice was more delicate. He passed. Since North and South had been doing the aggressive bidding this was a command to South either to double or bid five hearts. South, with indifferent defensive values, properly decided to go on.

West opened the king of diamonds. Declarer won, extracted trumps and then set to work on the club suit. He hoped West would have the three clubs and would win the trick in that suit in which case the king of spades could not be attacked. Declarer could then obtain a discard on dummy's established clubs. However, East was the one who took the club trick, and a spade lead sunk declarer.

With proper maneuvering, declarer could have established the club suit without permitting East to obtain the lead. After drawing trumps, declarer winds up in dummy. He then plays the jack of diamonds and discards a club from his own hand. Now, regardless of West's return, declarer can establish dummy's clubs by playing ace, king, and a ruff. In fact, after cashing the queen of diamonds, if West does not take his ace of spades he will lose it.

'Night Passage' Starring J. Stewart, Audie Murphy

A magnificent six-star action picture filmed in the most thrilling color process ever brought to the screen came to the Jim Theatre today with the presentation of "Night Passage," which has James Stewart and Audie Murphy heading its six-star cast.

The film is truly the most exciting package offered outdoor fans in a decade, since it combines the talents of two topflight action heroes with a unique story screened in Technirama, the new wide screen process, never before used in a movie, which has more clarity and warmth of color than any process to date.

Colorado is the background of this payroll robbery thriller with Stewart and Murphy in the most two-listed portrayals of their fabulous picture careers. Murphy becomes a villain in this one for the first time and Stewart is a hero, but both play in a relationship which remains a secret until the audience finds it out toward the middle of the story.

Never has U-I assembled such a perfect big name cast for an outdoor film as for this exceptionally suspenseful robber-killers yarn written by Borden Chase. Chief of the gang to which Murphy belongs is Dan Durysa, whose smile has more venom than a snake's fangs. An outstanding performance is given by young Brandon deWilde the boy who was so good in "Shane." In this film he's an unwilling member of the robber gang.

On the distaff side, Dianne Foster, as Charlie, the waitress, who loves Murphy in vain only to find that Stewart is her man, turns in a finely shaded characterization. Elaine Stewart, as the wife of railroad mogul Jay C. Flippen, has a come-hither look for both Stewart and Murphy which establishes her as one of the screen's most alluring glamour girls.

TV Notes

The National A. A. U. men's swimming and diving championships at Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, will be televised by CBS from 3 to 5 p.m., Aug. 4.

Interesting speculation: that NBC changed the title of its new fall one-hour series from "Crisis" to "Suspicion" because "Crisis" might be too easy for the public to confuse with the already established CBS series "Climax." Dennis O'Keefe, incidentally, has just been selected as host for "Suspicion."

"Beauty and the Beast" probably will start the series of fairy tales in which Shirley Temple will be involved for NBC. Jan. 12, 1958 will be the starting date. There will be 16 of the shows, some filmed, some live. Miss Temple will be hostess and narrator for all and act in an occasional one.

The starting time of the new "Tonight" format on NBC, with Jack Paar as head man, will be 11:15 p.m. instead of 11:30 as originally announced. It's on the air until 1 a.m. Paar begins July 29, Mondays through Fridays.

ABC has changed the starting date of "Circus Boy" from Sept. 5 to Sept. 19. The series moves to ABC from NBC.

Tido Feddersen, wife of producer Don Feddersen, has appeared in every story presented on his "The Millionaire" series on CBS. All walk-on roles; no dialogue. Sort of a good luck gag.

Stamp Honors The Late Magsaysay
Good news for collectors of U.S. commemoratives:
Here are the details on the 8-cent stamp honoring Ramon Magsaysay, late president of the Philippines. It will go on first day sale at Washington, Aug. 31.
The central design of the red, blue and gold adhesive is a medal on which is depicted the head of Magsaysay. Directly above the medal is a torch of liberty behind two crossed sprays of leaves. The words "Champion of Liberty" appear atop the stamp.
Collectors desiring first day covers may send their addressed envelopes, together with money orders to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Washington 13, D. C. Since this is a large size stamp, covers should be addressed in the lower left corner, particularly when blocks are desired.

The central design for the 6-cent airmail to be issued at the nation's capital on Aug. 1 will feature a B2 Stratofortress in a banking position with three F104 Starlighters in the background. The Air Force eagle and thunderbolt shield appear in the upper left corner superimposed over a portion of the wing of the Stratofortress.

The wording "Fiftieth Anniversary of the United States Air Force" is at the top of the adhesive. Collectors seeking first day covers are reminded to send their envelopes to the Postmaster, Washington 13, D. C., prior to Aug. 1.

The outside envelope to the Postmaster should be endorsed "First Day Covers 6-cent Air Force Stamp."

The United Nations Day stamp for 1957 will honor the Security Council. Scheduled for issuance Oct. 24, it will be in both the 3-cent and 8-cent denominations. Depicted will be the U.N. emblem shedding light on the globe. The wording "Security Council to

Summer Flowers In Sprig And Twig Show

By Mary M. Jardine

Arden-grown summer flowers commonly held view about its beautiful show presented by Sprig and Twig Garden Club, Monroe at our Garden Center week.

All of the arrangements were in blue ribbon class. Mrs. J.W. Miller and Mrs. R. F. Wilson tied high score. Mrs. Keller secured a square, black container her vertical design in an annual color harmony of red, red, red and violet. A stalk of red gladiolus formed the primary placement, followed by gladiolus flowers for accent. The arrangement was completed with zinnias from pale pink tints into deep rose red. Pittosporum and denia foliage placed in the background added depth to this arrangement.

A graceful crescent arrangement was designed by Mrs. Williams. The container, a low bowl dark green was perfect for the low helianthus flowers and self-lage. These were skillfully arranged in a crescent pattern with small flowers at the center, graduating to larger blooms the center and again the small flowers and buds at the tip of a crescent. This lovely arrangement was staged against a canvas background and would be suitable for a living room table book-case.

Mrs. E. D. Slaughter's design is a pyramid triangle. The color harmony of green and yellow is effectively achieved by the use of a soft green container, green in shape which blended in form with the furred canna leaves and curcuma foliage selected for background. Curcuma is shown locally as the Pinnapple-inger lily. Marigolds shading from light yellow to deep yellow are placed within the established pattern. Cool and lovely for the living room table or a buffet.

The use of the various types of mulching materials is thoroughly discussed in the Brooklyn Botanic Garden's recently published Handbook on Mulches. This book contains the most controversial mulch given a tremendous boost. The

About Homes And Gardens

THE HOME SHIFT

Lawn Well Worth Hours Spent On It

By Mildred Swift

A lawn is well worth the hours spent with it. Just as a picture needs a frame, your house needs a foreground and a background. Your lawn serves this purpose. With all the rains we had early in the spring, much of the food has been leached from the soil. If you haven't fertilized recently, you need to do that now. Use a complete fertilizer such as 8-8-8 or as we said a few weeks back, just nitrogen. Water down well.

Mrs. Feeney and I were talking about her lawn last Sunday and decided she needed to sift some good soil down in the sod. After a number of years the runners just run over themselves instead of getting down to the soil. The lawn mower cuts these fresh sprigs leaving only the old grass. You'll think the grass is dying, when it only needs some fresh soil for the new runners.

More Gardening

Seems to me banana plants are not blooming up to par this summer. Those who have blooms really cherish them for arrangements. One blossom with some fill in material will make a lovely picture. The arrangements like to strip the banana leaves down to the center vein. Then they use this as spike material with the bloom. This is one plant that multiplies rapidly. Your neighbors can give you a plant in the spring. The foliage is coarse, the color light green, both giving interest and variation in your garden.

Continuing our discussion on crepe myrtles, have you noticed the lavender and watermelon red ones at the foot of the Louisville bridge in West Monroe? These have been planted a number of years and have survived the elements. The lavender was not topped so is tree type. The watermelon ones have been topped so the blossoms droop more. Since the many ways you can treat one plant, I'm sure you know that crepe myrtles will often still stay dormant for a year, then put out the next year. So if you have plants that have not put out, cut them back and wait. I've even had plants to put out their leaves as late as July then grow and flourish. This is true of newly planted shrubs.

Watch evergreens for red spider. Run your finger on the underside of a leaf. If there is red mud, the pest is there. Spray with malathion according to the instructions on the outside of the container.

Human Voice May Soon Be Translated From One Language To Another One

By FRANK FRAWLEY

PASADENA, Calif., July 27 (AP)—Within five years delegates to the United Nations may watch a Russian speaker and hear his words magically transformed to their language by an electrical computer.

An energetic 32-year old Hungarian, Peter Tomas, says the day is most surely coming when the human voice can be translated mechanically from one language to another. He has high hopes of bringing about this advance in diplomatic interchange of thoughts and ideas in speech.

He is started now toward his goal. A year ago he came across a copy of the Soviet newspaper Pravda, and a story of a Russian computing machine that translates English into Russian by means of an electric typewriter.

Today at California Institute of Technology, Tomas, who once studied international diplomacy in Hungary, is making a giant computer translate Russian into French, Spanish, German and English.

Using computers to translate one language into another isn't new. It was begun in 1948 and considerable progress has been made at such institutions as Georgetown University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the University of Washington and the Birkbeck College of the University of London.

The United States Army and Navy also are carrying on this work, much of it experimental in classified fields.

But Tomas believes he is the first to make the computer write in five languages. He speaks and writes in seven languages himself. He has put in thousands of hours in the last year in the basement of Caltech's physics laboratory, feeding words from an electric typewriter onto paper tape. The tape is used to transmit electrical impulses to a large drum that serves as the heart and brain of the big computer.

In the tape are formulas and commands that enable the machine to take entire sentences in one language and print them back on the automatic typewriter in another language.

Tomas sat at his typewriter and typed this sample sentence in Russian: "Machine prevodit s odnogo yazyka na drugoy." He fed the tape into the drum with a punched command that it be translated into four languages. He pressed a button. The computer went to work. Lights flashed, drum whirled at 3,500 revolutions per minute and 1,500 radio tubes lit up.

Soon the typewriter typed out this sentence in English: "Machine translates from one language to another."

Soon the typewriter typed out this sentence in French: "Machine translates from one language to another." It followed in German, Spanish and Italian.

For the last year Tomas has been building up the language potential of the computer. It has 4,000 machine words now. These words are, of course, figures that are mathematically calculated by the

SUMMER CARE

Regularity A Must For Rose Blooms

Day by day the sun grows hotter and hotter, but wise gardeners know that by regular hot weather care, they can keep their rose bushes blooming in all their summer magnificence. The whole secret is regularity, and experts say that just a few hours a week will maintain the rose garden as the neighborhood showplace.

All-America varieties like other hardy roses, are bred to withstand the heat of mid-summer. But even the A. A. R. S. champions will do better with a planned care schedule.

Cultivation of rose beds should be light as rose plants have many fine root systems growing close to the surface. A layer of mulch, straw, shavings or straw or hayward manure will do much to keep the growth of weeds to a minimum, and at the same time lower the temperature of the soil and rate of evaporation.

While roses do not like to stand in water, a sufficient quantity is a must. This does not mean a sprinkling of the bed now and then, but a real soaking to at least the depth of eight inches, one of the easiest ways to do this is to let the hose trickle around the base of the plants for at least a half hour at a time. Or letting the hose run across a board placed in the bed will also spread the water gently around the plants. Do not sprinkle the foliage as this is apt to lead to mildew and blackspot, except in the arid southwest where overhead sprinkling is optional.

As disease and insects seem to thrive in hotter weather, now is the time to also spray or dust every ten days. When spraying or dusting, take time to coat both sides of the leaves to give the roses complete protection. Again, the southwest is an exception due to comparative freedom from blackspot. Unless aphids or other insects have invaded the rose garden or mildew has been found, spraying or dusting can be omitted here.

If the roses are sprayed, it should be done early enough in the evening to allow the plants to dry before nightfall.

These few duties will help even the magnificent 1957 varieties to greater beauty. While Rouge de Hollande, the sparkling white Florida-bred will reward the gardener with an unending array of white blossoms almost completely covering the bush. And Golden Showers, the lovely daffodil yellow climber who also won the 1957 award will continue to bloom later in the season.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Your Open House programs for next week are as follows: Monday and Tuesday, "Making Slip Covers"; Wednesday, flower arrangements and gardening; Thursday and Friday, marketing and food preparation.

Between the innocence of childhood and the dignity of manhood we find a delightful creature called a boy. A girl is a creature with dirt on its face, beauty with a cut on its finger, wisdom with bubble gum in its hair, and the hope of the future with a frog in its pocket. Little girls are one of the nicest things that happen to people. A girl is innocence playing in the mud, beauty standing on its head, and motherhood dragging a dolly by the foot.

See you next Sunday.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Mid-Summer Time For Ground Problems And Hot Diseases

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Mid-summer is sure to bring to Southern gardens and grounds the problems and diseases of hot weather. Droughts and long hot periods are conducive to what we call red spiders. Web worms dot the landscape on sourwoods, persimmons and some other trees. Fire blight has usually killed back some branches of pyracantha, coneflowers, flowering quinces, apples, pears and many others of their kinship and left the dead branches with blackened leaves.

Boxwood must be watched from now till cool weather. Spray the bushes with all the water possible. You can get a fine spray about once a week. Clean out the trash and dead leaves right now. You may need a whisk brush with a solution that is diluted down to one part lime sulphur and fifty parts water. This is the fine spray used as a dormant pests down in hot dry times, but spray in winter but made very much weaker in summer. Those bunches of "caterpillars" in your trees can be eliminated with ease by tacking a nail into a long pole and tying some old rags on the end around the nail. Just wind the webs off the tree. Do not burn them! Be sure to stand out from under the webs to prevent their falling on your skin. They do not sting you; you sting yourself by bumping into their hairs!

Fire blight must be eliminated by cutting three or four inches below the blackened wood. Be sure to dip your pruners, saw or whatever you use into formalin or 70 per cent alcohol before you make each cut. Otherwise, you may spread the bacteria from each cut to the next one. Those occasional dead twigs and branches that appear on redbuds do not seem to be a serious disease and not fire blight.

to pass under bridges now across the river, Larson had to cut and hinge the stack so it would fold back on scaffolding erected behind the pilot house.

Old riverboat men from miles around turned out as crewmembers for the final voyage of the last steam-powered boat in Alaska inland waters.

Larson, who made more than 100 trips aboard the "Nenana" in the days before Diesel tugs and cargo aircraft ended her Yukon career and took a leave of absence from his regular job to rehabilitate her, said he made the final trip "for sentimental reasons."

The Fairbanks Chamber of Commerce is hoping similar sentiment on the part of tourists will turn the "Nenana" again into a profit-making sternwheeler.

DANGER SIGN

Tree Fungi Often Ruins Rustic Effect

Trees should lend a rustic touch to the home landscape—but not a rusty one. Rusty tints among the foliage are a definite danger sign, warning of possible parasitic infection.

If you are planting now, avoid the species that enable some rust fungi to deliver one-two wallops to your arboreal friends.

Rust parasites infect by spore germination and they need two hosts to complete their life cycle. The spores must alight first on one tree and then on the alternate host, always an unrelated kind.

Most widespread of the home grounds diseases that need dual hosts are the cedar rusts. These include cedar-apple, cedar-hawthorn and cedar-pear, the latter a particularly serious problem to orchardists.

Another two-host combination is white pine—currants or gooseberries. The resultant infection is called white pine blister rust.

Many home owners are unaware of the danger—dealing by rust fungi or how to combat their attacks. Spores often have an active carrying range of at least two to three hundred yards. Most effective control is to remove the least desirable of the two host trees. If one host tree is on a neighboring property, then a fairly adequate control job can be done next spring with ferbam sprays.

Once Prisoners, Germans Now Make Good Britishers

By JOHN GALE

LONDON, July 27 (AP)—When Great Britain freed drives of German prisoners from its prison camps in 1945, she probably never guessed that nine years later 13,000 of them would be firmly entrenched in the British economy.

Yet, today, there are at least that many who have returned to Britain to make their homes and their lives, working at British jobs for British money and buying British products.

Furthermore, this corps of still-young men are earning a reputation for industry and reliability throughout the land. They work side by side with British neighbors and many of them have married British girls.

Of all the segments of the population, they have, perhaps, caused the least amount of trouble. And Britain, faced with the departure of many of her citizens from Canada and the United States, probably welcomes this immigration of citizens from another advanced European country.

Take for instance the case of Bernhard Carl Trautman. As a goal-keeper for the Manchester soccer team, Trautman has attracted national attention. When his infant son was killed in an accident last year, he attracted national sympathy as well.

Trautman is from Bremen. The British call him "Bert" for short. A veteran of two rough soccer finals at Wembley, Trautman played in one last year despite a broken neck. The sports-minded British have never forgotten that, nor his valiant comeback this year.

Off-field, he lives quietly with his English wife, Margaret. A former paratrooper on the Russian front, who was once classified as a Nazi, he has come to stay.

A great many former prisoners still work the land, some on the farms of their wartime captivity. An official of the National Union of Agricultural Workers says they are "good and respected members."

Some have left the land in search of the bigger money offered in the cities.

Other ex-prisoners are scattered through scores of Britain's diverse trades—in building, factories, butcher's shops, coal mines and iron and steel workshops.

Old River Queen To Be A Tourist Attraction

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—The great steamboat "Nenana," 236 feet of nostalgia for lovers of the old sternwheeler river queens, has come to rest as a tourist attraction in this metropolis 100 miles south of the Arctic Circle.

A volunteer crew of old riverboat veterans nursed the big steamboat 70 miles up the Tanana and Chena rivers early this summer. After a three-day voyage, they beached the big boat a few hundred yards from downtown Fairbanks.

The "Nenana" has earned her rest, after a long career as the biggest sternwheeler west of the Mississippi river. She was built during the winter of 1931-32 in Nenana and went into service in the summer of 1932.

In her prime, the big white boat churned the waters of one of the world's mightiest rivers. She carried passengers and freight in summer-time boats of more than 600 miles on the Yukon river, from Marshall—near the Bering Sea—to the town of Tanana, in northern interior Alaska.

The boat, owned by the Alaska Railroad, went out of service in 1954 and has been tied up at Nenana. She was bought last

MY ANSWER

By Billy Graham

QUESTION: My husband and I are Christians and trying hard to train our children right. Our next door neighbor makes fun of Christianity before our children and tells them we are narrow and behind the times. How can we handle such a situation? L.K.

ANSWER: You need the grace of God and sanctified common sense and courage. Make this a matter of prayer, asking God to lead you as to the time and the way you should deal with your neighbor. Remember the vital importance of letting him see you as a Christian should act. This does not mean that you should not show righteous indignation, for you should. But you can show true humility and love too. When you feel God has given you an opportunity of His own making, go to your neighbor and have a very clear and frank talk with him. Tell him that your Christian faith and convictions are the most precious thing you have. Tell him you want your children to have these things too and that he is trying to do them a great injustice. Call to his attention the fact that it is the Christian faith in the hearts of people and the churches in the community which make it a place worth living in. But for these things, no community would be safe. Ask him if he would take "be food you provide for your children?" Then tell him he is trying to take away their spiritual food and heritage. If you face this in God's time and way, I believe your problem will be solved and you may win your neighbor.

The golden text is: "O sing unto the Lord a new song; for he hath done marvelous things: which hath remembered his mercy and his truth toward the house of Israel: all the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of God" (Ps. 98:1, 3).
Among the citations which comprise the lesson - sermon is the following from the Bible: "A God of truth and without iniquity, just and strong is he" (Deut. 32:4).
The lesson - sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mortals try to believe without understanding. Truth: yet God is Truth" (12:2).

School Aid Will Be Hot Vote Issue

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON (AP)—Political repercussions from Thursday's House vote killing a federal school aid bill are likely to echo loudly through the 1958 congressional election campaign.

But spokesmen for the Democratic and Republican congressional campaign committees disagree over how effective the vote will be as a political issue.

All House seats come up for election every two years.

Democrats believe they will be able to beat some incumbent Republicans who voted to kill the bill. Their chances will be enhanced, they claim, in districts where there is a heavy Negro vote, since the bill contained an anti-segregation clause.

And since a majority of Republicans in the House voted to kill the bill while a majority of Democrats voted to save it, the Democrats think they may have a defense for any campaign plea by President Eisenhower for more Republicans in Congress.

The President has in past campaigns called for more Republicans to help him carry out his legislative program. The school bill was a major part of his program. Although the measure killed by the House was not exactly what the President wanted, it was represented as being acceptable to him. Yesterday, a White House spokesman said Eisenhower had expressed "great disappointment" at the House action.

Had a majority of Republicans not voted to kill the bill, the House would have had an opportunity to vote on a compromise measure almost word-for-word what the President wanted.

The actual vote: For killing the bill, 111 Republicans and 97 Democrats; against killing it, 77 Republicans and 126 Democrats.

Republicans generally discount the potency of the school bill vote as a political issue. Some of their political strategists believe the taxpayers aren't in favor of the legislation and consider school construction a local responsibility.

Last year's election results support their position. The House killed a similar school measure in 1956 with a majority of Republicans opposing the bill and a majority of Democrats supporting it.

In the elections that followed, Republicans had a net loss of two House seats. They claim the school vote was not the dominant issue in any district.

The 1958 elections will be decided mainly on local issues, Republicans believe, since there is no pre-presidential contest. In no district now represented by GOP congressmen is federal school-aid an issue, Republicans maintain.

Democrats hope to change that situation and force the issue wherever they believe it might help the Democratic cause.

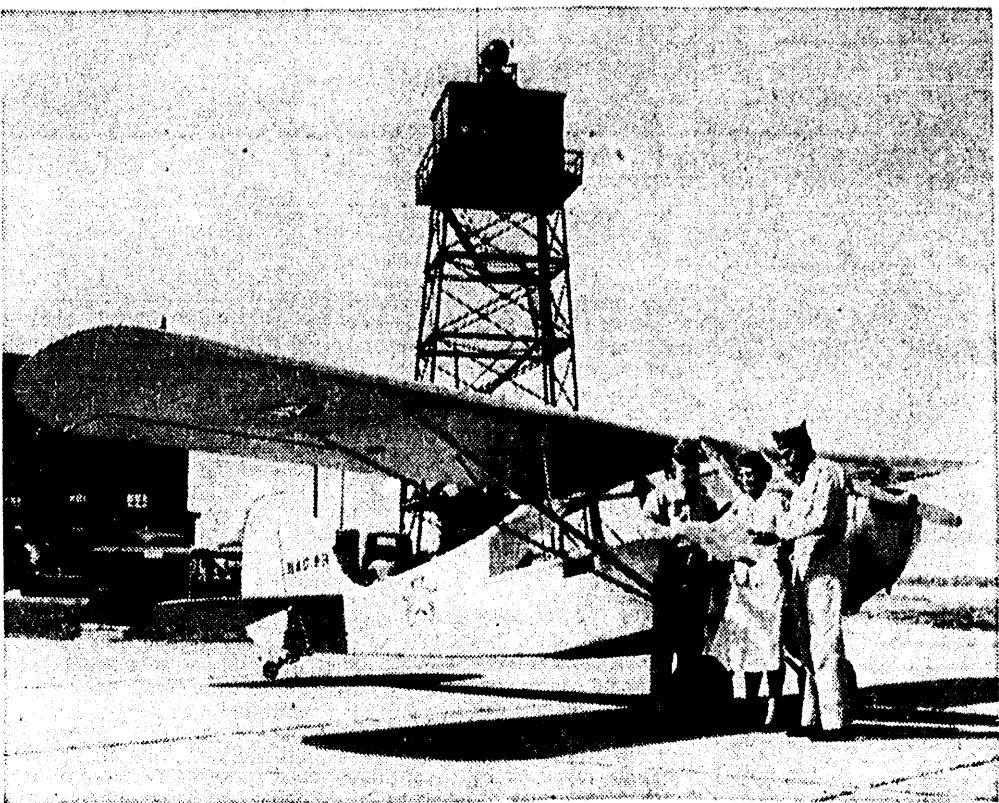

Tech Grads To Hold Rehearsal Session July 31

RUSTON, July 27 (Special)—Summer graduates of Louisiana Tech soon will get ready for their big parade.

A graduation rehearsal is scheduled for 10 a.m. on Wednesday, July 31, in Howard Auditorium. The outgoing seniors will be excused from classes to attend the practice session.

The commencement program will be held at 8 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 8. T. H. Bible, vice-president and assistant to the general manager of the Lion Oil Company in El Dorado, has accepted an invitation to give the graduation address. Candidates for degrees total 113 seniors.

Confederate Cannoneers Marching On

OAK GROVE (Special)—The Confederate Cannoneers, an organization which spreads pomp, pageantry and good humor at parades and various special functions, has unfurled its banner in many places since its organization here some two years ago.

From the original Oak Grove unit the organization has spread out until it also has units in Winona and Columbus, Miss., according to H. D. Ruffin, Bastrop, adjutant general.

Each unit composed of around 50 members has about the same setup, a drum and bugle corps which parades on foot, and mule-drawn caissons with a replica of a confederate cannon of the ball shot variety.

Members wear colorful uniforms of the old confederacy and often at parades or other ceremonies issue a commission in the Confederate Army to some distinguished guest. "Sometimes," says

Ruffin, "they execute a Yankee spy for not liking pot liquor, turpentine and sow belly. Old rifles borrowed from the American Legion are used with blank ammunition."

Just how much fun is dispensed depends upon the reception given by the audience, the adjutant general said.

Organizers

The Oak Grove chapter was organized by Ruffin, M. R. Lingenfelter, who is its president, Army Sgt. Sam Harrison, and Chief Petty Officer Nick Harrison. Later Sgt. Harrison moved to Columbus, Miss. and organized another chapter. That was about a year ago.

Newest unit in the spreading confederacy fun organization is the one at Winona, Miss., which was organized about three months ago by attorney Hugh Bailey and W. G. Grice, of the Mississippi Livestock Brand Commission, and others.

The Oak Grove chapter has appeared in quite a number of parades, and took part in the last Mardi Gras ceremonies at New Orleans.

Warm praise was heaped on members of the Winona post after its members took part in a parade and other activities at the Mississippi American Legion's state convention this month in Jackson.

"Your participation in our parade was a highlight of the whole convention affairs," wrote Jack Pace, state commander of the Legion in Mississippi in a letter to Adjutant Ruffin.

Monroe Nerve Center In Civil Defense Plan

12-Parish Area Served By Setup

By MARY 'NNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

Monroe is the center of a twelve-parish Civil Defense unit known as District F, and also listed as Area 4 on the state CD maps. We are known as a support area—in case of enemy attack or natural disaster this section is expected to be free from the worst effects, and will serve as an aid for those sectors which are hit hard.

Civil Defense is a coordinating agency for other agencies which will help the public in emergencies. Many other groups work to help form what actually will work as civil defense, including mass feeding groups, whose home unit is the Red Cross, the Ground Observer Corps, the Civil Air Patrol, ham radio operators, volunteer clerical workers, and wardens.

The main office in Monroe is located at 400 Stone, in a converted fire station. From here, the city has been sectioned off on a large map through the aid of the Fire Department. Civil Defense wardens have been appointed in each section, and in the rural areas of Ouachita parish.

Each ward—knows the number of people in his area, those who would need special assistance in an emergency—such as the blind—and the residents who have had first aid training. He also knows where emergency fire equipment is. He is the link between specialized civil defense services and individuals.

12 Districts

Monroe is divided into 12 districts and 26 zones, according to population density.

During natural disasters, such as floods or hurricanes, the Red Cross is the main agency for aiding the population, assisted by CD. In national emergencies, Civil Defense takes the lead.

The director of the District F CD Staff is A. B. Clarkson, assisted by Mrs. David Agnew, executive secretary is Mrs. George Forman.

A major agency working with Civil Defense is the Ground Observer Corps. Composed of more than 80 members in Monroe, the unit has an observation post on the roof-top of the Frances Hotel.

The GOC backs up the Air Force radar facilities; if the radar failed to work, the GOC would be the only warning device against enemy bombers.

50 Observation Posts

Approximately 50 observation posts exist in District F with the main "filter center" located at Shreveport. Each parish has a coordinator appointed by Civil Defense, and this person obtains the observation post and appoints a post supervisor. Don Lomax heads the Monroe unit.

The filter center at Barksdale Air Force Base in Shreveport sent M-Sgt. Joe Hogg and S-Sgt. Troy Gray to District F, and they have formed training units to instruct civilian volunteers in the proper reporting of aircraft.

The Air Force sergeants have shown films and held training classes at GOC units throughout District F, with the Monroe classes held at CD headquarters.

Once a month practice alerts are held, and GOC members participate for training purposes, to be prepared to give proper coverage if a national emergency should develop. More than 44 planes were sighted by observers here during one alert. National Guard and air force planes are used during the practice alerts. All planes are reported to the Shreveport filter center.

The GOC also assists with hurricane tracking, and has had classes here on rescue services training.

The civil air patrol is another important unit connected with civil defense. The CAP is now participating actively with the GOC, and has become a very useful agency, particularly during national and natural disasters.

OBSERVERS SIGHT AIRCRAFT—From the Ground Observer Corps post on the top of the Frances Hotel, a clear view of the skies for many miles can be obtained. Plane spotters are interested in the sound and direction of the aircraft, and try to distinguish other outstanding characteristics. Linda Eby here sights a plane through binoculars, while Chief Observer Susan Wilson makes a note of the aircraft, and Chief Observer Melvin Johnson calls the filter center in Shreveport to report the plane from the special CD phone. (Staff photo by John I. Fogleman)

Aerial Surveys

The CAP assists in making aerial surveys of ground conditions, and aids in rescue work. Meeting every Monday night at the air force reserve center, the CAP is open to all persons 15 years of age or older, who are interested in planes or flying. Forty-eight persons belong, including six women.

Dr. Lee Koehler is commander of the Monroe CAP unit. Each meeting serves to provide new instructions on various parts of air-planes, and regardless of whether members actually fly the CAP plane or not, they obtain valuable information.

Communications. A vital thing in any disaster period. If the phone system should be knocked down, ham radio operators would be the source of communications.

During the recent hurricane, local amateurs helped handle traffic conditions in the southern part of the state. In this way often in points where all communications except ham radios were out of order, the weather made it impossible for southern operators to hear each other clearly. Monroe area radio-men could hear the amateurs, and relayed information from one operator to another, on handling traffic flow, and in relaying other vital information.

Defense Radio

The Ouachita Valley Amateur Radio Club, with a membership of nearly 60, mans the civil defense radio. The CD radio, located at the Stone street headquarters, is capable of communication with any spot in the world. The transmitter is maintained for traffic handling in a CD emergency.

Chief radio officer for CD is E. S. "Red" Wells, who revealed that any amateur, by virtue of his license, is pledged to give aid in any emergency. The club members meet on the last Thursday of each month at the CD headquarters, and discuss various problems affecting the welfare of radio operators and civilians in emergencies. Special classes in theory and code have been conducted by the group.

In an emergency or drill, members stand-by at CD headquarters to handle communications. Wells stated that those desiring to become amateurs could get in contact with the club president, Ted Van Landingham, who would assign someone to train them in passing the government examination for ham radio operators.

Many teenage boys are members of the group, plus college men, women, and older operators.

Rescue Team

In connection with the Monroe CD, a special rescue team of 38 men in Bastrop has been trained to carry on rescue work in case of an emergency. These men know all the proper methods for helping persons to safety from second story or higher levels, if other means of leaving the building were prevented, for example by fire on the lower level.

The unit owns a rescue truck, purchased through matching funds—part provided by the Morehouse parish police jury, and part by federal funds secured through civil defense channels.

All 12 parishes in district F have legal mutual aid agreements, made by the police juries with district F headquarters, so that in a disaster period, personnel and equipment from the parishes will be used wherever needed.

The Red Cross is the Civil Defense agency for training personnel in first aid, methods of registration of evacuees and skill-ed personnel in disasters, and emergency mass feeding. During the CD alert on July 12, the mass feeding team went into operation, and prepared hundreds of sandwiches and drinks within 15 minutes—proof that their training has been of benefit.

Infant Feeding

This year, women have also been trained in infant mass feeding by a local Home Demonstration club. All types of mass feeding will be a major necessity if an emergency, with hundreds of persons lacking food and shelter, should ever occur.

Plans are currently being developed to form a first aid team, which could be sent out to any place in the district to carry on further instructions of other area residents.

Two week-long courses in basic Civil Defense training have been held at the Northeast Louisiana State College, to acquaint persons from throughout the state and region with CD work.

Civil Defense is on the alert 24-hours a day. During daytime hours Mrs. Forman is on duty at the headquarters. The instant before she leaves the office, she flips a key and turns the CD phone over to the Central Fire Alarm headquarters on Hudson Lane.

One junior and one senior operator are on duty at all times at the fire alarm building, and are prepared to handle any emergency which might come through over the CD phone, also.

Civil defense is each individual's responsibility, officials remind. Every home should be stocked with a first-aid kit and the know-how to use it; a seven-days food supply; one of the new realistic and simplified food kits so compact that a child can carry one, yet containing the foods necessary to keep a refugee alive in a disaster period; flashlights; and the equipment to put out an emergency fire in the home.

Inflation Bounces Back Into News During Week

By WALTER BREDER JR.
NEW YORK, July 27 (AP)—Inflation bounced back into the news this week as bankers, industrialists, merchants and consumers worried about mounting costs and rising prices.

The impact of inflation on John Q. Consumer was spotlighted in the government's latest cost-of-living index. It showed consumer prices at a record high, and still climbing.

In June the index rose to 120.2 percent of the 1947-49 average, setting a new high for the 10th straight month. That means it took more than $120 of your money to buy the groceries, shelter, clothes, transportation, fun, education and personal and medical care that $100 would have bought nine years ago.

Climbing Higher
Government economists said the July index would be even higher. But they held out a ray of hope—the upturn may be halted for at least a while when major farm crops are harvested this autumn.

Businessmen, too, could look forward to more inflation. Auto and truck prices are still about 10 percent higher than a year ago. Retail prices were scheduled to rise in a few days. Railroads were banking on another fat boost in freight rates. Retailers figured on paying more for appliances and other steel-containing items as a result of the recent rise in basic steel prices. Wage costs continued to move up. The latest hike in the government's cost-of-living index brought another round of automatic pay raises for 650,000 workers in such key lines as electrical manufacturing, aircraft production, trucking and construction.

Still holding inflation in check were two massive economic forces. One was an unprecedented abundance of industrial raw materials and consumer goods. The other was a shortage of easy credit. With goods plentiful and cheap credit scarce, consumers and businessmen lacked earlier incentives to splurge.

Consumers were still buying this week but they were in a cautious mood and inclined to shop carefully for bargains. Auto sales reflected the trend—used cars were in strong demand while factory-fresh models sold at discounts.

Businessmen, too, showed signs of economizing. There were reports—since denied by at least one of the networks involved—that choice air time on the big television networks was going beginning for makers of sponsors. Cost-conscious manufacturers were described as increasingly reluctant to pick up the tab for night-time shows.

Cost Squeeze
The much-discussed cost squeeze on profits was apparent in this week's batch of corporate earnings reports, but there were not a few exceptions. One was Chrysler, whose first-half earnings skyrocketed to a new high of $80,741,000, up a breath-taking 380 percent from a year ago. Others included Ford, whose first-half profits climbed sharply, and Bethlehem Steel, which scored new first-half highs in production, sales and billings.

General Motors reported a 4.4 percent dip in first-half profits, from 502 millions last year to 481 millions, despite a slight rise in world-wide sales—from $3,869,000,000 to $3,914,000,000. Sales of GM cars and trucks produced in U. S. plants, including Cadillac, Buick, Oldsmobile, Pontiac and Chevrolet, were down 11 percent—a trend the big automaker hopes to rectify by making drastic style changes in its 1958 models.

GRAIN

CHICAGO, July 27 (AP)—Biggest disappointment on the Board of Trade this week was the failure of any large scale bakery flour business to develop.

As a result, wheat futures rolled along on a weak tone most of the week, except on Friday when the bread grain got a lift in reports that some flour business, although small, had been sighted. This brought on a moderate rally and wheat closed higher for the first time this week.

STOCK AVERAGE GOES UP—The Associated Press average of 60 stocks moved higher to 187.1 from 186.8 a week ago. The commodity index declined meanwhile, closing at 181.7 from 182.3 in the preceding period. The grain component showed the sharpest decline. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

NO COMMENT
By JAMES W. DOUTHETT

WASHINGTON (Special)—The Treasury's year-end financial report, plus Congressional economic action, clearly reveal the feasibility of much-needed tax reduction. Revenues of the Federal Government are growing with the expansion of the economy. Spending must be restrained therefore, in order to provide a surplus which would facilitate tax reduction.

This position has been taken by many business groups. It is evident that such a tax reduction need not be a "one-shot" measure, for revenue will continue to increase as the growth of the economy increases.

The Treasury report for the fiscal year ending last June 30 shows a surplus of $1.6 billion—the second surplus under the Eisenhower Administration.

The significant figures, however, are buried deep in the Treasury report. They show that Treasury revenues as of June 30 were $17 billion more than estimated when President Eisenhower submitted his budget on Jan. 16, 1956.

Thus, a "cushion" for tax reduction was provided by growth of the economy. However, expenditures during this period exceeded estimates by $3.4 billion.

Congressional Action—In spite of charges of "phony" economy, it appears that Congress may cut the Eisenhower $71.8 billion budget by more than $4 billion.

The latest manifestation of the economy spirit in Congress was the agreement of the Senate-House Conference Committee on the Department of Defense budget.

The amount agreed on was $33,759,850,000 for the present fiscal year. This was a cut of $2,368,150,000 under the Eisenhower budget. Only a few days before, the House had voted a foreign aid bill totaling $3,116,833,000 for the year. This was $747,000,000 under Mr. Eisenhower's formal request. But it was about $1.3 billion under the originally projected foreign aid program.

Since the House cut below the Senate figure, it was possible that a compromise would place foreign aid spending somewhat above the House authorization. After the authorization bill is passed, the actual appropriation must be voted.

Administration Plans—Meanwhile, the Eisenhower Administration appeared determined to put into effect some real economies in government.

This attitude was, in effect, (1) a response to the nationwide demand for economy and (2) a belief that a cut in government spending was desirable as a brake on inflation.

The Bureau of the Budget, acting for the President, opened the Administration economy drive by urging government departments to keep expenditures to last year's level where possible. Last year's level was about $2 billion under the Eisenhower budget.

Secondly, Secretary of Defense Wilson, whose department spends more than half the federal budget, inaugurated economy moves. Included was a planned reduction of 100,000 in the Armed Forces, bringing government back

Import Cutbacks Expected Shortly

By TEX EASLEY
WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—Reports circulated today that the President's oil imports cabinet committee shortly will recommend that imports be restricted to about one million barrels a day.

The issue has been pending for months, with domestic producers urging a curtailment. The State Department has been concerned because of the effect of such a curtailment would have on Venezuela and the Middle East.

Under the plan the cabinet committee is reported ready to recommend to President Eisenhower are these three features:

Imports by major shippers for the three-year period 1954-56 would be averaged up. The resultant annual average then would be cut by 10 percent to reach a new import quota.

Largely Newcomers
A second group of importers, as distinguished from the major companies, would be given a final chance to curb their imports by voluntarily before import quotas were imposed. Imports now are reported to be averaging about 1,100,000 barrels per day and increasing at a rate which would bring the rate to about 1,200,000 barrels by Jan. 1.

Domestic producers contend increasing shipments have forced cutbacks in this country and curtailed exploration for new reserves. They argue that this is a threat to the national security, justifying the requested action by the President.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

F. Dale Meadows at Virginia Pharmacy and H. A. Clowers of Monroe Wholesale Drug Co. have each been awarded a $50 prize in an area-wide Eversharp-Schick display contest, according to John Phillips, Eversharp-Schick representative.

James Wallace, former resident of Monroe, has been appointed assistant to the president of the National Container Corporation, subsidiary of Owens-Illinois Glass Company. In the position, he will devote his time and attention to sales and marketing with headquarters in Toledo, O.

E. A. Barielle, operations manager of the Louisiana division of marketing for Esso Standard Oil Company, has announced the distribution of 36 certificates of service to employees who have an aggregate total of 344 years service. Among those receiving certificates are: P. J. Mundo of Monroe and J. S. Cross, of Ferriday.

Home—Mr. Eisenhower took another step in his campaign to shift some responsibilities from the Federal Government to state and local governments.

He named a committee of seven federal officers, including three Cabinet members, to cooperate with a 10-member committee of the Conference of Governors.

The duty of this group is to canvass the multi-billion dollar Federal grant-in-aid program, and find ways to reduce it. Mr. Eisenhower made his proposal for a joint federal-state conference at the recent Governors' Conference.

While the subject of federal grants-in-aid has been studied by Congressional committees, the Hoover Commission and the Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, Mr. Eisenhower believes that further effort is necessary.

in the business or small independent concerns. Under the reported plan this group might receive some slight increase in permissible imports.

The Pacific Coast would be exempt from the import restrictions. Thus Canadian producers could continue to send into that area as much as they desired.

Cotton Futures Turn Soft With Active Trading

NEW YORK, July 27 (AP)—Cotton futures prices turned soft this week. Active futures contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange took net losses ranging from $1.90 to $2.35 a bale.

Trading was characterized by an almost total absence of bullish factors. On the bearish side were improved crop prospects, fading hopes for any major increases in the final loan rate, and hints in official quarters that exports of the new crop year would trail the prospective total for the current season by a sizable margin.

There was one prediction that exports of U.S. cotton next season would range from 4½ million to 6 million bales as compared to a total of around 7,600,000 bales for the year ending July 31.

Export Sales Dip
Sales of government-owned cotton by the Commodity Credit Corporation under the federally sponsored export program totaled only 54,820 bales at the latest sale July 23. Of this total, 2,001 bales were designated for shipment on or before Aug. 15 and the remaining 52,819 for export after that date.

CLEANS WITHOUT BRUSH

Dental Surgeon Perfects Tablet-Form Toothpaste

DALLAS, Tex., July 27 (UP)—A Santa Fe, N. M., dental surgeon has perfected a toothpaste in tablet form after more than six years of research.

The dentist, Dr. D. Dale Collins, who formerly practiced in the Midland-Odessa, Tex., area, made it available at first only to his patients as a prescription item.

He said the demand was so great that he sold it to Lanpar Co., a Dallas pharmaceutical house. This firm says that in a 41-day period, the one-millionth tablet, whose trade name is Twiggler, had been sold in the Southwest.

Convenient

Dr. Collins said he developed the tablet as a convenient method for cleaning the teeth and gums where there was no toothbrush handy. It was developed as a means of cleaning the teeth at midday, after a coffee break, or smoking and snacks.

Oren Parmeter, president of the Lanpar Co., said the tablet is effervescent. The mouth is rinsed with water, then the tablet is chewed. It begins to work by effervescence or bubbling action.

Between Truth

"This effervescent action," Parmeter said, "carries the cleansing agent between the teeth, up and around the gums and throughout the mouth. A simple 'swishing' action will increase the activity... after a few 'swishes,' one expects and rinses the mouth again with water."

The tablet has been introduced thus far only in the Southwest. The firm will put it on the domestic market nationally shortly. It is put up in vials of 10 and retails for 19 cents. It also will be put in small boxes, company officials said.

AT IKE'S ORDERS

Dulles To Fly To London, Try To Save Arms Talks

WASHINGTON, July 27 (UP)—President Eisenhower today ordered Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to fly to London Sunday night and find out whether the disarmament talks can be saved from threatened deadlock or collapse.

A White House announcement, echoed by State Department spokesmen, said Dulles' unexpected trip does not mean either a "breakthrough" or a "breakdown" is near in the long search for a disarmament formula.

"First Step"

Dulles will make a "personal review and judgment" of the big disagreements between Russia and the West and the lesser issues among the Western allies on how to make a "first step" toward checking the arms race, administration spokesmen said.

However, informed sources added that it was increasingly apparent that early hopes of agreement with Russia are being destroyed by Russia's refusal to link a proposed nuclear test suspension with more fundamental and complicated first-step disarmament moves.

West Refuses

The West refuses to stop testing atomic weapons without assurance that Russia will join in a broader and workable system of controlled and inspected disarmament. Russia insists that to tie in nuclear stockpile controls, missile control, convention arms reductions, open-skies inspection plans, and other complex steps will mean a long delay in starting the temporary ban on bomb tests.

The UN Disarmament subcommittee must report to its parent body next week on progress of the London talks. The talks could continue after the report is filed, however.

State Department officials said the London negotiations are not running out of time. The United States, they said, is willing to continue the talks so long as there is any hope of reaching agreement.

ZZZZ! Rattler Time In North's Hill Country

WARRIORS MARK, Pa., July 27 (UP)—ZZZZZZZZZZZZ! It's rattlesnake time again in the hills of central Pennsylvania.

And for the Ancient Gastronomic Order of Rattlesnake Repellants it means eating rattlesnakes. Ever try rattlesnake? It's a delicacy.

Like it or not you've got to eat it to be a member in good standing of the Rattlesnake Repellants.

Simple?

Sure, if you can eat rattlesnake meat and at the same time watch two live ones wiggle in front of you.

Initiation

It's all part of the initiation into the organization formed about 12 years ago by three Huntingdon County sportsmen.

Each year the group, now totaling 50, meets at Fairbrook Manor, a rambling 30-room stone house built in 1834 near Pennsylvania Furnace to rattle and tattle some tall tales.

The grand imperial rattler is Bob Harpster, one of the founders of the organization. He loves rattlesnake meat.

Dr. Eric Walker, president of Penn State University, was initiated last year.

This session, Dr. Fred Bolman, president of Franklin and Marshall College, will be initiated.

Menu

Wives of the members prepare the menu. It includes a four-inch piece of rattlesnake meat, a hunk of groundhog and fresh trout.

Why so little of rattlesnake meat?

"It's expensive," says Mrs. Harpster who annually helps prepare the menu. "Better than chicken."

Women do not attend the meetings, although they help serve the menu.

"Do you think we want to get bit by a rattler?" asked Mrs. Harpster.

ZZZZZZZZZZZZ.

Judge Orders Va. School To Desegregate

ALEXANDRIA, Va., July 27 (UP)—Federal District Judge Albert Bryan today ordered Arlington County, Va., to desegregate its schools at the opening of the fall semester in September.

He upheld a motion by Negro attorneys to order a year-old Arlington desegregation decree into effect immediately. The ruling was the exact reversal of a ruling Friday by Federal Judge John Paul of Harrisonburg, Va., in a Charlottesville, Va., desegregation case. Judge Paul, ruling on an identical motion in a nearly identical school case, ordered a year-old desegregation decree against Charlottesville delayed until the U. S. Supreme Court passes on Virginia's pupil-placement act.

Delay Expected
The delay in the Charlottesville case was expected to last at least six months.

Judge Bryan dismissed the pupil-placement law as not pertinent to the Arlington case.

"The sufficiency of the (pupil-placement) act," he said, "has not been previously an issue in this suit and is now advanced prematurely." He added that "the court must deny the plaintiff's request that the decree be enlarged to include a declaration, paralleling the ruling of the court, in effect allowing the students to be by-pass the pupil placement act."

The decision was a complete victory for Negro attorneys Oliver Hill and Spottswood Robinson of Richmond, Va., who argued the Arlington schools should be desegregated this fall and that the pupil-placement act should be disregarded.

GOOD DEED BACKFIRES
MILWAUKEE (UP)—Ezra Evans spotted a car on fire so he stopped his truck, grabbed his fire extinguisher and put out the fire. When he turned to his truck he found that police had given him a ticket for double parking.

But the story had a happy ending when grateful firemen, who arrived after the fire was out, talked the policeman out of the ticket.

BULLET DOESN'T LIKE BULLETS—Bullet, the A. J. Kelly family's black and white pet, has taken an understandable dislike to actual bullets, since one fired from a .22 caliber rifle by an unknown person blasted through his body. Now recuperating at a local animal hospital, Bullet lost a considerable amount of blood when he was shot through the lungs. (Staff photo by Scotty Maxwell)

FAMILY PET

Friendly Dog Named Bullet Has Trouble With Namesake

"It's amazing that he's as well as he is," stated the veterinarian yesterday, discussing Bullet, a friendly, medium sized black and white dog who was blasted by a .22 caliber rifle Friday afternoon. Dr. Walter J. Ernst treated the wounded animal, after it dragged itself home Friday. He revealed that blood transfusions were necessary to save the life of the family pet.

Monroe police are now investigating the case of the wounded dog, which belongs to the A. J. Kelly family of 202 Vernon Street.

Monroe. Mrs. Kelly noticed Friday that Bullet did not come to meet the car when she drove up to her home.

Missing Three Hours

The animal had been missing for almost three hours, when it finally appeared, dripping blood. Mr. Kelly rushed the dog to the veterinarian's office, where Dr. Ernst discovered that a bullet had entered the animal's left side, tore through his lungs, and gone out through the right side.

Internal bleeding had also been taking place, and it looked for a time as if Bullet's namesake might be the cause of his death. Luckily, no main blood vessels had been hit, the bleeding was stopped, and it looks like Bullet will be able to return home some time this week.

A special pet of the Kelly children, Diane, age 6 and Al, age 7, Bullet's injury nearly made the youngsters sick. "Diane cried all Friday evening," Mrs. Kelly said when discussing the incident yesterday.

Now wanted is Monroe's candidate for "meanest person"—whoever blasted Bullet.

Child Drowns As Skiff Upsets In Mississippi

HATTIESBURG, Miss., July 27 (UP)—A skiff overturned on a small lake on the edge of town today, drowning a 3-year-old and dumping his father, his brother and two others into the lake.

Patrolmen H. L. Delk and Tom Olesbee, who helped rescue the other four victims, said they dived for John Raymond Horton Jr. but were unable to find his body. Firemen recovered it later.

The officers said the survivors told this story: John Albert Horton, his 4-year-old son, and James Carter and his 6-year-old son were on a fishing trip with the 3-year-old.

The skiff somehow overturned, dumping all five into the water. Ashore, John Easterwood, Horton's brother-in-law and a non-swimmer, heard the cries for help and telephoned police.

The older Horton said that for a while he was able to hold his two boys above water but the younger child slipped from his grasp.

FROM WATERY GRAVE

Salvage Company Plans To Refloat Andrea Doria

TRENTON, N. J., July 27 (UP)—A local salvage company said today it hopes to enter an agreement soon with an Italian insurance company to refloat the liner Andrea Doria from its watery grave 225 feet below the Atlantic Ocean.

Armando Conti, president of the AAA Salvage Co., said that everything had been worked out and a price agreed upon. He would not disclose the amount.

"We now have a few legal questions to settle," said Conti.

He expected confirmation in a week to 10 days.

Conti's chief engineer, Richard Meyer, said he planned to raise the 29,000-ton liner by the same ballast method he used once to raise his sunken rowboat when he was a child.

Ballast Method

Meyer said he used the ballast method to raise several ore boats on the Great Lakes including the 10,000-ton City of Cleveland.

Conti said the operation would start next March and take a year at a cost of 3½ to 4 million dollars. He hoped the liner could then be put to sea.

But if it isn't, he estimated he could sell the hull as scrap and the furnishings for nine million dollars.

The Doria was sunk July 26, 1956, about 50 miles off Nantucket Island following a collision with the Swedish-American Line's Stockholm.

Penalties For Adultery Rise In Mississippi

By DOUGLAS STARR

JACKSON, Miss., July 27 (UP)—Little by little, Mississippi is adding to the penalties for adultery which already carry a maximum sentence of six months in jail and a $500 fine.

The 1956 Legislature slapped a 10-year prison term on adultery between the races and cut off welfare payments to needy children whose mothers bear illegitimate children.

The latest suggestion came this week during a legislative committee hearing into proposed changes in the workmen's compensation laws.

The Mississippi Economic Council, state chamber of commerce and highly pro-management, suggested that a widow who receives compensation as a result of her husband's death should lose her weekly payments if she commits adultery.

Attorney William J. Threadgill of Columbus, member of the MEC study committee, testified:

"Under the present act, compensation ends only with remarriage, and there are instances in which widows and widowers have lived in open adultery rather than marry, gain respectability and lose their compensation."

Of course, such a widow also would be liable to an adultery charge and the fine and jail term. One effect of this proposed change would be to require every workmen's compensation adjuster to determine the moral character of widows before approving payments.

The present law does not make chastity or moral character a prerequisite to qualifying for widow's workmen's compensation.

Another attempt at keeping sex for wedlock is a 1956 law aimed at the most innocent party—the illegitimate child.

The 1956 Legislature appropriated some $1,800,000 for needy and dependent children but ordered such welfare payments stopped if the child's mother bore an illegitimate child.

Legislative arguments were that some mothers "make a living" by bearing illegitimate children to increase their welfare payments.

During the same session, one lawmaker introduced a bill requiring such mothers to be sterilized but the measure never came out of committee.

In this case, too, the mother would be liable to an adultery charge and the fine and prison term.

The 1956 Legislature enacted a law providing for a 10-year prison term for co-habitation between Negroes and whites or any persons "whose marriage is prohibited by reason of race."

OVER MASTER PLAN

Integration Group Blasts New York Education Board

NEW YORK, July 27 (UP)—The New York City Board of Education today accused today of "sitting on its hands while Supt. of Schools William Jansen tears the heart out of the nation's most comprehensive school integration program."

The accusation was leveled by the Urban League of Greater New York, an interracial group whose aim is bettering interracial relations.

The criticism followed publication

of a new master plan prepared by Dr. Jansen for zoning the city's public schools. Described as "tentative," the plan, in general, makes few changes in the existing system, under which many schools have pupils drawn entirely from racial groups predominant in the school's neighborhoods.

White, Hope, Ark.; Ethel Wilkes, Sterlington; William Byrum Wilson, Jr., Monroe; Doris Major Winter, Transylvania; Carrie Buckley Zeagler, Grayson.

It was one of the worst automobile accidents in the state in several months and brought to 13 the number of persons to die in mishaps during the weekend.

One of those killed was a two-year-old girl who died instantly when the two cars met, apparently at a high rate of speed on U. S. Highway about 6:30 p.m. Two other children were carried in agony to a nearby hospital.

The dead were identified at the hospital as Henry Moss, 37, of Arkansas Pass; his wife, Clara, 41; their 15-year-old stepson, James Lee Acorn, and their two-year-old daughter. A third Moss child, five-year-old Leslie, remains in critical condition at the Kenedy hospital, the only survivor of the family.

In the other car, apparently driven by 31-year-old Marvin Hardy of San Antonio; his wife, Beatrice, 41, and Joe Barrientes, 66, also of San Antonio. A fourth person in Hardy's car, Jesus Jimenez, 57, of San Antonio, was injured.

Highway patrolmen were at a loss to explain the accident. The road was dry, and driving conditions were apparently ideal.

OVER MASTER PLAN

Integration Group Blasts New York Education Board

NEW YORK, July 27 (UP)—The New York City Board of Education today accused today of "sitting on its hands while Supt. of Schools William Jansen tears the heart out of the nation's most comprehensive school integration program."

The accusation was leveled by the Urban League of Greater New York, an interracial group whose aim is bettering interracial relations.

The criticism followed publication of a new master plan prepared by Dr. Jansen for zoning the city's public schools. Described as "tentative," the plan, in general, makes few changes in the existing system, under which many schools have pupils drawn entirely from racial groups predominant in the school's neighborhoods.

Sole Purpose
A new system of bus transportation earlier had been expected to make a start this fall in reducing the segregation which occurred in previous school operations. However, Dr. Jansen's report said, "Pupils should not be transported by bus from one school to another solely for the purpose of integration."

The Urban League praised the "personal efforts" of Board of Education President Charles H. Silver to "implement public school integration and equality of educational opportunity." But the league said the majority of the board members appeared to be let the integration program "fizzle out."

The criticism was contained in letters to Mayor Robert F. Wagner, Deputy Mayor John J. Theobald and Silver from Edward S. Lewis, the league's executive director.

Specifically, Dr. Jansen was accused of acting contrary to a recommendation of the Commission on Integration that new, inexperienced teachers should not be sent to "de facto segregated schools" for their probationary period.

Instead, said Lewis, the schools superintendent placed 1,150 of 1,450 new common branch teachers in "Hartley, Bedford-Stuyvesant and other de facto segregated schools."

Jansen was not available for comment.

The Board of Education has the final approval on all matters relating to schools.

SOULE DIES

NEW ORLEANS, July 27 (UP)—Attorney Frank Soule, who practiced law in New Orleans more than 50 years, died today.

Soule, 85, was the son of Col. George Soule, who founded the Soule Business College.

Skeltons Reach Paris; Planning Trip To Lourdes

PARIS, July 27 (UP)—Red-haired Richard Skelton and his red-haired dad, comedian Red Skelton, flew into Paris today to look for riches for a wide-eyed boy.

Richard, 9, is suffering from leukemia—cancer of the blood—and the doctors say he has little time to live. So the Skelton family set out on a trip to give Richard a chance to see some of the world's wonders.

Arriving here from Barcelona, Richard was asked what he wanted to see in Paris. He immediately said that he wanted to look at the Eiffel Tower. After that?

"What else is there?" he asked. His mother suggested the Louvre and Napoleon's tomb. After he heard that the Louvre was where all those pictures are hung, Richard lost interest.

His sister, Valentina, has her own idea for an old Paris landmark she wanted to see. She picked on Maurice Chevalier, the 66-year-old song and dance man who is still making movies and performing in music halls.

The family went to their hotel and a physician was called in to examine Richard, a precautionary measure that apparently is being taken in each city where they stop.

His mother assured reporters that "he's just fine."

Skelton said that they may go to Lourdes, the shrine in southwest France, where miracle healings have been claimed after baths in the waters.

"We are not going to seek any miracles or cures," he said.

The only purpose of the trip, he explained would be "because Richard wants to see Lourdes."

British-Backed Flag Rises Over Reb Stronghold

SHARJA, Trucial Oman, July 27 (UP)—The red flag of the Sultan was reported flying over rebel strongholds in Oman and Muscat today, and the British called off their jet fighter-bombers.

After three days of rocket-blasting at rebel-held forts in Oman, the Sultan switched to dropping leaflets again calling Omanis to swing behind the pro-British Sultan and for the rebels to quit.

Throughout the British assault, the strongholds flew the white flag of the Imam of Oman, religious leader Ghalib ben Ali who came back from Saudi Arabian exile to try to overthrow Sultan Said bin Taimur.

Whether the flying of the Sultan's flag was definite indication the rebels had given up under the British pounding was not known here. But the British took it as a hopeful sign.

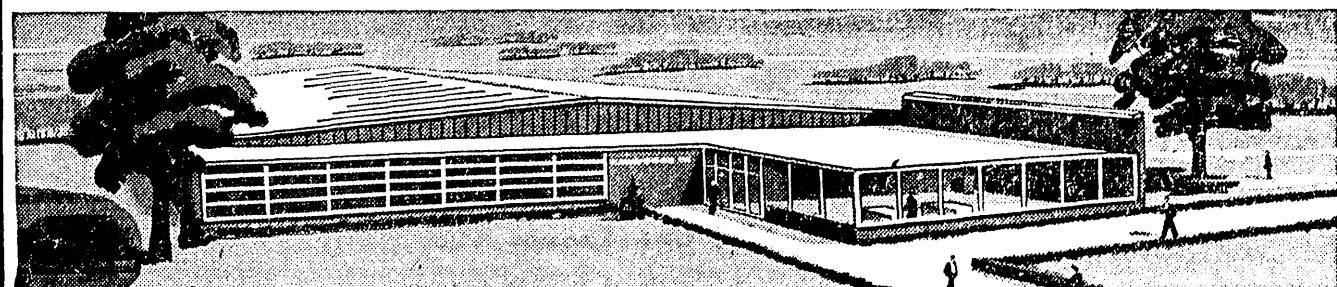

What the British will do in the next few days is not clear. If it turns out the rebels had only evacuated the areas, it is possible the Trucial Scouts led by British officers will move into Oman to help the Sultan's weak forces hold out. A battalion of scouts is now stationed here.

If the rebels don't give up, British air attacks "are pretty well bound to be resumed in a few days," a spokesman said.

INJURED IN CRASH

GRAPEVINE, Tex., July 27 (UP)—Vernon M. Priddy was injured today when a Globe-Swift plane he was piloting crashed, four miles west of here. Priddy was hospitalized at Fort Worth.

The CAA began an investigation of the crash after the Department of Public Safety made a preliminary report.

A THANK YOU . . .

to members of the Utilities Commission

We, your fellow citizens, appreciate the splendid work you're doing in the administration of our light and water systems. We think the public-spirited volunteer service which you provide is highly commendable. We note with gratitude the many improvements which have been effected in our utilities system. Mr. F. L. SMITH, retired executive . . . MR. TRAVIS OLIVER, JR., attorney . . . MR. AL HUEY, engineer . . . MR. ROBERT COWDEN, banker—we thank you for the service you're rendering so admirably—AND WITHOUT PAY

AN ENDORSEMENT . . .

of the Bond Issue

We recognize the urgent need for improvements and expansions in our light and water systems in order to bring them up to Monroe's past growth. We agree that the best way to finance these improvements and extensions is through a revenue bond issue which will be repaid from future earnings and which will not require any new or additional taxes and which will not call for any increase in rates. We take great pride in the fact that our City owns its own utilities system and are aware of the many benefits it provides. We know that these benefits, which are derived from our own light and water systems, keep our property taxes down. We heartily endorse the bond issue and urge our fellow citizens of Monroe to go to the polls Tuesday and vote "Yes" in its favor.

A volunteer group of Monroe citizens interested in the progress of our city

PRINCESS! ARE

YES, HOGAN! I WASN'T ACTUALLY
HURT, BUT I WAS SO FRIGHTENED!

THE FINANCE COMMITTEE WORKED FAR
INTO THE NIGHT! NONE OF US HEARD A RADIO OR SAW A PAPER WITH THE FLASH!
—HOW'S STEVE CANYON?

I-I DON'T KNOW—HE WENT WITH THE POLICE

MEANWHILE = ACROSS THE NATION...

HEY!
LISTEN
THIS...

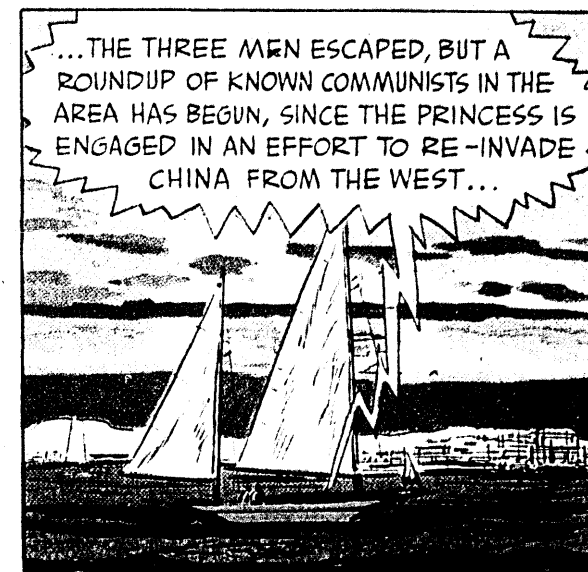

"PRINCESS SNOWFLOWER,
HEAD OF THE GOVERNMENT-IN-EXILE OF DAMMA, A SMALL COUNTRY WEST OF CHINA,
NOW ON AN UNOFFICIAL VISIT TO THE UNITED STATES.

...WAS ASSAULTED LAST NIGHT BY THREE MEN
BELIEVED TO BE AGENTS OF A FOREIGN POWER

THE PRINCESS WAS SEVERELY SHAKEN,
BUT NOT SERIOUSLY HURT... A U.S. AIR FORCE LIEUT. COLONEL NAMED CANYON, WHO FOUGHT OFF THE ASSAILANTS, WAS TREATED FOR CUTS AND BRUISES... POLICE SAY...

...THE THREE MEN ESCAPED, BUT A
ROUNDUP OF KNOWN COMMUNISTS IN THE AREA HAS BEGUN, SINCE THE PRINCESS IS ENGAGED IN AN EFFORT TO RE-INVADE CHINA FROM THE WEST...

"WASHINGTON OFFICIALS HAD NO
COMMENT ON THE ATTACK EXCEPT TO EXPRESS SYMPATHY AND CONCERN FOR THE WELFARE OF THE HEAD OF A FRIENDLY GOVERNMENT..."

YOU SEE--

I'M SORRY TO SAY-- I SAW IT! ...GET CANYON
ON THE PHONE! HE DID A GOOD JOB OF PROTECTING THAT PRINCESS, BUT A POOR ONE OF KEEPING HER OFF THE FRONT PAGES!

WELL, COMRADE, YOU PUBLICITY-
HAPPY HOLLYWOOD SLOBS SUCCEEDED IN MAKING A MARTYR OF THAT PRINCESS SNOWFLOWER! NEW YORK
WANTS AN EXPLANATION—QUICK!

COMRADE! COMRADE!
YOU MUST BELIEVE ME!
WE HAD NOTHING TO DO WITH THAT

BRINGING

EVERYTHING
FOR ME---

POOR MOTHER! I KNOW EXACTLY

WHAT'S THE MATTER,
MAGGIE? DID THE COOK

NO! THIS TIME IT'S THE MAID!

SHE DIDN'T GIVE ME ANY WARNING
AT ALL! --- JUST WALKED OUT AND

AND I WAS SO NICE TO THAT GIRL! I
EVEN INVITED HER TO MY CONCERT
THIS EVENING!

MAYBE THAT'S

JIGGS, I WANT TO HIRE A NEW
MAID! BUT INSTEAD OF HAVING A LOT OF THEM COME HERE, YOU
PICK ONE OUT AT THE EMPLOYMENT AGENCY!

BUT, MAGGIE,
I'M BUSY--

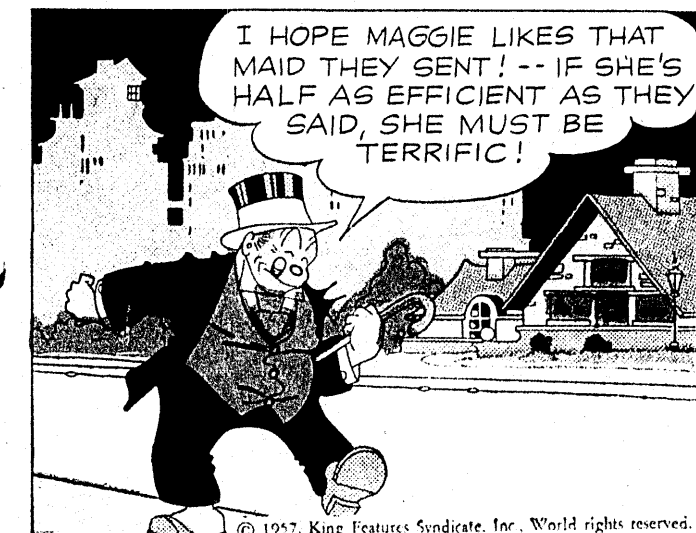

WHY SHOULD I WASTE
MY TIME GOIN' TO THE EMPLOYMENT AGENCY?!
I'LL CALL THEM UP FROM MY OFFICE!

HELLO, MR. JIGGS!--YES, WE DO HAVE A MAID ON FILE-- A VERY COMPETENT ONE!
I'LL BE GLAD TO SEND HER TO YOUR HOUSE!

BUT REMEMBER--WHEN YOU
PHONE MY WIFE, TELL HER THAT I STOPPED AT YOUR PLACE AND PICKED OUT THE MAID, MYSELF.

I HOPE MAGGIE LIKES THAT MAID THEY SENT!--IF SHE'S HALF AS EFFICIENT AS THEY SAID, SHE MUST BE TERRIFIC!

HELLO, MAGGIE! HOW DID YOU LIKE THAT MAID I PICKED OUT? THERE WERE OTHER GIRLS THERE--BUT NONE THAT LOOKED AS GOOD AS

GAME!

PLEASE!!
MAGGIE--

--AND HOW
MIMI? DIDN'T
HE LIKE YOU, EITHER?

I DEEDN'T
MEESTAIR
